MINUTES

OF THE

SIXTEENTH ANNUAL CONVENTION

OF THE

UNITED MINE WORKERS OF AMERICA

HELD IN

Tomlinson Hall, Indianapolis, Ind.,

JANUARY 16-23, 1905.

FIRST DAY—MORNING SESSION.

The convention was called to order at 10 o'clock a. m., Monday, January 16th, 1905, President John Mitchell in the chair, and Vice-President T. L. Lewis and Secretary-Treasurer W. B. Wilson present.

President Mitchell introduced Mayor John W. Holtzman, who welcomed the convention to the city.

Mr. H. W. Simon welcomed the convention to the city on behalf of organized labor. At the conclusion of the address Mr. Simon presented to President Mitchell, on behalf of the Central Labor Union of Indianapolis, a gavel made from wood taken from the old bridge on West Washington street, over White river, which was built in 1834 and torn down in 1902.

President Mitchell made a brief response to the addresses of welcome.

Secretary Wilson read the official call for the convention, which was adopted as read.

President Mitchell appointed the following Committee on Rules and Order of Business: William Dodds, District 5; Richard Gilbert, District 2; W. T. Morris, District 12.

The Committee on Credentials made a partial report.

On motion, duly seconded, the report of the Committee on Credentials was received, and the delegates recommended by the committee were seated.

Delegate Fitzsimmons, of the Committee on Credentials, announced that the lists of delegates from District 7 and District 23 had not been read, as the delegates from these districts were not entitled to seats in the convention owing to the fact that the districts were in arrears for the ten-cent assessment.

Delegate C. P. Gildea—There are delegates here from locals in District 7 that have paid up both the ten-cent assessment and the per capita tax.

President Mitchell—Two years ago an assessment of ten cents per member was levied, and it was provided in the resolution that unless a district had paid the assessment on all its members no local in the district would be entitled to a seat in the convention.

Delegate Dempsey—I am informed that local unions belonging to District 7 are represented in this convention, and that they have paid their per capita tax and the ten-cent assessment in full. They paid the assessment to the district, but the district officers have been appropriating the money to pay their running expenses. In such a case as this I think the locals are not responsible.

Secretary Wilson—The dues of the local unions mentioned have been paid. The assessments of those local unions in District 7 have not been paid, so far as the national organization is concerned. A notice with a bill attached has gone to District 7 every month during the year; and in addition to that the members of the Credentials Committee took it upon themselves, believing District No. 7 ought to have an opportunity to pay its assessment if it wanted to, to notify the district secretary that they were in arrears for this assessment. District 7 has not yet paid that assessment. Notices with bills attached were also sent each month to District 23. Not more than a month ago the matter was taken up personally with the officials of District 23. When the ten-cent assessment was levied by the convention two years ago the districts were held responsible for its payment. In these two instances the districts have failed to pay the assessment, and, so far as the National organization is concerned, the assessment has not been paid for those local unions from District 7 and District 23 that are seeking representation in this convention.

In answer to a question as to the amounts owing by the two districts under discussion, Secretary Wilson said that District 7 owed the National organization, up to and including November, $3,437.77, and District 23, $3,702.57.

Delegates Gallagher, L. U. 1499; Cuddy, Jones, Dempsey, Jones, and Vice-President Lewis spoke in favor of seating delegates from local unions whose assessments and per capita tax had been paid in full.

Delegates Richardson, Kansas; McTaggart and McClosky, L. U. 1415, spoke in opposition to the seating of any delegates from Districts 7 or 23 until the ten-cent assessment had been paid in full by the districts.

Delegate Hudson, L. U. 2413—I move you that we hear from the officers from District 7 and District 23 before the matter is discussed any further.

President Mitchell—These officers are not in the convention.

Delegate J. H. Walker, District 12, moved that a committee of five be appointed by the president to investigate the question under discussion, the committee to report back to the convention. Seconded.

The question was further discussed by Delegates Richardson and Bousfield, who spoke in opposition to the seating of the delegates, and Delegate Gallagher, who spoke in favor of seating the delegates.

The motion offered by Delegate Walker was then voted on and carried, and President Mitchell appointed the following special committee: Delegate Walker, District 12; Delegate Currie, District 2; Delegate Legg, District 6; Delegate Dempsey, District 1, and Delegate Richardson, District 14.

After the usual announcements by the secretary the convention was adjourned to meet at 2 o'clock p. m.

FIRST DAY—AFTERNOON SESSION.

The convention was called to order at 2 o'clock p. m., Monday, January 16th, President Mitchell in the chair.

Delegate Richard Gilbert, for the Committee on Rules and Order of Business, reported as follows:

RULES AND ORDER OF BUSINESS FOR THE SIXTEENTH ANNUAL CONVENTION OF THE UNITED MINE WORKERS OF AMERICA.

We, your Committee on Rules and Order of Business, respectfully submit the following for your consideration:

1. The convention shall be called to order at 9 a. m. and adjourn at 12 noon; reconvene at 1:30 p. m. and adjourn at 5 p. m.

2. No member of the convention shall speak more than once on the same question until all who desire to speak shall have been heard. Speeches shall be limited to five minutes, and no one shall be allowed the floor more than twice except by consent of the majority.

3. The roll of the delegates shall not be called on any question, except at the request of fifty or more delegates.

4. Any member of the convention appearing on the floor in such a manner as to annoy the proceedings of the convention, shall be reprimanded by the Chair for the first offense, and for the second shall be expelled from the convention and his conduct reported to his constituents by the National Secretary.

5. This convention shall be governed by Cushing's Manual, with the exception that when a motion is made to table questions with amendments appended, the motion to table shall first apply to the amendment or amendments, and shall require a motion to table the original.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

1. Report of Committee on Credentials.
2. Reports of officers.
3. Appointment of committees.
4. Report of Auditing Committee.
5. Report of Resolutions Committee.
6. Report of Committee on Constitution.
7. Report of Transportation Committee.
8. Reports of delegates to American Federation of Labor and International Mining Congress.
9. Report of Tellers.
10. Report of Committee on Officers' Reports.
11. Report of Committee on Appeals and Grievances.
12. Miscellaneous business.

WILLIAM DODDS,
RICHARD GILBERT,
W. T. MORRIS.

On motion of Delegate Haskins the report of the committee was adopted as read.

To the Sixteenth Annual Convention of the United Mine Workers of America:

Gentlemen—Conforming to established usages, I herewith submit a report of my work and of such of the affairs of our organization as come under my supervision, together with such observations and recommendations as seem to me to be necessary for the future successful government of our union, and I ask for them your careful consideration.

First, however, permit me to extend you a cordial welcome to this, our Sixteenth Annual Convention, and to express the hope that your deliberations may be such as to cement in indissoluble bonds of unity and fraternity the legions of men employed in the mining industry of the United States and Canada. May I also express the hope that the legislation enacted here will meet the reasonable expectations of the vast constituency you have the honor to serve?

Many of the important events occurring since the close of our last annual convention have been brought to your notice through official circulars and unofficial communications appearing in the columns of the United Mine Workers' Journal, and were it not for the necessity of having these events permanently recorded in official and available form, it would be useless to take up the time of the convention by referring to or repeating them here.

You, no doubt, remember the difficulties attending the formulation of an agreement one year ago, when, in the first joint convention, the operators insisted—even to the point of disagreement—upon a reduction of fifteen per cent. You will also recall the adjournment of that conference and the convocation of a special joint convention on February 29th, at which time a compromise was offered in the shape of a reduction of 5.55 per cent. This proposition was rejected by our delegates and the entire subject submitted to a referendum vote of the miners of all districts whose scale expired on April 1st. The result of that referendum vote stands as a monument to the sagacity of the members of our organization and proves that government, whether of unions or of nations, is safe and secure in the hands of the people. The compromise proposition was accepted by a vote of 101,792½ as against 68,485½.

Of course, it was to be expected that many members of our union would dissent from the advice given by the officers and by those members who advocated the acceptance of the reduction in preference to a strike. Men equally honest and solicitous for the welfare and advancement of the organization may differ as to its policies, and it was but natural that there should be some criticism. But criticism, calumny, and condemnation were not confined to the members of our own organization, who had a right to criticise. Open enemies and professing friends who were not members of our union, or, in fact, of any union, rushed forward with gratuitous advice and from the obscurity to which they had been relegated years before, loudly assailed the motives and the honor of men who dared to do what they believed and knew to be best for the interests committed to their care. I recognize and invite fair criticism of my official acts; indeed, I believe that criticism is necessary and helpful, but I do not recognize the right of non-unionists, ex-unionists, or anti-unionists to misrepresent the policies of our organization or to impugn the motives of those directing its affairs.

I do not believe that any observant person who is familiar with the industrial conditions that have prevailed during the past year, will undertake to say that the settlement made last March was not the very best obtainable under the circumstances, and that our union is not in a far better condition now than it would be had a strike been inaugurated.

MEMBERSHIP OF THE ORGANIZATION.

Except for the year of the anthracite strike, this is the first time that I have been unable to report any material growth in the membership of the organization. As will be observed from the tables herein submitted, our average membership for the year ending December 31, 1904, shows an increase of less than 4,000 over the preceding year, while the membership for the month of December, 1904—based upon the tax received for that month—shows a decrease of about 25,000 members.

For the year 1897 the average paid-up membership was 9,731.

For 1898 it was 32,902, an increase of 23,171
For 1899 it was 61,887, an increase of 28,985
For 1900 it was 115,521, an increase of 53,634
For 1901 it was 198,024, an increase of 82,503
For 1902 it was 175,367, a decrease of 22,657
For 1903 it was 247,240, an increase of 71,873
For 1904 it was 251,006, an increase of 3,766

Taking the capitation tax received in the month of December each year as a basis of computation, our records show that for December, 1898, the membership was 54,700.

For December, 1899, it was 91,000, an increase of 36,300
For December, 1900, it was 189,329, an increase of 98,329
For December, 1901, it was 232,289, an increase of 42,960
For December, 1902, it was 198,090, a decrease of 34,199
For December, 1903, it was 287,545, an increase of 89,455
For December, 1904, it was 262,645, a decrease of 24,900

The heavy falling off in membership for the month of December, 1904, is accounted for by the fact that from twenty to twenty-five thousand members were on strike and exonerated from the payment of dues.

As indicated in the following table showing the fluctuation in membership by districts, the greatest loss sustained is in the eastern bituminous and anthracite fields:

| District No. | 1903. | 1904. | Increase. | Decrease. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1 | 35,271 | 23,109 | .... | 12,162 |
| 2 | 30,168 | 17,926 | .... | 12,242 |
| 5 | 21,595 | 23,844 | 2,249 | .... |
| 6 | 38,342 | 40,566 | 2,224 | .... |
| 7 | 4,787 | 3,852 | .... | 935 |
| 8 | 3,140 | 2,453 | .... | 687 |
| 9 | 16,276 | 14,932 | .... | 1,344 |

| 13 | 9,788 | 16,752 | 6,963 | .... |
| 14 | 9,956 | 9,802 | .... | 154 |
| 15 | 537 | 947 | 410 | .... |
| 16 | 2,290 | 112 | .... | 2,178 |
| 17 | 9,601 | 6,210 | .... | 3,391 |
| 18 | 3,293 | 1,077 | .... | 2,216 |
| 19 | 5,274 | 3,063 | .... | 2,211 |
| 20 | 10,508 | 3,168 | .... | 7,340 |
| 21 | 9,527 | 11,492 | 1,965 | .... |
| 22 | 2,125 | 1,767 | .... | 357 |
| 23 | 3,624 | 2,571 | .... | 1,053 |
| 24 | 2,765 | 3,756 | 990 | .... |
| 25 | 7,802 | 10,665 | 2,863 | .... |
| No district | 245 | 100 | .... | 145 |
| Individual local unions | 57 | 140 | 83 | .... |
| Totals | 287,539 | 262,645 | 21,516 | 46,415 |

Total decrease, 24,900.

In considering this portion of my report, it would be well to keep in mind the industrial conditions which prevailed during the year 1904. At no time since 1897 has work been so irregular and the coal trade so demoralized. Many mines in the eastern states were closed down, throwing thousands of our members out of employment, and as a consequence of these conditions, the receipts for capitation tax declined. I feel quite confident that our organization has suffered no permanent loss in strength or influence and that with the revival of business and industrial activity we shall, in the near future, regain this apparent loss and surpass our former strength.

There is still another feature—and one entirely within our own control—which has militated against the growth of our organization, as it is shown in the reports of our district and national secretaries. No inconsiderable number of our local unions seem to regard it as perfectly legitimate for them to withhold a portion of the revenues which should be transmitted to the national and district treasurers. While this practice, I am pleased to say, is not so common as in other years, I nevertheless wish to emphasize the fact that local unions must be required to pay dues and assessments upon every member paying to them, and any departure in this respect from the plain and definite provisions of the constitution should be punishable by expulsion of the offending local union.

THE ANTHRACITE FIELD.

It is a source of keen regret and disappointment that I am compelled to report a loss of membership in the anthracite region and an apparent lack of interest on the part of the mine workers in that field. What reasons there can be for this seeming indifference, I am unable to conceive. It certainly can not be attributed to any failure on the part of the organization to protect and safeguard the welfare and the material advancement of the men employed there. It is true that wages and conditions of employment are far from satisfactory; yet, as compared with those that existed only a few years ago, there is a decided improvement.

For your information I herewith submit a tabulated statement showing the operation of the sliding scale as established by the following award of the Anthracite Coal Strike Commission.

For each increase of 5 cents in the average price of white-ash coal of sizes above pea coal, sold at or near New York, between Perth Amboy and Edgewater, and reported to the Bureau of Anthracite Coal Statistics, above $4.50 per ton f. o. b., the employes shall have an increase of 1 per cent. in their compensation, which shall continue until a change in the average price of said coal works a reduction or an increase in said additional compensation hereunder; but the rate of compensation shall in no case be less than that fixed in the award. That is, when the price of said coal reaches $4.55 per ton, the compensation will be increased 1 per cent. to continue until the price falls below $4.55 per ton, when the 1 per cent. increase will cease, or until the price reaches $4.60 per ton, when an additional 1 per cent. will be added, and so on.

The operation of this sliding scale during the period of its existence—from April 1, 1903, to and including December 31, 1904, brought the following result:

| Year. | Month. | Average price of coal. | Per cent. increase in compensation. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1903 | April | $4.44 per ton | 0 per cent. |
| 1903 | May | 4.52 per ton | 0 per cent. |
| 1903 | June | 4.60 per ton | 2 per cent. |
| 1903 | July | 4.69 per ton | 3 per cent. |
| 1903 | August | 4.75 per ton | 5 per cent. |
| 1903 | September | 4.81 per ton | 6 per cent. |
| 1903 | October | 4.84 per ton | 6 per cent. |
| 1903 | November | 4.85 per ton | 7 per cent. |
| 1903 | December | 4.86 per ton | 7 per cent. |
| 1904 | January | 4.85 per ton | 7 per cent. |
| 1904 | February | 4.87 per ton | 7 per cent. |
| 1904 | March | 4.80 per ton | 6 per cent. |
| 1904 | April | 4.43 per ton | 0 per cent. |
| 1904 | May | 4.51 per ton | 0 per cent. |
| 1904 | June | 4.58 per ton | 1 per cent. |
| 1904 | July | 4.63 per ton | 2 per cent. |
| 1904 | August | 4.69 per ton | 3 per cent. |
| 1904 | September | 4.78 per ton | 5 per cent. |
| 1904 | October | 4.85 per ton | 7 per cent. |
| 1904 | November | 4.85 per ton | 7 per cent. |
| 1904 | December | 4.86 per ton | 7 per cent. |

You will bear in mind that the increases shown in this table are in addition to the horizontal advance of 10 per cent., which was granted by the commission.

Before closing this reference to the anthracite situation, I feel it incumbent upon me to say that I fear the anthracite mine workers will be unable to secure any further concessions or even to maintain their present standard, unless they take immediate steps to perfect their organization. While I am, of course, conscious of the fact that district and national officers located in that field, assisted by the thousands of loyal members of our union, have done all in their power to arouse the negligent to a sense of their responsibility, it is my hope that my work during the coming year will permit me to spend a part of my time in the anthracite districts, where I trust that by personal appeal I may be helpful in building up the organization and preparing its members to meet the crisis that may arise upon the expiration of the award of the Anthracite Coal Strike Commission.

STRIKES.

In no other year since the formation of the United Mine Workers of America have there been so many men continuously on strike, and at no previous time in the history of the organization, with the exception of 1902, have we been compelled to expend so much money in the support and maintenance of those involved as in the year just closed.

To relate in detail the causes, progress, and results of all these strikes and lockouts would require more time than I was able to spend in the preparation of this report or than you would care to give to receiving it. I have, therefore, confined myself to a brief discussion of the more important strikes, to the ones which have attracted more than passing notice, and which have necessitated the expenditure of large sums of money.

—Colorado Strike—

In my report one year ago, attention was directed to a strike then in progress in Colorado, Utah, and the Territory of New Mexico. This strike was inaugurated on November 9, 1903, and was caused by the refusal of the coal companies to redress grievances which had become unendurable, or even to grant a conference to the representatives of the men employed at their mines. After this strike had been in progress about four months, it became apparent to those familiar with the situation that the prospect of a successful termination was exceedingly remote. The district officers and the national representatives who had been sent there to assist them in the conduct of the strike were so impressed with the futility of continuing it longer, that, on March 18th, they (the district officers) issued a call for a convention to be held at Trinidad, Colorado, on March 24th; the purpose of said convention being to determine whether or not the strike should be continued or be brought to a close. On the 23d of March, the day preceding the one on which the convention was to be held, the Governor of Colorado ordered four hundred troops to the city of Trinidad, and, upon their arrival there, Las Animas County was declared to be under martial law. When our convention met, on the following day, the delegates in attendance and the miners in general—many hundreds of whom were then residing in the city of Trinidad—were so incensed at the unwarranted and uncalled-for action of the governor that, instead of calmly considering the status of the strike and declaring it off, as they undoubtedly would have done had the troops not been there, they decided that while the civil laws had been suspended, a resumption of work would be regarded not as a recognition of their defeat by the coal companies, but as a cowardly surrender to Peabody, who was then suspected of being—and who has since demonstrated himself to have been—simply the tool of the mining corporations of Colorado. The action of the convention in deciding to continue the strike under the circumstances then existing, had received my full and unqualified endorsement, as will be indicated by the following telegram:

"Indianapolis, Ind., March 23, 1904.

"Mr. W. R. Fairley, Hotel Corinado, Trinidad, Colorado:

"Striking mine workers should be admonished to continue as heretofore to be law-abiding and not allow themselves to be provoked into the commission of overt acts. Convention should protest against action of governor. Citizens of Colorado should be called upon to register their disapproval and should vote against the continuance in office of Governor Peabody and those of his administration who support him in his hostility toward workingmen. Delegates to convention can not afford to declare strike ended while troops are on the ground and civil law has been suspended.

(Signed) "JOHN MITCHELL."

After the arrival of the troops and the adjournment of the convention, it was found impossible for the strikers to assemble peacefully for the discussion of their grievances. Thousands of non-unionists were imported to take the places of those on strike. Even before the troops came, an organized gang of thugs boldly set to work to intimidate the representatives of the national organization who were stationed in Colorado at that time. Board Members Fairley and Mooney were feloniously assaulted upon the public thoroughfare; Organizer Evans and Organizer Wardjon were murderously assaulted in broad daylight while traveling on passenger trains; other organizers were held up and beaten on the public streets, while others still were threatened that if they did not depart from Colorado their lives would be in danger. Many unoffending miners were ruthlessly taken from their homes by the military authorities, and, without trial or hearing, transported across the New Mexican line with the warning never to return to the State of Colorado.

During this entire period the national organization was expending vast sums of money in District No. 15 for the maintenance of the men, women and children dependent upon us for support. So heavy were the drains upon our treasury and so apparent was it that the strike was irretrievably lost, that a meeting of the National Executive Board was convened on April 27th and the situation in District 15 was carefully canvassed; the result being that the National Executive Board adopted a motion instructing the national officers resident in Indianapolis to take such steps as were necessary to close up affairs in District No. 15. Pursuant to these instructions the following letter was addressed to National Executive Board Member Bousfield, and was read at a delegate convention, which met in Pueblo on June 20th:

Indianapolis, Indiana, June 2, 1904.

Mr. Harry Bousfield, Trinidad, Colo.:

Dear Sir and Brother—At the last meeting of the National Executive Board, held in this city, April 27th to May 1st, inclusive, a motion was adopted instructing the three resident officers to take such steps as they might deem necessary to close up affairs in Colorado.

Since the adjournment of this meeting we have made a very careful investigation into the status of the strike and have exhausted every means at our command to effect a settlement upon any basis that would secure to our membership some concessions. In all of these efforts we have failed, the coal companies refusing to recognize or to confer with any one not actually in their employ; and their representatives confidently stating that they have a sufficient number of men at work to operate their plants and to supply them with all the coal they require to fill their orders. Close inquiry upon the part of our representatives satisfies us that the mines are being operated with reasonable success and that there is no possibility of winning the strike. For this reason we have decided to bring the strike to a close at the earliest possible date.

You are therefore advised to call a meeting of the National Executive Board members, organizers, financial representatives, and district officers, to be held within the next week. At this meeting the national representatives and district officers should issue a call to all local unions in District 15, instructing them to elect delegates to attend a special district convention to be held not later than June 20th, at such place as may be decided upon at the meeting above mentioned. The purpose of such special convention to be the consideration of the best methods whereby the strike can be brought to a close and a general resumption of work be effected. You are authorized to notify the delegates attending said convention that the national organization, having expended approximately one-half a million dollars in support of the strikers in District 15, now finds itself so pressed for funds that it cannot continue these expenditures after the close of this month.

For the information of the delegates you will further state that the strike in District 15 has been more expensive to the national organization than any other movement in our history in which a like number of men have been involved. Strikes are now and have been for some time in progress in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Tennessee, and Kentucky, all of which are receiving support from the national organization. Many of the men involved in these strikes have been members of the organization since the national union was formed and have, during all those years, paid dues and assessments, and they are therefore entitled to financial assistance; but notwithstanding the fact that the men referred to have been loyal and continuous members of our union and have paid for years into its treasury, they have not received, and the probabilities are they will not receive, from the national organization as much per capita in strike benefit as has been paid to the strikers in District 15, some of whom were not members of the organization prior to the 9th day of last November, the date upon which the strike was inaugurated.

It is unnecessary to say that we keenly regret that the miners of Colorado and Utah have not succeeded in their efforts to secure higher wages and more favorable conditions of employment, and it is also a source of keen regret that the revenues of our organization are not sufficient to permit us to continue our present expenditures in defense of our fellow workers in District 15; we are, however, compelled by circumstances beyond our control, to withdraw further financial support and to terminate the strike upon any terms obtainable. It is our sincere hope that all those who have participated in the struggle may be able to secure re-employment, that they may retain their interest in the organization and prepare themselves for a more successful movement at the first favorable opportunity. It is not our intention to abandon the work of organization in Colorado and Utah. We purpose continuing our efforts to organize the men of these fields.

We are,

Yours fraternally,

(Signed) JOHN MITCHELL, President U. M. W. of A.
T. L. LEWIS, Vice-President.
W. B. WILSON, Secretary-Treasurer.

Contrary to our expectations, and, I unhesitatingly assert, contrary to the best interests of their constituents, the delegates attending this convention determined to disregard our advice and to continue the strike at all hazards. A soliciting committee was appointed, circular letters were sent broadcast through the country notifying our members that the national officers had abandoned the strike, and appealing for financial aid. When the first of July arrived—the date upon which financial assistance from the national organization should cease—an additional donation of $15,000 was sent to the officers of District No. 15, accompanied by an official notification that thereafter they need expect to receive no further financial support from us. From that time until the middle of October, when the strike finally and completely collapsed, the national organization refused to render further financial assistance, although many of our local unions in various parts of the country—unacquainted with the real situation in Colorado and deceived by misleading statements sent broadcast by self-constituted committees in that field—importuned us to reconsider our former decision and to again furnish financial support to the strike in District No. 15.

It is needless to say that the failure of this strike was to us a source of sorrow and keen disappointment, and in spite of the fact that it had already cost us approximately one-half a million dollars, had there been any reasonable hope of success, we should have advised its continuance even though this course would have exhausted our national treasury; but when we are convinced beyond peradventure that a strike cannot be won, it becomes our solemn duty, regardless of criticism or condemnation, to recognize the inevitable and declare that so far as we are concerned, the strike should be brought to a close.

I have gone into this Colorado strike at considerable length because there are many mistaken impressions concerning it. In concluding my reference to it in this report, permit me to say that when the officers of District No. 15 finally concluded to advise and did advise a resumption of work, the national organization, assisted by District No. 12 and the three southwestern districts, provided a sufficient amount of money to move every victimized man and his family to some point at which he could secure work; and if there is one man left out of employment or in want, it is because of his own refusal to accept our offer of transportation.

—Meyersdale Strike—

The strike in the Meyersdale district of Pennsylvania, which was reported at the last annual convention, is still in progress. This strike, originally involving some three thousand men, grew out of the action of the operators in attempting to enforce a reduction of ten cents per ton.

Since its inauguration thousands of non-unionists have been imported, and although a large number were newly arrived immigrants totally unfamiliar with the work of mining, so many of them have been employed that the companies are getting out considerable coal; and were it not for the fact that the output of the Meyersdale district enters into close competition with coal mined in central Pennsylvania, the importance of maintaining scale rates there would not be so vital to the welfare of our organization in other fields and the wisdom of continuing the contest would be open to serious question.

At present there are from twelve to fifteen hundred families dependent upon us for support, and as this is the second winter of idleness for these people and as the winters are unusually severe in that portion of Pennsylvania, our per capita expenditure there has been greater than in other and more favored districts.

—Ohio Strike—

A very serious strike occurred in that portion of District No. 6 known as sub-District No. 5. It was caused by an attempt on the part of the operators in eastern Ohio and the Panhandle district of West Virginia to depart from the Indianapolis agreement and introduce new conditions of employment which would have amounted to a serious reduction in wages. After the strike had been in progress something over two months, an adjustment was reached which secured for our members practically all they were contending for. A limited amount of financial support was rendered by the national organization, although District No. 6 supplied from its own treasury a much larger amount for the maintenance of those who were idle.

—Alabama Strike—

You are no doubt aware that a strike of considerable magnitude and of vital importance to the present and future of our organization in the southern states, has been in progress in Alabama for the past seven months. The causes and history of this strike are set forth in clear and concise terms in the following letter from Board Member W. R. Fairley:

Birmingham, Ala., January 9, 1905.

Mr. John Mitchell, President
Indianapolis, Indiana:

Dear Sir and Brother:—The strike in Alabama has been in existence since July 1st, and I regret to say that it still continues without indication—either near or remote—of a settlement being reached.

The cause of this strike was that the furnace operators refused to grant a demand of the miners for a renewal of the scale of 1903 and 1904. This scale—a synopsis of which is appended—had been fixed by arbitration, Judge George Gray of Delaware being the umpire in the case, and was agreed upon after a very exhaustive investigation. It provided that when all grades of pig iron brought, f. o. b. cars at furnaces in Alabama,

$8.00 net, the price of mining at Pratt mines should be 47½cts per ton;

$9.00 net, the price of mining at Pratt mines should be 50cts per ton;

$9.50 net, the price of mining at Pratt mines should be 52½cts per ton;

$10.50 net, the price of mining at Pratt mines should be 55cts per ton;

$11.50 net, the price of mining at Pratt mines should be 57½cts per ton; which should be the maximum.

Instead of this the operators offered the following:

When the net price per ton of all grades of pig iron, except silvery gray white, at the furnaces in the Birmingham district is $8.50 or less, the price of pick mining on Pratt basis, shall be 40 cents per ton. When it is

|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| $9.00 | the | price | of | mining | shall | be 42½cts. |
| 9.50 | " | " | " | " | " | 45cts. |
| 10.00 | " | " | " | " | " | 47½cts. |
| 11.00 | " | " | " | " | " | 50cts. |
| 12.00 | " | " | " | " | " | 52½cts. |
| 13.00 | " | " | " | " | " | 55cts. |

The maximum price shall be 55 cents per ton.

The operators in Alabama refused to meet the miners in joint convention, as had been customary for them to do each year since the inauguration of the United Mine Workers of America in Alabama, but eventually a scale committee composed of four superintendents of mines and four members of the United Mine Workers of America, was appointed. After several conferences had been held, the committee, on July 19, disagreed, the representatives of the operators declaring their inability to pay more than they had proposed and operate their mines and furnaces without a loss. A special convention was called by the district to meet in Birmingham on July 25th, delegates being instructed to come prepared to either accept the proposition of the operators or inaugurate a strike. After hearing the report of the miners' scale committee, the convention unanimously voted to strike.

Strange to say, but true, the operators, on August 10th, offered 45 cents per ton minimum for run of mine coal when the selling price of iron averaged $9.00 per ton at the furnaces, and 57½ cents per ton when iron sold at $13.50 or more per ton at the furnaces, which was 5 cents per ton more than they declared they were able to pay, but 5 cents per ton less than the scale agreed to by the board of arbitration one year previous. Their offer was conditioned, however, upon an increase in working time of one hour per day; a return to the monthly pay day system; an average increase of 8¾ cents in the differential between pick and machine mining, on a run of mine basis; and the severance on the part of all employes, of their connection with the United Mine Workers of America. In other words, they declared that their mines would be operated in future on the principle of the closed non-union shop, as shown by their contract of employment, of which we have copies. Little success has attended the efforts the furnace operators are now making and have been making for the past six months, to work their mines under the above mentioned system.

They have procured five temporary injunctions, four in the federal and one in the state court, against the district officers and national organizers. The effect of these temporary injunctions upon our members is as unjust as if they were permanent.

The commercial operators and their employes are working under temporary contracts, paying the scale of wages and observing the conditions of employment that obtained last year; they are now paying the maximum of 57½ cents per ton run of mine coal. The furnace operators—at whose mines the strike exists—are also paying the maximum of 57½ cents per ton, the average selling price of pig iron having advanced $4.00 per ton since the strike began; thus demonstrating their ability to pay the scale of wages and to grant the conditions of employment demanded by the miners and further demonstrating their determination to destroy our organization if they possibly can, and they make no secret of that being their intention. Should they accomplish their purpose it would, in my opinion, destroy the power of our organization for good south of the Ohio river for years to come.

Respectfully submitted,

W. R. FAIRLEY.

Supplementing the statement of Board Member Fairley, I desire to say that ten thousand members of our organization were originally involved in this contest and at the present time fully eight thousand families are dependent upon the national and district organizations for support. The strike has necessitated the expenditure of a large sum of money, approximating, for relief purposes, ten thousand dollars per week.

During the past three months, and especially during the month of December, thousands of non-unionists have been recruited in the Virginias and through employment agencies in Philadelphia and New York. Assisted by the officers of the American Federation of Labor, we have sought to prevent the shipment of men from eastern points, and in this we have succeeded to a marked degree, although large numbers of non-unionists persist in accepting transportation and employment notwithstanding the fact that they are fully aware that our members are resisting conditions which, if accepted, would lead to complete demoralization of the standard of living secured through years and years of struggle and self-sacrifice on the part of the union miners of the south.

—Tennessee Strike—

During the past year many strikes were forced upon us in District No. 19, the most important ones being at Tracy and Whitwell, where the mines are operated by the Tennessee Coal, Iron, and Railroad Company, the company which is the principal factor in the strike just referred to in Alabama. The issues involved at Tracy and Whitwell are, of course, precisely the same as in Alabama.

In the Coal Creek district a strike was caused by the refusal of the companies to operate their mines on the same conditions as obtain in other parts of Tennessee. At the last scale convention, held in Knoxville, the miners of District No. 19 voted to accept a reduction of 7 per cent., but even this concession did not satisfy the avarice of the operators in the Coal Creek field, they contending that work would not be resumed unless upon the acceptance of a reduction of 15 per cent. I regret to report that a considerable number of men have been secured to work on these terms.

The strikes at Tracy and Whitwell and in the Coal Creek district of Tennessee have been and are now being supported financially by the national organization.

—Cabin Creek Strike—

For many years special efforts have been made and enormous sums of money have been expended to organize the miners of West Virginia. Two years ago we succeeded in making an agreement with the operators in the Kanawha field. Last spring this agreement was extended so as to include the operators and miners in the Cabin Creek district. It was well understood when the agreement was made—and the records of the convention confirm the understanding— that all men employed in or around the mines were to become members of our organization and a stipulated amount for dues was to be deducted monthly from their earnings.

In accordance with this agreement, everything ran along smoothly and, we presumed, satisfactorily, until about the middle of September, at which time the companies in the Cabin Creek district posted notices saying that thereafter there would be no discrimination between union and non-union men. The posting of this notice, while a distinct violation of the joint agreement, would not have caused a rupture had the companies refrained from sending their foremen around the mines with instructions to notify the miners that it would be unnecessary for them to pay dues to the organization, and by other means encouraging—if not coercing —them to sever their connection with our union. Matters reached a crisis and our district officers insisted upon a full compliance with the agreement. It was then proposed by the operators of the Cabin Creek field that their violation of contract be submitted to arbitration. When the subject was finally referred to me, I approved the action of the district officers in refusing to arbitrate a question clearly defined in the records of our convention and accepted without equivocation by seventy-five per cent. of the operators in the Kanawha field. The result is that the miners of the Cabin Creek district are on strike and are being supported from the funds of the national union.

—Morris Run Strike—

Several serious strikes have taken place in District No. 2, the most important one being at Morris Run, where an attempt is being made by the operators to enforce a greater reduction in wages than was agreed to by the operators and miners in other parts of the district. The companies are also attempting to destroy the organization. In the prosecution of this strike we have been called upon to expend a large sum of money.

THE INJUNCTION.

Every year that passes emphasizes more strongly the iniquity of the federal injunction as applied in labor disputes. During the past year injunctions have been issued in every coal field in which a strike has been inaugurated, and members of our association have been confined in jail because of alleged disregard of these injunctions, notwithstanding the fact that after our people had remained in prison for a considerable time, the very judge issuing the injunction has reversed his own action and declared that when the injunction was issued his court was without jurisdiction in the case.

It is difficult to speak in measured tones or in moderate language upon this subject. It is apparent to everyone who is acquainted with the facts, that many of these injunction judges—and especially Judge Jackson—are totally unfit to perform the functions of their sacred office. In numerous instances members of our union, when brought before these judges, have been treated with indignity and have had such abuse heaped upon them as should be countenanced by no man of impartial mind or of judicial temperament.

I wish to emphasize the fact that we ask no special privileges over other citizens or other associations; we seek no immunity from the law; but we do demand and insist upon the exercise of all the rights and all the privileges that are guaranteed us by the constitution and enjoyed by other citizens of our common country. If any member of our union violates the law he deserves to be and should be arrested, tried, and convicted for his offense, but when judges issue orders restraining trade unionists from doing that which they have a perfect moral and legal right to do, and which would be no offense if done by other citizens, and when these same judges incarcerate our people without trial, without hearing, because they refuse to surrender their constitutional liberties, then, I say, it is time to call a halt.

In the state of Alabama, one of these omnipotent judges issued an injunction restraining the members of our union, not only there but everywhere else, from doing things that they had a perfect—and a legal—right to do, and notwithstanding the fact that our attorneys have tried and tried again to get a hearing for the purpose of having the injunction dissolved, this supposed-to-be-impartial judge, upon one pretext or another, denies us the opportunity even to appear in court to move that the injunction be set aside.

For several years past a bill has been pending in the United States Congress defining the word "conspiracy," and limiting to its proper and constitutional function the authority of these federal judges. This bill will again be under consideration at the present session of Congress and it seems to me that no effort should be left untried to secure its passage. To that end, I recommend that your president or your executive board be given authority to employ one or more representatives to go to Washington and lobby in the interest of this bill.

LITIGATION.

Your attention is respectfully directed to another line of attack which has been adopted by hostile corporations against the organizations of labor; one which, if successful, will do more to destroy the usefulness of trade unions than all the agencies combined, heretofore resorted to. I refer to an attempt to mulct our organization in damages because of losses sustained through the refusal of men to work under conditions repugnant to them, and in order that you may understand the basis of this action, I herewith submit a brief statement prepared by Mr. Henry Cohen, our attorney in Colorado:

On the 2d day of December, 1903, about three weeks after the strike started in District No. 15, the Victor Fuel Company, the second largest of the corporations whose employes were on strike, filed a suit in the district court of Las Animas County, Colorado, against the United Mine Workers of America and twelve of its national and district officers.

The suit was brought to recover $85,000 damages for the loss that this company claims to have sustained by having its servants enticed from its employment, and the loss of profits consequent thereon. It also asserts that the men it afterwards employed or attempted to employ were intimidated and interfered with. A further loss is alleged because of the temporary shut-down and finally, to crown all, they want to be reimbursed for the money they expended for the deputy sheriffs who guarded the mines. Eighty-five thousand dollars is the claim for the first three weeks of the strike.

This action is based on the old English law and comes down to us from feudal times. It made one liable to answer in damages for enticing a servant from his master, and had its origin in the status of the workingmen of that period, which was one of vassalage or serfdom. The enticement, therefore, took away from the master something that belonged to him, something akin to his goods and chattels, and for this loss the suit was brought. The doctrine is no longer recognized in England and has not been for over half a century. It belongs to a period when a man who refused to work was "taken as a man infamous, and branded." In this country, a few cases in the southern states right after the war upheld the doctrine for the enticing of negroes then newly emancipated and whose employers could not get over the idea that they still owned them.

Service of summons was attempted to be made upon the U. M. W. of A. by handing a copy of the summons to its president in Trinidad, on December 3, 1903. A motion was made by our attorneys to quash the summons by which it was attempted to hold the organization, on the ground that an unincorporated association not engaged in business could not be sued by serving a summons on its officers—as is the practice when a corporation is sued—or in any other way. This motion was twice argued and was overruled by the court.

A demurrer was interposed on the ground that the complaint did not contain facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action and that the remedy sought to be invoked was obsolete and had no place in a free country where caste and class distinctions were not recognized; that men had the right to organize and to strike when conditions required it. The court overruled this demurrer also and the case will have to be tried.

On December 7, 1904, another suit was filed by this company against the Mine Workers for $491,000 for damages to that date and covering the period since the first suit was begun.

In defending these suits we have employed the very best available legal talent and it is our intention, should we be defeated in the lower courts, to appeal to the highest courts to which we may have access.

—Wales Case—

Another effort to mulct the organization in damages is being made by an attorney named Wales, of Binghamton, New York.

During the anthracite strike Mr. Wales came to me and offered some suggestions which he claimed to believe would assist in settling the strike. The plans he proposed did not appeal to me as being at all practicable and were therefore rejected; however, after the strike was over Mr. Wales opened correspondence with me as to the amount of a bill which he desired to present. Not wishing to have any controversy with him, I proposed to allow him the sum of fifty dollars for his alleged services and suggested to him that if he would send me a bill for fifty dollars, a check for that amount would be mailed him at once. A short time thereafter, while passing through the city of Buffalo, I was served with a notice summoning me to appear in court at Binghamton to defend a suit for $200,000. We have employed attorneys and are prepared to defend the case when it comes up for trial.

COAL HOISTING ENGINEERS.

In my last annual report attention was called to the action of the Boston convention and the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, by which the charter of the National Brotherhood of Coal Hoisting Engineers was revoked and the members of that organization instructed to become a part of the United Mine Workers of America. At the time this action was taken, the members of the Brotherhood of Coal Hoisting Engineers in the state of Illinois were working under a contract with the Illinois Coal Operators' Association which did not expire until November 1, 1904, and, as a consequence, little effort was made by us to enforce the decree of the American Federation of Labor.

Shortly before the expiration of their contract, the coal hoisting engineers of Illinois, disregarding the instructions of the American Federation of Labor, entered into negotiations with the Illinois Coal Operators' Association for the purpose of renewing their agreement and maintaining an independent organization. When it was proposed by the Illinois Coal Operators' Association that the engineers should accept a reduction of 5.55 per cent., as had been done by other classes of mine employes, they rebelled and insisted upon the renewal of their then-existing agreement. With the hope of avoiding a stoppage of work at the mines in Illinois, Mr. Perry, president of District No. 12, and I suggested to the operators that the differences between themselves and engineers be submitted to a board of arbitration. Acting upon this suggestion, the Illinois Coal Operators' Association proposed to the engineers that work be continued and the question of a wage scale be determined in the manner stated. The officers of the National Brotherhood of Coal Hoisting Engineers thereupon submitted the proposition to a referendum vote of their membership but, for reasons known only to themselves, it was defeated. On the first of November the engineers stopped work and fifty thousand members of our union were thrown out of employment.

After several days of idleness, it became apparent that the relations between the contending forces were so strained that reconciliation was impossible and in order to maintain the integrity of our own organization as well as to preserve the inviolability of our contracts, we found it necessary to use our influence to bring about a conference between them. When the engineers realized that we were determined upon a full compliance with our agreements, they proposed, through the secretary of their union, to accept the reduction of 5.55 per cent. This offer was rejected by the operators' association. Thereupon the executive officers of District No. 12 took up negotiations with the operators where they had been broken off by the engineers, and an agreement was made whereby all the engineers became members of the United Mine Workers of America, thus putting an end to the jurisdictional controversy which had, for several years, been a constant menace to the advancement of both organizations.

It is needless to say that we should strive to organize the engineers and the mechanical trades at every coal mine in the United States and Canada; that we should seek constantly in the future—as we have sought in the past—to secure for these classes of labor such improvement in the conditions of their employment as is commensurate with their skill and training.

WESTERN FEDERATION OF MINERS.

At our last annual convention a resolution was adopted instructing me to appoint two delegates to attend the convention of the Western Federation of Miners, for the purpose of trying to bring about a better understanding and establish a closer bond of sympathy between the two organizations. In compliance with these instructions, I appointed Chris Evans, of Ohio, and John P. White, of Iowa, and I herewith submit for your consideration the report presented by these special representatives:

Mr. John Mitchell, Denver, Colo., June 14, 1904.
President U. M. W. of A.,
Indianapolis, Ind.:

Dear Sir and Brother:—In accordance with the resolution adopted at the Fifteenth Annual Convention of the United Mine Workers of America, January 20, 1904, authorizing the president to appoint delegates to attend the Western Federation of Miners' convention, held in Denver, Colorado, May 23, 1904, and having been appointed for that purpose, we beg leave to submit our report through you to the Sixteenth Annual Convention, as follows:

On May 23, 1904, we addressed the following letter to W. D. Haywood, secretary:

"Denver, Colo., May 23, 1904.

"W. D. Haywood,
"Secretary Western Federation of Miners,
"Odd Fellows' Hall, Denver, Colo.:

"Dear Sir and Brother:—At the Fifteenth Annual Convention of the United Mine Workers of America, a resolution was passed authorizing the national president to appoint delegates to attend the next convention of the Western Federation of Miners, with the end in view of trying to bring about a better feeling between the Western Federation of Miners and the United Mine Workers of America.

"In accordance with this resolution, John P. White, president of District No. 13 of the state of Iowa, and Chris Evans, financial representative of the United Mine Workers of America, have been appointed as said committee by President Mitchell, to attend your convention for the purpose named.

"If convenient, we should consider it a favor to appear at the same time and in conjunction with the committee appointed by the American Federation of Labor.

"Very truly yours, "JOHN P. WHITE,
"CHRIS EVANS."

Referring to this letter, the following action was reported in the proceedings:

"Moved and seconded that communication be received, placed on file, and the request complied with."

After which a committee of five members was appointed to advise us that the convention was ready to receive us.

On May 25th, as per advice, we attended the morning session of the convention and were most cordially received by all delegates present. In addressing the convention we strongly advised a closer alliance between the Western Federation of Miners and the United Mine Workers of America, at the same time urging the advisability of all coal miners connecting themselves with the United Mine Workers of America, believing that it would be to the best interest of all coal miners as well as the metalliferous mine workers to do so. The general tone of our remarks was along these lines, and very close attention was given to the views expressed by us upon the necessity for a better understanding between the two organizations and the improvement of our conditions as a whole.

At the close of our remarks there was strong indication of a desire on the part of all to come closer together, and to justify this conclusion a committee of the Western Federation of Miners was appointed to confer with your committee. The following day, this committee and your delegates held a joint meeting and a very friendly discussion was entered into, after which the committee of the Western Federation of Miners retired, with the intention of reporting conclusions later.

From this time on your committee received no information upon the subject, but on page 279 of the proceedings of the convention of the Western Federation of Miners we find, since the convention adjourned, a report as follows:

"No. 78. Denver, Colo., June 6, 1904.

"To the Members of the Twelfth Annual Convention of the Western Federation of Miners.

"In view of the fact that the convention has passed a resolution favoring the exchange of transfers between the Western Federation of Miners and the United Mine Workers, that the executive board be instructed by this convention to arrange with the executive officers of the United Mine Workers of America to the end that transfer and withdrawal cards may be made uniform in all locals of both organizations.

"W. F. DAVIS, No. 19.
"W. A. MORGAN, No. 80.

"Moved and seconded that resolution be adopted. Carried."

On page 299 of the same proceedings for the afternoon of June 8th, the last session held, we again find reference made to the question of interchangeable cards.

"Transfer cards and withdrawal cards issued by the American Labor Union and the United Mine Workers of America shall be accepted by local unions of the Western Federation of Miners, subject to the rules and qualifications governing members of such locals of the Western Federation of Miners."

Again, at this same session, the following appears in the proceedings—see page 299:

"Substitute the following for Article III, Section 9, Page 13 of the constitution:

"The executive board shall consist of eleven members, including the president, vice-president, and secretary-treasurer, to be elected by the delegates at each annual convention, all of whom shall be delegates at large and entitled to the same privileges as other delegates at the convention, and one shall be a practical coal miner and known as the representative of the coal miners, regardless of district."

From this you will readily understand that up to the time the convention adjourned, we had not received any report as to the conclusion reached and our anticipations for a closer alliance at present between the Western Federation of Miners and the United Mine Workers of America have not been consummated. What may develop, the future will have to determine.

Very truly yours,

(Signed.) JOHN P. WHITE,
CHRIS EVANS.

You will observe, from the foregoing, that notwithstanding the efforts of our representatives to promote better feeling and to cement in closer unity the interests of the Western Federation of Miners and the United Mine Workers of America, the Western Federation, instead of reciprocating these fraternal overtures, proceeded to amend their constitution in such a manner as to provide for the membership of a coal miner upon their executive board. No other construction can be placed upon this action than that it is an invitation for coal miners to become members of the Western Federation, and it indicates a determination upon the part of the Western Federation to organize classes of workmen over which we exercise jurisdiction.

Our association has always confined its membership to those employed in the coal mining industry; we have repeatedly declined to accept as members those employed in metalliferous mines, although on more than one occasion application has been made to us for membership by men working in such mines. If the Western Federation of Miners persists in pursuing this hostile policy, if the organization continues in its antagonism to the United Mine Workers of America, we shall be justified in extending our jurisdiction and opening our doors to the metalliferous miners, many thousands of whom would be glad of the opportunity to enroll themselves under the banner of the United Mine Workers of America and thus be brought into affiliation with the great American labor movement.

BOARD MEETINGS.

We have made it a rule to convene the national executive board only upon occasions when questions of vital moment require attention. Four meetings were held during the past year, at which matters of more than ordinary importance to the organization were considered and satisfactorily disposed of. It is a pleasure to report that at these sessions the greatest degree of harmony has prevailed.

ORGANIZERS.

In addition to the members of the national executive board, we have employed on salary sixty-five organizers and field workers, who have been stationed in the unorganized or partially organized coal fields. Special attention has been given to the state of West Virginia, to the Connellsville and Irwin districts of Pennsylvania, and to the unorganized portions of Tennessee.

Our organizers have, on the whole, been men of ability and their work—under adverse circumstances—has been productive of good results. As heretofore, we have made it a rule to dispense with the services of organizers whenever we were convinced of their inefficiency or of conduct unfitting them for the responsible positions they hold.

MACHINE MINING.

Owing to the fact that no interstate joint convention will be held this year, an extended discussion of the effect of mining machinery and the production of machine-mined coal will not be necessary; but in order that information upon this subject may be in the hands of our local unions, I have embodied herein a table from the report of the United States Geological Survey, showing the production of machine-mined coal for the past eight years.

In 1891 the machine mines of the entire country produced 6,211,732 tons, or 6.66 per cent. of the total production.

In 1896, 16,424,932 tons, or 14.17 per cent. of total production
In 1897, 22,649,220 tons, or 16.19 " " "
In 1898, 32,413,144 tons, or 20.39 " " "
In 1899, 43,963,935 tons, or 23.00 " " "
In 1900, 52,840,523 tons, or 25.15 " " "
In 1901, 57,843,335 tons, or 25.68 " " "
In 1902, 69,611,582 tons, or 27.09 " " "
In 1903, 77,974,894 tons, or 28.18 " " "

You will observe the ever-increasing proportion of machine-mined coal. This increase is especially noticeable in those states and districts having the widest differentials and in which the machine-mine operators enjoy an unfair advantage over their competitors who operate pick mines.

It seems to me that the relation of pick to machine-mining should be a subject of more than ordinary interest to our conventions and to the membership of our local unions. It is unnecessary to repeat my previous comments upon this subject or to disavow any feeling of hostility toward the introduction of labor-saving machinery. Indeed, I look with favor upon the invention and application of all labor-saving devices, but I insist that, in all fairness, labor should share in the benefits resultant from the installation of such machinery.

THE DEATH ROLL OF INDUSTRY.

There is one phase of our industrial life upon which we have heretofore made no official comment and which has received at our hands much less consideration than its importance warrants. I refer to the awful and ever-increasing loss of life and limb in coal mines. During the past year I have given this subject much thought, especially since I had the opportunity of observing conditions in the old countries and the effect of legislation for the prevention of accidents there.

It is, of course, impossible by legislation or by any other human agency, entirely to prevent fatalities or injuries in coal mines, or, indeed, in any hazardous calling; but it seems to me that the number of persons killed and injured in the coal mines of this country is altogether disproportionate to the natural dangers, and that these accidents could be materially reduced by the enactment of wise laws or even by the rigid enforcement of those now on our statute books.

A striking illustration of the life-saving effect of precautionary legislation is found in the Indian Territory. Some years ago, through the efforts of the officers of District No. 21, assisted by your national representatives, a bill was introduced in the United States Congress requiring the coal companies of the Indian Territory to employ shot-firers and to take other steps to provide against the terrible loss of life that had characterized the mining industry of that field. At this point it may not be amiss to remind you that the mines of the Indian Territory are more gaseous and that work in them is more hazardous than in any other district in the United States. Prior to the enactment of this law, one man lost his life for each 49,424 tons of coal produced, or 7.31 men lost their lives for each 1,000 men employed; whereas after the passage of the law, 85,478 tons of coal were produced for each life lost, or 5.92 men were killed or fatally injured per 1,000 employed. If results of this kind follow the enactment of such laws in the Indian Territory, there is no good reason to doubt that there would be a corresponding decrease in the number of accidents in other states were similar laws enacted and enforced.

For your information I submit herewith a tabulated statement copied from the report of the United States Geological Survey, which gives in detail the number of persons killed and injured during the years 1901 and 1902 in each state in which coal is produced.

| STATE | Number of Men Killed | | Number of Men Injured | | Number of Lives Lost per 1,000 Employes | | Number of Tons Mined for Each Life Lost | |
| | 1901 | 1902 | 1901 | 1902 | 1901 | 1902 | 1901 | 1902 |
| Alabama | 41 | 50 | (a) | (a) | 2.36 | 3.04 | 221,928 | 207,091 |

(a) 1902 not reported.
(b) 1902 averaged.

(d) 1902 includes only men so injured as to lose one month of time.

No doubt many of the injuries and fatalities occurring in coal mines are due to the employment of men having no knowledge of mining, men utterly incompetent to protect their own lives and whose ignorance endangers the lives of all other men employed in the mine with them, but it seems to me that a large number of accidents are attributable to inadequate legislation or to the lax enforcement of our present laws.

There is, however, another and an important element which contributes in no small degree to the loss of life and limb in the industries of our country. Under the common employment or fellow-servant laws of most of our states, it is impossible for an injured man or the heirs of a workman who has been killed, to collect adequate damages, even though the workman himself were in no wise guilty of contributory negligence.

What we need is, first, the enactment of reasonable employers' liability laws; second, improved ventilation laws; third, laws requiring the employment of shot-firers in gaseous mines; and to that end I earnestly recommend that our various district organizations have prepared and presented to the legislatures of their respective states such bills as are necessary to protect and adequately safeguard the lives, the limbs, and the health of our craftsmen.

MINING—A SKILLED TRADE.

Reference to reports compiled by the various state inspection and labor bureaus discloses the fact that the number of men who have secured employment in the coal mines of the United States during the past several years is out of all reasonable proportion to the number required to produce all the coal that is or can be consumed in the United States and to supply our export trade. In the past four years the number of mine employes has increased from 410,635 to 566,260. You will thus observe that at the close of the year 1903 there were 155,625 more men employed in the coal mining industry than at the close of the year 1899, and it is safe to assume that there was a corresponding increase in the year 1904. This great increase cannot be attributed to the employment of miners' sons or to the employment of skilled miners from other countries; it must be the result of an influx of men having no previous knowledge of coal mining and therefore unacquainted with the intricacies or the hazard of our trade.

Coal mining is and should be a skilled trade. The very nature of our work, cut off, as we are, from the pure air and the sunlight, places the life of each in the keeping of every other employe. Therefore, while seeking no monopoly of our trade and having no desire to limit production, we should, nevertheless, feel in duty bound to protect the calling to which we have given our best energies and, above all, to safeguard our lives from those who are incompetent and ignorant of the dangers to which we are daily subjected. There are many other reasons that might be given in favor of requiring a certain standard of efficiency before a man may be admitted to our trade. In nearly every joint conference our organization is charged by the operators with encouraging wastefulness and with deterioration of our product while, as a matter of fact, any deterioration that may exist is due entirely to the great influx of incompetent men, thousands upon thousands of whom never saw a coal mine until they were given employment and the appellation of "miner."

There are numerous organizations in this country that refuse admission to men and whose membership refuse to work with men who cannot measure up to a certain standard of efficiency; and in many trades the law of the state requires that men shall stand and pass an examination as to their qualifications before they may be employed. Especially is this true of industries in which the lives of the workmen are dependent upon the skill of those engaged in the occupation.

But we need not go outside the mining industry to find precedent and justification for our attitude on this subject. In the anthracite coal regions of Pennsylvania a miner may not have charge of a working place except after passing an examination and securing a certificate of competency. In the state of Illinois the law provides that a man cannot have charge of a working place unless he has had two years' experience. A man with less than two years' experience cannot become a miner except he work in partnership with a competent miner having had such experience.

In summing up these observations, I desire to suggest that the question of securing the enactment of laws for the protection of our trade be given your earnest consideration, and I recommend that a special committee be selected to which this subject shall be referred, with instructions to report the result of its deliberation before the close of the convention.

CHILD LABOR.

The lack of uniformity in the various state laws regulating the employment of boys in coal mines is a matter that should receive attention from the members of our organization, and an earnest effort should be made to raise the age limit at which boys may be so employed. In some of our states, notably in Illinois, no boy who is less than sixteen years of age is permitted to enter the mines. In other states it is lawful for boys to enter the mines at the age of twelve. It seems to me that an effort should be made by the members of our organization to have the state legislatures pass laws prohibiting the employment in coal mines of boys who are less than sixteen years of age; and it should also be unlawful for coal companies to employ as outside workers boys who are less than fourteen years of age.

I am conscious of the fact that the enactment of such measures is not favored by all the members of our union and I am also aware that the enforcement of such laws would work hardship upon widows or parents having large families of dependent children; and if it were possible to make exceptions in extraordinary cases, I think such exceptions should be provided for; but in any event I believe it should be the constant aim of society to secure for the children of our land the very best opportunity for physical and intellectual growth. In this work labor unions have done yeoman service and there is no one thing that so commends them to the favorable consideration of the public as the efforts they have made in behalf of the child of the mine, the mill, and the factory.

THE UNION LABEL.

Every year I have directed the attention of our membership to the importance of purchasing goods manufactured or produced by organized workmen and bearing the trade union label, and I have repeatedly recommended to our locals that committees be appointed for the purpose of visiting retail merchants and impressing upon them the necessity of handling and offering for sale goods produced by union labor. That these efforts have met with a fair degree of success is attested by the officers of the various organizations using the union label. In this report I wish to reiterate these recommendations and to emphasize as strongly as I can the vital importance of decisive action along these lines.

At no time in the history of the trade union movement has this emblem of fair wages, sanitary workshops, and reasonable conditions of employment been so bitterly assailed by the enemies of trade unionism as at present. It is a matter of common knowledge among those familiar with the industrial situation, that the Manufacturers' Association and the Citizens' Alliance are doing all in their power to discountenance the use of the union label and to discredit manufacturers who have placed it upon their goods.

Of course, it may be said that as coal miners we have no direct interest in the union label since our product cannot bear it, but this is an incorrect view to take and one which, fortunately, is entertained by very few of our members. The interests and the welfare of the various trades are so closely interwoven that the prosperity or the adversity of one organization correspondingly affects every other organization. If it were possible to weaken or destroy the unions using the label, it would be only a question of time until disaster would overtake the organizations of those crafts, which, owing to the nature of their product, cannot make use of the label.

There are many other reasons why the members of our organization should give active support to their fellow trade unionists in other crafts and callings. We should ever keep in mind and should seek constantly to repay the debt of gratitude we owe to the organized workers of our country for the material aid and sympathy given us by them during the days of adversity when we were compelled to fight for our very existence.

In summing up our duties in respect to this question, I desire to recommend specifically that the following action be taken:

First: That each local union, which has not already done so, appoint a standing committee of not less than three members, whose duty it shall be to visit the various merchants and impress upon them the necessity of handling and offering for sale products manufactured by organized workmen and bearing the union label.

Second: That at least ten minutes at each local meeting be set aside for the purpose of hearing the reports of such committees and for a general discussion upon the subject of the union label.

Third: That wherever it is possible to do so, auxiliary organizations composed of the mothers, wives, daughters, and sisters of coal miners be formed, to the end that they may become familiar with the various union labels and impressed with the importance of purchasing goods bearing them.

Fourth: That, as a primary means to the consummation of these objects, our local unions see to it that there is organized in every mining community a branch of the Retail Clerks' International Protective Association. By doing this it will bring into co-operation with us the men and women who, by reason of their employment, are in a position to render us invaluable assistance.

FINANCIAL REQUIREMENTS.

It may not be amiss at this time to call your attention to the fact that one year from next April our joint agreements expire in practically every coal-producing district—both bituminous and anthracite—in the United States. Reference to the reports of commercial agencies and trade journals seems to indicate an approaching revival of business and a period of industrial activity. If these predictions are realized, we should be able to regain the loss in wages sustained one year ago and to improve conditions of employment in those districts in which no reductions were forced upon us. It is, of course, unnecessary to say that our ability to make further advancement—or even to retain our present standard of living and wages—will depend in no small degree, upon the strength and solidarity of our union and in making preparations for that time, we should not only strive with all our energies to perfect our organization numerically, but we should also make provision for the maintenance of our people should we be so unfortunate as to become involved in a strike.

I am, of course, hopeful that we shall be able to reach a satisfactory settlement upon the expiration of our present contracts, but, nevertheless, there is always the possibility of disagreement; and as far as I am personally concerned I have determined that—under normal conditions—the present scale of wages, the present standard of living among the coal miners of this country shall never be lowered with my consent. There are times when workmen are called upon to and should share in the loss of profits which follows periods of industrial depression, but there is a standard below which men cannot maintain themselves and their families, and below this point the wages of organized workmen cannot be permitted to fall.

A reference to the financial report of your secretary-treasurer will impress you more forcibly than any words of mine could do, with the necessity of providing funds for the maintenance of strikes. In the words of Washington, "To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace." And you should bear in mind that those organizations which are best prepared for strikes are called upon least frequently to engage in them. Years ago it was customary, when strikes were engaged in, for those involved to depend upon their own resources and it was rare, indeed, that the organization was called upon to furnish funds to maintain a strike that lasted for less than four or five months; but as things are now a strike is no sooner inaugurated than a demand is made for financial relief. This is especially true of the unorganized or the newly organized districts, where many men seem to believe that they are conferring a greater favor upon the organization than they are upon themselves and their families when they make a demand for increased wages or when they strike in opposition to a reduction in wages. But whatever the causes, the strikes that have taken place during the past few years have established a precedent which cannot well be departed from, and when men strike now we are compelled, within certain limitations, to provide them with the necessities of life. The funds for this purpose can come only from one source—unless our membership provide us with the money we cannot supply it to those who are on strike. And if we are to make adequate preparation for our next interstate convention we must have a large fund at our disposal so that we may in the interim, resist any attempts to reduce wages in the outlying districts or any efforts to weaken the strength and influence of our union.

In order that our entire membership might be familiar with the financial affairs of the organization, a circular letter was sent to each local, so as to enable the membership to give you such instructions as were deemed necessary in disposing of this question.

I have no specific recommendations to make as to the method of providing this fund, but refer it to you with the request that you give it most serious consideration.

In concluding this already over-long report, permit me to thank you and, through you, the officers and members of our organization, for many evidences of friendship and confidence. I have endeavored to the extent of my ability, to defend the interests and advance the welfare of my craftsmen everywhere. During the years I have had the honor to serve in official position, I have seen our organization grow from comparative insignificance to its present strength and standing. I have also seen a decided improvement in the wages and conditions under which our people work and live; but I am ambitious for further improvement; I am anxious to see the coal miners of the United States and Canada so thoroughly organized that none among them shall be without a union card. It is, of course, needless to say that the officers, both district and national, can accomplish little unless they have the confidence and support of the membership.

With the earnest hope that your deliberations may be profitable and successful and asking your indulgence and co-operation in conducting this convention, this report is respectfully submitted.

At the conclusion of the address it was referred to the Committee on Officers' Reports.

President Mitchell in the chair.

Vice-President Lewis read his annual address, which was referred to the Committee on Officers' Reports.

To the Officers and Delegates of the Sixteenth Annual Convention of the U. M. W. of A.:

In compliance with my duty as one of your representatives, I herewith submit to you, and, through you, to the members of the United Mine Workers of America, my annual report.

The difficulty in securing a wage agreement in the central competitive coal field, last year, is too well known to you to need any comment from me in this report. After the ultimatum of the operators had been accepted by a referendum vote of the members in those districts in which contracts expired on the first of April, it was thought by all that serious trouble in the mining industry had been averted.

In addition to the interstate joint conventions held in Indianapolis, it was my privilege to attend nine other joint conventions of operators and mine workers, in West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and the Southwest. The most important of these being in West Virginia, Eastern Ohio and the Southwest—known as Districts Nos. 14, 21 and 25.

JOINT CONVENTIONS.

In the latter part of March the joint convention of the Kanawha district of West Virginia was held in Charleston.

The miners were confronted with a demand from the operators of a horizontal reduction of 12½ per cent. in all items of the scale. Owing to the peculiar conditions existing in the other sections of that state, the miners demanded a renewal of the mining rate of the previous year and a change in the conditions of employment. Several times during the deliberations of the convention, it seemed that there was no prospect of reaching an agreement. After more than a week spent in discussing every phase of the situation, a contract was signed for two years embodying a reduction of 5.55 per cent. Before an agreement was reached, however, the operators on Cabin and Armstrong creeks withdrew from the convention, refusing to accept the final proposition presented to the convention. This proposition carried with it the abolition of a differential of five (5) cents per ton on run of mine coal, which had existed in favor of those operators working the gas seam on the above named creeks.

In the early part of April, the operators on Armstrong and Cabin creeks signed an agreement with the representatives of the United Mine Workers, abolishing 2½ cents per ton of the differential for the first nine months of the contract period, and beginning with January 1, 1905, the other 2½ cents per ton should be abolished by advancing the mining rate that amount per ton.

Those contracts were made in good faith and seemed to be satisfactory, but a disagreement arose in regard to Section No. 4 of the Charleston contract which reads as follows:

"The mining rate per ton for splint or hard coal shall be fixed upon a run of mine basis, but screened lump coal may be mined provided the increased rate paid for screened lump coal shall be according to the percentage of screenings in producing screened lump as against mine run coal."

The operators contended that the miners were not entitled to a test under this clause, and the Belmont mine suspended operations. The miners' representatives agreed to an arrangement to arbitrate the question in dispute and a decision was to be rendered by July 1st. The failure to agree on an umpire resulted in no arbitration. Some time after, when the Belmont Coal Company had completed repairs, the mine was started in full operation.

Later the Cabin creek operators, for some reason best known to themselves, posted notices at their mines which were supplemented with such instructions to several of the mine managers that it nullified the terms of the Charleston joint agreement, to which they were parties. Every possible effort was made by the United Mine Workers' representatives to have the trouble adjusted, the terms of the Charleston agreement observed by all interested and mutual relations continued between those operators and their employes. But our efforts in this direction were of no avail. The operators on Cabin creek seemed to be determined to place their own construction on the contract and refused to recede from their arbitrary position, and so the peaceful relations that existed on Cabin creek have been temporarily suspended by the miners being compelled to strike to enforce the terms of a contract mutually agreed upon. The operators in the Kanawha district, with the exception of those mentioned, are observing the terms of the Charleston contract.

In the early part of April, I attended the joint convention of Sub-District No. 5, Eastern Ohio, which was held in Wheeling, West Virginia. The mine workers' representatives did not anticipate any serious trouble in reaching an agreement, but the operators proposed a change in the system of paying for narrow work in machine mines which, together with the proposed rules, meant a greater reduction in the earning power of the men than that provided by the interstate wage agreement made with the operators. The proposition of the operators I considered unreasonable and would not agree to it or advise its acceptance by the miners. However, it was agreed at that convention to continue the mines in operation under the old system, less the Indianapolis reduction, until May 1st. Later the mine workers in that sub-district, through their representatives in another convention, decided to accept the change in the method of paying for narrow work in machine mines. Even then an agreement was not made until a strike took place and lasted for over five weeks and involved over ten thousand men.

In July I attended the Joint convention of Districts Nos. 14, 21 and 25 in Pittsburg, Kansas. The joint convention of operators and miners was organized. Propositions for a renewal of a wage contract were submitted. The miners demanded an advance of 8 1-3 per cent. in the mining rate and the same for day labor; the establishment of differentials for mining and a readjustment of the conditions of employment and prices for dead work which meant a much larger advance than 8 1-3 per cent.

The operators demanded a reduction equal to three (3) cents per ton run of mine coal at the basing points in those districts; the same reduction in the day wage scale as provided by the Indianapolis agreement, and a readjustment of the conditions of employment.

The extreme views of the operators and miners' representatives, as expressed in the two propositions, and the positive manner in which each side stated their positions in the early proceedings, made it appear a hopeless task to secure a contract.

The operators believed, according to their statements, that there was no question of doubt but that their employes would accept a reduction equal to the one accepted by the miners in the central competitive districts.

The miners' representatives were determined that an advace should be paid in the mining rate and that day labor and local conditions of employment should be readjusted.

More than a week's time was taken up with a discussion of the various propositions offered, when finally the operators submitted the following proposition in the form of an ultimatum:

"The existing interstate, district and Texas agreements to be continued without any change or addition whatever, except as follows:

" 'Day wage, yardage, dead work and deficient work to be reduced throughout 5.55 per cent., except the day wage scale in the Texas mines, which shall be reduced one-half of the above amount.

" 'Interstate and district scale to be signed simultaneously at Pittsburg, and to expire March 31, 1906.'

"This does not cover the time at which, nor the place at which, the next interstate convention shall be held."

In addition to this proposition, there was a verbal understanding in the Joint Sub-Scale Committee that several local matters would be taken up for adjustment. Among some of the local questions that were to be adjusted was the issuing of semi-monthly statements to the miners of Kansas; the adjustment of brushing in the northern part of Kansas, by the president of that district, and the commissioner of the operators; the arrangement of a scale for the top vein at Cherokee in District No. 14, and adjustment of questions in dispute at Cameron in District No. 21.

Even after this ultimatum of the operators was submitted a disagreement was about to take place. A motion was made to adjourn the conference because many of the operators were opposed to the terms of their own proposition, claiming they could not pay such rates, and, on the other hand, the miners' representatives were unwilling to accept the final proposition of the operators as a basis of settlement.

It was decided to refer the question to the delegates in the convention. The miners' convention met and resolved to convene in separate district meetings. Every phase of the situation was discussed and the miners' delegates finally decided to submit the ultimatum of the operators to the local unions of the three districts. The operators' proposition submitted to the local unions was accepted; and what might have been another bitter struggle in the Southwest was averted.

A glance at the proposition which was accepted will show that the agreement provided for a renewal of the mining rate, but a reduction in the day labor and dead work scale equal to that accepted by the mine workers of the central competitive field.

To those who do not understand the situation in the Southwest and the conditions confronting the delegates in the joint convention, it is necessary to make a brief explanation why the day labor scale was reduced when the mining rate was not.

It was evident from the statements made, the arguments presented and the reasons advanced in the convention by all parties that the mining rate in the Southwest had not previously advanced in the same proportion as in the eastern states. For that, and other reasons, the Indianapolis reduction did not necessarily apply in the Southwest.

With reference to the day wage scale the records of the previous year showed that the principal argument in favor of the day wage scale agreed to at that time, was that they should have the same scale of wages for day men in the southwest as in the eastern mining states. So far as argument was concerned, it was impossible to refute the records. It was evident if the same day wage scale should exist in all the mining districts the previous year, and a uniform scale of wages was agreed to practically on the strength of that argument, it could not consistently be argued that it should not continue to exist another year.

Another feature of the southwest agreement is that it was made for a period of nineteen (19) months and expires March 31, 1906, instead of September of that year.

In connection with the termination of contracts, I have done everything in my power to have all agreements expire on the same date—March 31, 1906—so that if a crisis does confront us at that time, we will be able to act together in a common cause to defend our rights as mine workers of the entire country.

In addition to the joint conventions that I attended, I have visited many mining localities and held conferences and meetings for the purpose of adjusting disputes and to encourage the men to strengthen the organization. Among the places visited were West Virginia, western and central Pennsylvania, the coke regions, and, in the month of August, the anthracite field.

The check-docking boss controversy was assuming serious proportions at this time. Talk of a general strike was rife in the newspapers, and in some instances the mine workers were becoming very restless. A conference was held with the district presidents in Scranton and another conference was held in Philadelphia, at which time I advised that the position of the district presidents, as expressed to the operators on the conciliation board, be modified, in order that the entire question could be submitted to Judge Gray for his review and decision. This was done and the decision of Judge Gray sustained the claim of the miners.

FOREIGN-SPEAKING MINE WORKERS.

In my report to the Thirteenth Annual Convention of the United Mine Workers of America, I submitted the following:

"There are thousands of foreign-speaking men employed in and around the mines of this country. They should be educated as to what are the objects in uniting our forces. Many of them are here for the purpose of making homes and becoming American citizens; others are here through deception, and, on account of their circumstances, are unable to leave the localities to which they were induced to go, even had they so desired.

"They depend upon their labor for a livelihood and are with us to stay. It is gratifying to learn that when the foreign-speaking people understand that the purpose of the organization is to advance wages, improve conditions of employment and protect their rights as laboring men and citizens of this country, they are ever ready to become members and co-operate with us in carrying into effect the objects of the United Mine Workers of America.

"The foreign-speaking mine workers have the same interest in the United Mine Workers as all others who are members, and when its advantages are pointed out, evince a keen desire to become fully acquainted with the purposes of the United Mine Workers' organization and its method of doing business. It is our duty to give them every reasonable opportunity of understanding the mission of the union and the rules governing our employment in and around the mines.

"There should be issued to all foreign-speaking members, in their own language, circulars explaining the principles of the United Mine Workers, the purpose for which it is organized and the benefits which have accrued to us by reason of having an organization. There should also be printed in the various languages the interstate and other joint agreements covering territory in which the foreign-speaking mine workers reside. Those members of the organization should be made to feel that we have a greater interest in them than merely to have them become members of the union."

Since presenting the foregoing to you in a former convention, a wider acquaintance with the conditions existing in every mining district has more and more conclusively driven home to my mind the necessity and importance of doing what was briefly outlined on this subject in my previous reports.

Aside from those financially interested, not many seem to realize the import of this question and its bearing on all our industrial conditions, especially that of coal mining.

Of the nearly six hundred thousand mine workers in this country, it is safe to say that at least one-third of them do not speak the English language. This vast army of foreign-speaking men are wage-earners and struggle side by side with us for the necessaries of life.

It is assumed by many when mentioning the non-English speaking people, that they are illiterate in the extreme and not capable of understanding American ideas, American institutions and particularly the object of the American labor unions.

The report of the commissioner of immigration shows that from 53 per cent. in the most illiterate countries, to 97 per cent. in the most enlightened countries, of the immigrants who landed in this country in 1903 can read and write in their own language, and probably this proportion of that class of people will hold good in mining communities.

If those who work in the mines can not read the English language, then so long as they can read their own language, it is our business as a matter of protection; it is our duty as American citizens and wage-earners to furnish them with the literature which they can understand and in which they are most interested.

Is it not plain to every thinking man, that we must be vitally interested in making this great army of laboring men understand what is to their interests as well as ours?

Can we make it clear to them in the English language, which they do not understand?

Is not the application of the old saying, "That a stitch in time saves nine," of special force in this instance?

It is known in many instances, foreign-speaking mine workers have been imposed upon outrageously by operators who have failed to pay them for their labor, even after contracts were made with the United Mine Workers. But this was no doubt the intention when they were employed.

It is a notorious fact that this class of people have been deceived, through the employment agencies and the agents of corporations who bring them into mining districts to displace laboring men who were resisting the unreasonable demands of employers.

It will be news, perhaps, to many of the United Mine Workers that men have been kept by force in the communities into which they were deceived into going.

It is time to act and I shall offer in this convention resolutions asking the co-operation of the United Mine Workers in carrying out these suggestions.

ORGANIZERS AND ORGANIZATION.

During the year there has been kept in the field a large force of organizers in addition to the national board members. On account of general strikes in some districts and many local troubles in others, the time of the board members and organizers could not be devoted entirely to the work of organizing. Considering the numerous difficulties to overcome, the reports of my colleagues will show that numerically the organization has held its own.

The opposition to the organization has become so pronounced that in some districts, the organizers have been viciously assaulted by guards who are employed by corporations antagonistic to labor unions. Some method should be provided for the protection of those entrusted with the work of organizing.

In a crisis, there is no doubt in my mind but that the United Mine Workers could bring to its standard every mine worker in the country. While this may be true, it would be much better if every mine worker was an active member and thoroughly understood the principles of the organization. To bring about this much-desired condition in the mining industry, there are still a few districts that should be made to understand the benefits of being with the United Mine Workers of America. The men in those districts must be aroused to a proper sense of their duty to themselves and their fellow men.

OBSERVATIONS.

In my visits to different mining districts and from information obtained through the reports of the organizers, my opinions of the past have become a firm conviction—that the members of the United Mine Workers are not as familiar with the terms of the wage agreements as they should be. The principles of the organization are not thoroughly understood. The relation of the mine workers in one district with those of another district, does not receive that consideration necessary for a perfect understanding between the members and the success of the movement. This condition is not confined to any particular locality.

An effective organization requires active members. A strong organization must be composed of intelligent men. A powerful organization should be composed of a membership capable of forming intelligent conclusions without being urged to do so by the official representatives of the union. To command the respect of others, we must respect ourselves, and let it be remembered that every reform comes from the ranks.

SUGGESTIONS.

We live in an age of concerted effort. Action in every walk of life emanates from the combined energies of the many interested along certain lines. The individual to be successful cannot stand alone. He must co-operate with his fellow man or stand aside and be pronounced a failure.

We are brought more and more fully to realize the tremendous power of co-operation and the dependency of individuals upon each other in every walk of life. Religious, educational and financial institutions have a new life, sprung into existence from united effort in their various spheres, and all having a bearing on the bed rock of human progress—LABOR.

Notwithstanding the tremendous impulse given to every movement through unity of purpose, there are some men among employers of labor and controllers of finance, who would deny that unity of action among laboring people that they, themselves, exercise in their every day affairs.

They cry down organized effort among the laboring people, under the false alarm of encroachment on "Individual Liberty." They arrogate to themselves to organize capital under the sacred name of "Vested Rights." The time is at hand to bring forcibly to the attention of this class of people that in an era of concerted effort, such as we have, there is no such thing as individual liberty among working people, if they are denied the liberty to co-operate with their fellow working men to better their conditions and secure a brighter future.

It has been stated and repeated many times that the labor union is here to stay. Let us put ourselves on record in the most positive manner, that so long as one dollar has a right under the law to pile itself upon another dollar for investment, just that long will one laboring man insist on the right under the law to place himself shoulder to shoulder with his fellow working man and dictate the terms upon which they will accept the dollars.

Capital has rights under the law, so has labor. Capital has a right to be invested through human agencies, either in dollars singly or in combination with millions of other dollars. So has labor a right to act singly or in conjunction with all his fellow laborers. This is no mawkish sentiment, but the statement of a condition. Capital and labor should co-operate and work together; but if there must be a struggle between dollars and men, then men should and must be triumphant.

These few thoughts are expressed to you with a desire that they will prompt you to more closely study the industrial conditions of the country, in order that you may be better prepared to deal with and properly solve what is commonly termed the labor problem.

CONCLUSION.

In closing this report, I take this occasion to say that my relation with my official colleagues, the National President, the National Secretary, the members of the National Executive Board, the organizers and those I have had occasion to meet in the National Office and the various districts I have visited, has been of a cordial and pleasant nature, and to them all I express my thanks and appreciation for the courtesies extended to me.

To the delegates in this convention, and those they represent,

I return my thanks for the honor that has been repeatedly conferred on me.

Let me assure you I shall at all times try to conduct myself so that I may merit your confidence and respect.

Secretary-Treasurer Wilson read his report. The report was referred to the Committee on Officers' Reports.

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Convention:

At the close of business November 30, 1903, we had on hand in the national treasury $1,106,198.68. Our income during the year was $851,772.86, making a total of $1,957,971.54. Our expenditures for the same period was $1,354,019.22, leaving a balance on hand at the close of business November 30, 1904, of $603,952.32. It will thus be seen that our expenditures were $502,246.36 more than our income, making it necessary for us to draw from our reserve funds to that amount in order to meet the current expenses of the year.

Of this large expenditure $1,067,300.47 was paid for aid to strikers, $437,575.10 of which was paid to District 15 in support of the strike in Colorado and Utah. The strike in that district began on November 9, 1903, and we continued furnishing support to it until June 30, 1904. When the strike began there was approximately eight thousand men involved, but the number was gradually reduced by some men leaving and others returning to work so that in the last two or three months before we discontinued furnishing aid there was not more than two thousand five hundred men still on strike. Yet during these three months the national organization was furnishing fifteen thousand dollars per week for the support of those on strike in addition to what it furnished before that. We have been severely criticised for not furnishing sufficient funds to maintain the strikers in Colorado and Utah.

We have never furnished as much support, in proportion to the number of men involved, in any of our previous strikes. Our organization is not conducted on an insurance basis. If it had been, a comparatively small amount of money would have been necessary to maintain our members in the various strikes they have been engaged in. We have been compelled to furnish support to non-union men who came on strike, in order to protect the interests of all miners, whether union or non-union. While our system of finance does not place us upon an insurance basis a sentiment has rapidly grown amongst miners generally, that whenever a strike is inaugurated the men engaged in it are entitled to generous support from the funds of the national treasury.

There is nothing in our laws upon which such a claim can be based, yet the first question asked by men when they come on strike, whether they are members of our organization or not, is, "How much aid are we going to get and how soon will we get it?"

This idea has grown so strong, and has become so fixed in the minds of the miners, that it is impossible to change it.

We can not hope to conduct our strikes in the future as we did in the early days of the organization. The strikers must be supported or the strike will go to pieces to the serious injury of the entire craft as well as those actually engaged in the conflict. Our present revenues are inadequate to meet the necessities of the situation. We have a ten cents per month per capita tax and for some time we have had an assessment of ten cents per month per member.

It would have taken a per capita tax of thirty-seven cents per month per member to have paid the expenditures of the organization during last year. Our present weekly expenditures are much greater than the average weekly expenditures for the year just closed, and if continued will require nearly fifty cents per month per member to maintain them. We may not be able to collect a per capita tax of fifty cents per month per member for the national organization, but the time will come, sooner or later, when it will be absolutely necessary to do so. In the meantime we must have more money with which to meet the obligations of the organization.

I therefore recommend that the national per capita tax be increased to twenty-five cents per month per member.

The paid-up membership of the organization by districts for the month of November, 1904, is as follows:

Vice-President Lewis—I move you that the Chair be authorized to appoint special committees to consider recommendations made in his report.

The motion was seconded and carried.

Delegate Haskins—I move you that time limit for the introduction of resolutions be set for the hour of adjournment Wednesday evening.

The motion was seconded and carried.

The convention then adjourned to meet at 9 o'clock a. m., Tuesday, January 17th.

SECOND DAY—MORNING SESSION.

The convention was called to order at 9 o'clock a. m., Tuesday, January 17, President Mitchell in the chair.

None of the regular committees being ready to report, the chairman announced that reports would be heard from the delegates to the American Federation of Labor Convention and the delegates to the International Mining Congress, held in Paris, France.

Vice-President Lewis presided while President Mitchell read the following reports:

"The 24th annual convention of the American Federation of Labor was held in Lyric Hall, San Francisco, California, November 14th to 26th, 1904. Addresses of welcome were delivered by J. O. Walsh, president of the San Francisco Labor Council; Harry Knox, president of the California State Federation of Labor; J. Williams of the City Front Federation; P. H. McCarthy, president of the California State Building Trades Council, and Mayor Schmitz of San Francisco.

"There were 173 unions represented—seventy-eight international organizations, thirteen state, thirty-three central, forty-five trade and federal labor union; the British Trade Union Congress, the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress, the Women's International Union Label League, and the National Women's Trade Union League.

"According to Secretary Morrison's report, the total receipts for the year ending September 30, 1904, were $220,995.97; the expenses, $203,991.15; balance on hand October 1, 1904, $103,017.94. The average paid-up membership was 1,676,200, a gain of 210,400 over last year.

"Charters were granted during the year to the following international unions:

"Tackmakers' International Union.

"International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers.

"International Union of Paper Box Workers.

"International Union of Building Employes of America.

"International Brotherhood of Foundry Employes.

"International Compressed Air Workers' Union.

"Brushmakers' International Union.

"Mattress, Spring and Bedding Workers' International Union.

"National Association of Heat, Frost, General Insulators and Asbestos Workers of America.

"The Executive Council reported the endorsement of the labels of the following organizations during the year, which action was ratified by the convention:

"International Brotherhood of Tip Printers.

"Brushmakers' International Union.

"Glove Workers' International Union.

"Amalgamated Leather Workers.

"Resolutions were adopted declaring in favor of a more strict observance of factory inspection laws; of having the terms of the Chinese exclusion law extended to cover Japanese and Korean immigration; against anti-scalping legislation; initiative and referendum and questioning candidates for nominations for Congress and state legislatures; for women's rights; to use measures to aid in checking the spread of tuberculosis; for the encouragement and organization of labor leagues; to assist in passage of pending bills in the interests of seamen; to assist in securing payment of claims for pay for overtime; to demand for the Porto Ricans the same rights and privileges as enjoyed by American citizens; passage and enforcement of laws abolishing child labor; for the organization of women workers; endorse the organization of women's auxiliaries to trade unions; for the demand of union labeled products; to assist in the passage of a law prohibiting the competition of enlisted musicians with civilian musicians; to support candidates pledged in advance to pay due regard to the sanitary conditions in the respective municipalities, and to urge the removal of unhealthful conditions in the places where such reforms are needed.

"An assessment of one cent per member per week for three weeks was ordered levied by the convention on every member affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, for the assistance of the United Textile Workers on account of members on strike at Fall River, Mass.

"The convention adopted, among others, the following resolution:

" 'Whereas, The governor of Colorado, acting with the Citizens' Alliance in its fight on labor organizations of that state, has exhausted every form of oppression and persecution; they have torn men from their families, imprisoned them in bull pens, and deported them, not only to other counties, but to other states; they have set aside every constitutional provision that guarantees the citizen the right to liberty, and try to restore the condition of serfdom that obtained in the middle ages, and

" 'Whereas, The people of the state of Colorado, notwithstanding that they voted for the Republican candidate for President, yet set the seal of condemnation on Governor Peabody and his methods by defeating him, thus showing clearly that adherents of all parties united against him, and

" 'Whereas, Governor Peabody has declared that he will not abide by the decision of the majority of the people of Colorado, and threatens to engage in civil war if he cannot usurp the place of governor for another term, therefore be it

" 'Resolved, By the American Federation of Labor, in convention assembled, that we condemn in most unmeasured terms this threat of setting aside all right and justice by this minion of the Citizens' Alliance, who, "dressed with a little brief authority," tries to make himself a military dictator, and we extend to the people of Colorado our sympathy in being afflicted with an executive who has not the saving grace of stepping down and out after having been summarily repudiated by them.'

"The following officers and delegates were elected:

"President—Samuel Gompers, cigarmaker.
"First Vice-President—James Duncan, granite cutter.
"Second Vice-President—John Mitchell, coal miner.
"Third Vice-President—James O'Connell, machinist.
"Fourth Vice-President—Max Morris, retail clerk.
"Fifth Vice-President—Thomas I. Kidd, woodworker.
"Sixth Vice-President—D. A. Hayes, glass bottle blower.
"Seventh Vice-President—Daniel J. Keefe, longshoreman.
"Eighth Vice-President—William J. Spencer, plumber.
"Treasurer—John B. Lennon, tailor.
"Secretary—Frank Morrison, printer.

"Fraternal Delegates to Great Britain—John A. Moffitt, hatter; James Wood, cigarmaker.

"Fraternal Delegate to Canada—Frank Feeney, elevator conductor.

"Respectfully submitted,

"JOHN MITCHELL.
"T. L. LEWIS.
"W. B. WILSON.
"JOHN T. DEMPSEY,
"JOHN FAHY.
"W. H. HASKINS.
"W. D. RYAN.

President Mitchell—The next report will be rather brief.

To the Sixteenth Annual Convention of the United Mine Workers of America.

We, your delegates, elected at the Fifteenth Annual Convention to attend the International Mining Congress at Paris, France, beg leave to submit the following report:

We sailed from New York City on June 11 and arrived in London on June 19. A few days after reaching London, we had the good fortune to be invited to attend a conference of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain, which was then in session at the Westminster Hotel, the conferees being the executive officers of the various county and district organizations composing the Miners' Federation of Great Britain. From them we secured much valuable information concerning mining conditions, their form of organization, and their methods of adjusting grievances and regulating wages. We learned that owing to industrial stagnation and the imposition by the government of a tax upon export coal, wages in the British mines had suffered a decline.

From London we visited the mining districts of Lancashire, Durham, and Northumberland, England, the Lanarkshire, Fifeshire, and Dalkeith districts of Scotland, making a brief trip to Ireland and thence to the mining fields of Wales. At every point we visited in Great Britain, we were received by the officers and miners with the utmost cordiality. Everything possible was done to make our stay pleasant and instructive, and we are glad at this time to make grateful acknowledgement to the organized workers of Great Britain for the uniform courtesy with which we were received and the opportunities given us for careful investigation.

From Wales we proceeded to France and after a few days spent in Paris, we went through the Charleroi and Leige districts of Belgium, where, through the kindness of the United States Consul, we were enabled to make a close study of mining conditions. We then visited the great Westphalia mining district of Germany, being warmly received there by the officers of the German Miners' National Union. Upon completing our investigation in Germany, we returned to Paris to be present at the opening of the International Mining Congress.

The congress met at the Bourse de Travail on August 8th, and continued its sessions up to and including August 12th. There were seventy-seven delegates in attendance, forty-five being from Great Britain, nine from Belgium, seven from France, thirteen from Germany, one from Austria, and two from the United States. The number of men represented was 2,069,500. The subjects discussed were the shorter work day, the minimum wage scale, old age pensions, the mine inspection laws, the control of wages, the nationalization of mines, disease among miners, and a proposition to establish an International Secretaryship. The addresses and debates upon all these subjects were extremely interesting, although the necessity of having each speech twice translated made progress slow and tedious. The following were elected as members of the International Committee: M. E. Edwards, Wm. Abraham, and John Wilson, Great Britain; Herr Hue and Herr Sachse, Germany; Herr Ebert and Herr Cinger, Austria; M. Lamendin and M. Cotte, France; M. Cavrot and M. Callewarte, Belgium; John Mitchell, America. It was decided to hold the next congress at Leige, Belgium.

From the reports submitted by the delegates from France, Belgium, Germany, and Austria, it was quite evident that until recently the trade union movement has made very unsatisfactory progress among the miners of these countries. Wages are low and the conditions of employment extremely bad. It is safe to say that the miners of France and Germany do not average more than one dollar per day, while in Belgium and Austria, wages are considerably less. There are, however, many hopeful signs for the future in these continental countries. Trade unions are increasing in strength, and through their influence much remedial legislation has been enacted.

It was surprising to learn how closely they have watched the growth and development of the United Mine Workers of America. The public press gives more space to American mining news than it does to events occurring in the mining fields of continental Europe.

In Great Britain, the wages are very much higher than on the continent; the hours of labor and many of the conditions of employment are superior to our own. I believe it would be safe to say that the English and Welsh miners earn, on an average, $1.50 per day, while those in Scotland will probably earn twenty-five cents less.

The one pre-eminent feature of European industrial life, especially in Great Britain, is the prevalence of the co-operative store system, and it was this feature which made upon us the most lasting impression. Nearly all British miners—and indeed many other classes of workmen—are members of some co-operative society; every mining town supports one or more co-operative stores. In these stores, a person may buy anything that is used in the ordinary household. We were given splendid opportunities to study the workings of these societies and it was demonstrated to our entire satisfaction that a person buying through them can save from twelve to twenty per cent. In connection with this report, we take the liberty of recommending that our members give the co-operative store system their serious consideration.

In conclusion, we desire to say that in our judgment it would be to the interest of our organization, and certainly to the advantage of the miners of the Old World, were we to continue our representation in these international mining congresses. We take this occasion to extend our thanks for the honor conferred upon us by our election as your delegates.

Respectfully submitted,

JOHN MITCHELL,
WILLIAM DODDS.

Attached to this report are thirteen articles which give a complete review of industrial conditions in Europe as they presented themselves to us. These articles were prepared by President Mitchell, in collaboration with Dr. Walter E. Weyl, and twelve of them were published in The United Mine Workers' Journal and in many metropolitan papers. The thirteenth is reprinted by permission of The Independent.

HOW THE LONDON WORKINGMAN LIVES.

The most interesting thing which I have seen about London is not St. Paul's cathedral or Westminster abbey, but the homes of the London working men. The stranger in London is struck by the endless streets extending hundreds of miles, and containing row after row of small houses, in which reside the men who have made the city what it is. The impression is very different from that of New York. In that great American city the streets are flanked on both sides by huge tenements, each of them containing hundreds of inhabitants. London, on the contrary, is a city of small houses, and the population, instead of living in the air, as in New York, is spread over an immense and ever-increasing area. It is almost impossible for the casual visitor to understand or appreciate the immensity of London. A mere statement that it is greater than any other city in the world; that its population is larger than that of Scotland or Ireland, or of any state of the union, except New York and Pennsylvania, does not mean half so much as a 'bus ride through the endless miles of streets in the working men's districts.

I have spent many hours in various sections of this city where wage-earners dwell, and have gathered vivid impressions from what I have seen and from what has been told me. This city seems like a great, overgrown town. Its population is increasing by leaps and bounds. Every train brings in new people from the country or from foreign shores; and fresh throngs are yearly dumped into the great, seething, roaring sea of humanity which makes up the vast metropolis. Houses go up at the rate of tens of thousands per year, but still there is no room for the newcomers who crowd in so rapidly. There is no room to breathe; no room to live; no chance for the average working man of moderate income to live with comfort and in healthy and pleasant surroundings.

The great cry of London is for rooms. The city does not have to deal with the problem which confronts Manhattan, whose two millions are pressed in between North and East rivers. Here there is a chance to expand in every direction; to the north, to the south, to the east, to the west; but hitherto this extension has not been sufficiently rapid to keep pace with the ever-increasing population. There is still considerably over a million working men and working women in the great city, and these must be accommodated with residences more or less close to their work. If there were an extensive and rapid system of electric traction, with overhead and underground railways leading to all parts of the city, the average working man might live at a distance of eight or ten miles from the center of the metropolis and still get to his work in time. As it is, the great mass of the working population is congested in the inner portions of the town, with the result that the houses of the people are crowded beyond their capacity.

Even the most crowded districts of London are probably not quite so densely populated as certain congested portions of New York City, as, for instance, some of the wards on both the east and west side; but the actual conditions are worse. There is more room in a six-story tenement than in a two-story hut. In London hundreds of thousands of people swarm in dirty houses and rookeries, in cellars, in back alleys, and in tumble-down shanties, compared to which some of the worst tenements in New York are like palaces. The overcrowding becomes worse with each succeeding year. If we count those people as overcrowded who live two or more in a room, it will be found that considerably over a million of London's inhabitants would come within this class. There are many who live four in a room, many who live six and eight, and there are even places where twelve persons occupy one room.

In certain sections of the city the overcrowding is even more intense. Taking London as a whole, thirty out of every hundred people are living in an overcrowded condition—in other words, two or more in a room: in some sections, 55 to 60 per cent live in a similar state. In the famous Whitechapel district, over one-seventh of the population is living four or more in a room.

We hear terrible stories of how the poorer classes of this great metropolis live, or rather exist, in the houses which their means permit them to occupy. A room may be divided between two families, lodgers may be taken in; or a bed may be leased or divided between a man who works by the day and one who works by night. It is impossible to see the conditions, and quite impossible to realize them. The overcrowding exists not only in the Whitechapel district, but in West London, and in many other parts of the city. The pressure for rooms near the center of the town causes rents to rise constantly, and the tenant is at the mercy of the landlord or his agent, who exacts from him the uttermost penny. The tenants rebel occasionally against this continued increase of the rent, and boycotts, and even riots have occurred; but all this does not avail, the price of rooms still rises and crowding becomes worse and worse. The tenant who dose not pay promptly is speedily evicted, and there are always plenty of others who will take the place the moment it is vacated.

Even rooms, such as they are, are not always available. When you crowd over a million people in a narrow circle and force them to be near their work; when you pour into this already teeming population tens of thousands of new arrivals; when the demand for rooms increases faster than the supply, it becomes impossible, sooner or later, to find places for the newcomers; the new houses do not accommodate the new people, and rooms in the old houses, dingy and dirty and unhealthy as they may be, are not always available. Not seldom it has happened that working men, holding jobs and with money in their pockets, have actually been unable to secure any sort of rooms for their families, and have been obliged to apply to the workhouses. Even rooms which are secured after much effort are unworthy of the name. Damp, grimy cellars, reeking with an accumulation of filth; dirty, tumble-down shanties in the rear of other dirty houses, at the back of blind alleys; old and rickety dwellings strung together in crooked lanes; all filled with countless throngs of men and women, and with hordes of little children, are a commonplace sight in this wealthy city. The stranger in London might walk miles and miles through streets of dark, low, forbidding houses, with smoke-covered, blackened walls, filled to overflowing with human beings, who are taxed to their utmost paying power for the privilege of living in these horrible hovels.

When one compares the average wage of the working man in London with the prices of rooms, the latter seem extremely exorbitant. Rent of rooms seems to average from 50 cents to $1 and more per week; and this rent often rises to one-fourth and not infrequently, to one-third, of the income of the workingman. There is a movement now on foot to compel a minimum wage of 25s. or $6.25 per week, since below that sum it is practically impossible for a working man to live with his family in any decent comfort in London.

Many attempts have been made during the last generation to improve the housing conditions of the poor of the metropolis. Laws have been passed requiring better, safer and more permanent dwelling places and insisting upon improved sanitary conditions generally. The railroads have been compelled to run a number of working men's trains at reduced fares, so as to permit the wage-earner to live at a distance, but the service of many of the lines still leaves much to be wished for. The real underlying of the fearful congestion of many London districts is the lack of a complete system of cheap and rapid transportation. The omnibuses and tramways are very slow and do not provide anything like the facilities offered by American electric railways. There are several underground railways which take the people out and the service of the Great Eastern railway is said to be entirely admirable. Very much, however, remains to be done before the working population of London can be released from the overcrowding and congestion under which it now suffers.

Fortunately, some improvement is being made in the conditions under which the London poor live, by public spirited citizens and by the city government. There are several foundations for establishing model tenements and model cottages, and these residences show a vast improvement in the conditions of living. I saw some of these tenements, which appeared to be clean and well appointed, and I noticed that in many of the windows there were flowers, which show that the residents take an interest and a pleasure in their surroundings. These model dwellings are organized on what is called a four per cent philanthropic basis; they seem to have done much good, although by reason of the high rents, they do not reach the very poorest classes. The city government has also done excellent work in the direction of improving the homes of the people—largely through the initiative of John Burns and other radical members; and the London county council has erected big tenements in various parts of the city, while others are in course of construction. These places are both clean and comfortable, and are eagerly sought after by people in search of rooms. The result has not been, as is supposed, to prevent private individuals or companies from putting up new tenements, although I am told that these are not being built as rapidly now as before, owing to the rise in the value of land.

What London needs, and will probably secure eventually, is improved rapid transit, and the building of tenements and the tearing down of the thousands of little shanties and rookeries which now disfigure the place. Until some such reforms are inaugurated, the poor of the city will continue to suffer from the diseases and the high death rate which prevail in the working men's districts. As one walks through the sections of the metropolis chiefly occupied by wage-earners, one is forcibly and painfully struck by the pallor of many of the inhabitants, and by their sickly and anaemic condition. Not until London has discovered the way of housing its people in a reasonable manner can it hope to have a population which will be physically sane and sound.

BRITISH TRADE UNIONS IN POLITICS.

There is a very general impression here in London that the present ministry will soon be obliged to resign. For a number of months the conservative party has become more and more unpopular, and at this writing it is difficult for the leaders to muster up sufficient enthusiasm among their followers in parliament to compel them to be present to vote. The country is disgruntled over the heavy burden of taxation which the Boer war has caused, and general disappointment has been expressed at the policy of the government in admitting Chinese coolie labor into South Africa. The trend of public opinion has been shown by a number of by-elections, which have been lost to the conservatives; and a large section of the people are now confidently predicting the early fall of the ministry and the consequent dissolution of parliament.

When this dissolution of parliament takes place, and a new election is ordered, the influence of trades unions on British politics will probably be felt more strongly than at any time in the past. Trades unionists have from time to time been elected to parliament, either on the liberal or on the conservative ticket, but it is only since the last general election that the trades unionists have politically organized in an effective manner, and they are now prepared to contest a large number of seats in the parliament which will soon be formed.

The principal reason for this new activity on the part of trades unionists is to be found in the recent attitude of the British courts toward labor organizations. During the last thirty years the unions had felt themselves secure from attack by the courts, since the law had apparently fixed their status, and had determined that they could not be sued in a criminal action either by their own members or by other unions. This security, however, was rudely destroyed a few years ago by the Taff Vale decision. The house of lords, the highest judicial tribunal in the kingdom, decided that actions could be brought against the trades unions by any one who felt that he had been injured by their action. The result has been to hamper the unions in their work, and to make their position insecure. As the law stands today, it appears that the most peaceful picketing is illegal, and the boycott, even in its mildest and most simple form, cannot safely be used as a weapon. The funds of the unions have been attached, and men who have been contributing to the organizations for years have now discovered that the money which was to be devoted to paying death, sick and superannuation benefits is now confiscated by a decree of the court. Unionists feel that the courts have legalized labor organizations, but have made illegal everything which such organizations must do in order to carry out their purposes. The whole feeling throughout the trades unions during the last three years has therefore been one of uncertainty and anxiety for the future.

The reply of the trades unionists to this attack by the courts was political action, which has taken the shape of united effort in what is called the labor representation committee. This committee consists of representatives not only of trades unions but of socialist societies, affiliated trades councils and co-operative societies; and its purpose is to select labor representatives for parliament, to defray part of their elections expenses, to pay all or part of their salary during their term in the house of commons, and to unite the unionists of the country in an effort to secure the election of labor members; in other words, the labor representation committee, or, as it is abbreviated, the L. R. C., endeavors to unite the labor organizations politically, instead of allowing them to fight their battles singly.

Hitherto only those organizations have been successful in electing candidates which have had large numbers of members concentrated in certain districts, such as the miners and the textile workers. There has been but little united action among the unionists, the skilled workers often failing to turn out for candidates who belong to the unskilled trades and vice versa. As a consequence labor candidates were not very strong, and the number of labor men in parliament was limited.

The activity of an organization like the L. R. C. is all the more important owing to the fact that members of parliament are not paid any salary, but must also defray their election expenses. These expenses amount generally to £600 or £800, or three to four thousand dollars an election, so that it is impossible for a workingman to be elected to the house of commons unless he is financially assisted by his constituents or others. English elections also differ from ours in that the candidate does not necessarily live in the city or district which elects him. The party organization selects a candidate, who runs for a certain district, as say Battersea or Devonport, and the voters choose from among these candidates, though neither of them may have spent a month of his life in the district which sends him to parliament.

The labor representation committee has followed in the footsteps of other political organizations in the United Kingdom. A union desiring to join the committee expresses its intention of doing so, and then puts the question to a referendum vote of its members. If a majority of the members vote for adherence to the committee, the union pays the sum of $3.75 (15 shillings) for each thousand members. The union then votes upon the question of whether it will collect a fund, and if it is decided in the affirmative each member of the organization pays one shilling (25 cents) toward a fund to be devoted to running candidates. Of this 25 cents, 2 cents a year per member is paid over to the labor representation committee, which undertakes to pay a quarter of the election expenses of all candidates, or as large a part of this as their funds will permit.

It is not the intention of the unionists to put up candidates in every parliamentary district, but only in those places where there is a good chance of gaining the election. In each of these districts there is a local labor representation committee, which studies the attitude of the constituency, and if satisfactory, makes a request of the L. R. C. to put up a candidate in that place. The candidate is usually selected by the local labor representation committee, and local men are often given a preference. Where there is no strong local man, whose union will support him financially, the national organization sends on a list of available candidates without constituencies, and the local selects one among them. The candidates are put forward by the respective unions, and before any candidate is considered his union must guarantee to pay a definite contribution toward his election expenses, which may amount to £200 or £400 or even more. This prevents fictitious candidates from running, and no union can put forward a man until he is prepared to pay all or at least a large part of his expenses.

There are at present eight or ten labor representatives in parliament, a number of whom have been elected on the liberal and conservative tickets. Since the L. R. C. has been formed, five new members have been elected, and at the next general election it is proposed to put forward from forty to fifty candidates. The committee is not affiliated with either the conservative or liberal party, and the candidates are obliged to pledge themselves to remain independent of these two organizations. This does not, however, prevent the unionists from making common cause with one or other of the parties, either in the elections or subsequently. The liberals may be invited to refrain from putting up a candidate in one district, in consideration of the unionists refraining from putting up their candidate in a liberal district, with the result that one unionist and one liberal are elected, whereas if both these parties had candidates in each district the conservatives might capture both of them.

The labor representation committee has grown with great rapidity since the attack on the unions in the Taff Vale decision. In 1901 the unions and societies contributing to the support of the L. R. C. had a membership of only 376,000; in 1902, of only 469,- 000; while in the beginning of 1904 the membership was 970,000, and at the present time is considerably over 1,000,000. Of this number less than 1½ per cent belong to socialist societies, and over 98½ per cent to trade unions, the number of trades unions affiliated having increased from 41 in 1901 to 165 in 1904.

The L. R. C. is entering into an active propaganda for radical legislation in favor of workingmen. The committee has been fighting hard over the trades disputes bill, which is intended to undo the evil of the Taff Vale decision, and guarantees the funds of the organization from attack. The bill has been postponed for a year, but strong efforts will be made to carry it eventually. The committee also stands for the government ownership of railroads and for government old-age pensions. The railroads, it is claimed, have paid over six billions of dollars in dividends since 1870, have charged excessive freight rates and passenger fares, and have burdened the service with fifty-one separate administrations and with 3,000 separate directors—of whom sixty-six sit in the house of commons and eighty in the house of lords. The committee also demands old-age pensions on behalf of the workingmen who have become incapacitated by long years of service. It is becoming difficult for a man over 45 years of age to secure employment in industry, and it is claimed that a half of all workingmen are so destitute that they must be buried at the expense of the parish. The entire expense of the old-age pension is put at about $85,000,000 in a year, which is less than a third of the expenditure of the government for military and naval purposes, and amounts to only 1 per cent or 2 per cent of the national income.

The L. R. C. is issuing a series of pamphlets dealing with the political questions of the time, and urging the workingmen to secure their political rights. Efforts are being made to secure the registration of all qualified workingmen voters, and leaflets are being issued explaining the attitude of the unionists upon every question. It is intended to establish a weekly, and subsequently a daily, journal with a wide circulation, and to extend the influence of the organization in every possible way. The organization is, of course, still young, but the workingmen of the kingdom form a very large section of the population, and it is hoped eventually to secure a large and powerful representation of workingmen in the house of commons.

GOVERNMENT SAVINGS BANKS IN ENGLAND.

The little red postoffices of Great Britain perform many more services for the average Englishman than do the postoffices of the United States. Not only can you send off letters, postal cards, newspapers, circulars or book packets, but a splendid system of parcel post has been worked out, by which light matter may be sent all over the country very much more cheaply than by the American express companies. Moreover, the telegraph is in the hands of the government, and short telegrams may be sent for 12 cents to any part of the kingdom. Finally, the postoffice has gone into the banking and the insurance business and money may be deposited there and government stock purchased, while any person in the kingdom above the age of 7 may insure his life for a small sum, or buy an annuity which has behind it the invincible credit of Great Britain and Ireland.

England may almost be said to the home of savings banks.

Everywhere opportunities are offered the man of small means, or the women and children, to deposit sums from 1s. upwards, and penny banks are also established on a large scale, which permit the saving of the stray pence of children. A number of large employers, including railroads, have established savings banks for their employes, and pay from 2½ per cent to 4 per cent interest, and every effort has been made to give to the people a safe and profitable investment for their small earnings.

By far the most interesting and important of these savings banks, however, is that run by the government. You may enter any one of the fourteen or fifteen thousand postoffice savings banks in the United Kingdom, sign your name, secure an account book, and deposit a sum not to be less than 1s. (25 cents). The whole credit of the British government is pledged to the repayment of this 1 shilling, and it is as much a part of the national debt as the rest of the four or five billion dollars which the government owes.

The regulations are such as to make it in every way convenient for the depositor. The savings banks are all open from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. on every week day; deposits may be made 1 shilling at a time, and may even be made by stamps; and all formalities are waived, both in permitting a contributor to start an account and in enabling him to withdraw his deposit. Deposits may be made by all persons of full age (if not under legal disability), by married women, by children of 7 or over, and on behalf of children of less age, on behalf of lunatics or insane persons, by a person acting as trustee for another, by friendly societies, industrial societies, charitable and provident societies, penny banks and incorporated building societies.

Upon paying your 1 shilling, or your £1, or your £10, or whatever deposit you make, the sum is immediately written in your bank book, and after the lapse of a few days you receive an acknowledgment from the central savings bank department in London. If there is any mistake in the account, or any failure to make the acknowledgment, you may write to the postoffice, and there is no charge for postage on this or any other letters connected with the savings bank business. The loss of the bank book does not involve the loss of the account, but merely the payment of a shilling for a new book. Depositors are permitted to withdraw the whole or any part of the sum due them, not only in the office where they deposited their savings, but in any office in the kingdom; all that is necessary to do so is to write a letter, free of postage, to the office where you made your deposit, and they will send you a warrant which permits you to withdraw your money at the postoffice desired. It is possible now, even, to withdraw your money by telegram in any part of the kingdom upon the payment of a 30-cent fee. Sums may be transferred with great ease from one account to another, and the certificates of birth or marriage or death which may be required in connection with the postoffice savings bank accounts may be obtained for 1 shilling.

By means of the postoffice savings bank the government insures and guarantees the savings of its poorer citizens. The rate of interest paid is 2½ per cent on all deposits of £1 ($5) or over. The amount that may be deposited, however, is strictly limited. Formerly no more than $150 could be deposited in a year, but the limit is now $250, and no one may draw interest on a deposit amounting to over $1,000—where the account exceeds that amount no interest is paid on the excess. Larger sums of money, however, may be invested through the savings bank department in consols or other British securities, and the entire funds of the savings bank are invested in this manner.

The business of the government savings banks has steadily increased since they were introduced over forty years ago. At the present time there are over 15,000,000 depositors, amounting to over $210,000,000, the average deposit made amounting to about $14. The total amount, including interest, of all accounts now open amounts to about $720,000,000, and the interest credited to depositors to about $17,000,000. Every year over 1,250,000 accounts are opened and 1,000,000 closed, the number of depositors constantly increasing. The expense of operations has been reduced to a very low sum, now amounting to only about 12 cents per transaction.

These figures show the enormous extent to which the facilities offered by the government postoffice for saving are utilized. It has been calculated that one out of every five inhabitants of the United Kingdom, including women and children, is a depostor in the postoffice. The facilities are, of course, used by people of moderate, and, perhaps, even of large means, but it is not possible, as in private savings banks, to multiply the number of accounts, and in opening an account one must declare that he has no direct or indirect interest in any other deposit. Nine out of every ten deposits amount to less than $250; but the other tenth of the accounts make up over five-eighths of all the money invested.

The depositors of the postoffice savings bank represent all grades and classes of the community. Over one-half are married women, spinsters and children, and over one-twelfth are people engaged in domestic service. It is probable that three-fifths of all the depositors are women and children, employed or unemployed; but there are also large numbers engaged in industry, in trade and commerce, and in professional and official life. The savings banks do not seem to be used very much, however, by the farmers, only one out of every hundred depositors being engaged in agriculture.

The money that is collected by the thousands of postoffices throughout the country is all invested in government bonds, drawing 2½ per cent or 3 per cent interest. We have heard considerable criticism of this policy of the government in investing the money in its own securities, and preventing the placing of capital in railroads or industrial enterprises, or in the ordinary channels permitted to funds in trust. The depositors, however, appear to prefer this form of investment. There is also criticism of the government because of the fact that there is usually a slight deficit, owing to the comparatively high rate of interest paid; and because, further, there is no reserve fund provided for large sudden withdrawals. On the whole, however, the system of postal savings banks meets with the approval of the vast majority of Englishmen and any proposition to abandon it would meet with opposition.

Through the postoffice the government is also going into the business of granting annuities and insuring lives. There is a regular scale of prices by which people can secure annuities based on the age of the individual. Thus, a man of 20 years can secure $5 a year for the rest of his life on paying $114; if he is 30, he must pay $102; if 50, $75; and if 70, $40. Not very many annuities are granted, however, and even the insurance business of the postoffice is not very large.

The system of insurance is rendered very easy for all persons, and the poorest working man can obtain an insurance of not less than $25 and not more than $500 under reasonable terms, and with the full credit of the government to secure payment of the amount. No medical examination is necessary for an insurance amounting to less than $125, but if an examination does not take place, only the amount of the premium is paid if the insured dies in the first year, and only half the total sum due if he dies in the second year. If the insured submits to a medical examination, however, the charge for which is 62 cents, the full benefit of the insurance is received, no matter how soon he dies; also in any case where death is due to accident this full benefit is received. The lives of children from 8 to 14 years of age may be insured for $25, but not more, it being desired not to put a premium upon the death of helpless infants. Children under 8 years of age may not be insured at all.

Arrangements are being made for friendly societies to secure old age pay on the lives of their members by means of annuities purchased through the postoffice savings bank, and employers of labor and large institutions of the class may may make similar arrangements.

Up to the present time the insurance features of the postoffice have not grown to a very large sum, the total sum of money now payable at deaths amounting to only about $4,000,000. The postoffice does, however, furnish facilities for any inhabitant of the United Kingdom to insure himself on reasonable terms and in a manner which absolutely guarantees his successors in the event of his death.

From what we can gather, the savings bank system, and the annuity and insurance operations of the government, are conducted with scrupulous honesty and with great efficiency. The postoffice savings bank has attracted depositors not only from working men, but from all classes of the community, and the old private savings banks, which once played a great role, are of very much less importance. The government officials claim that the postal banks have done much to encourage saving among the people, and the system is applauded all through England as one of the most democratic and popular institutions of the kingdom.

THE CO-OPERATIVE STORES OF GREAT BRITAIN.

I have found nothing of more interest in the little towns and the large cities throughout the United Kingdom than the co-operative stores which are dotted all over the country. Almost the first building you see on entering a manufacturing or mining town in England and Scotland may be these stores, which mean a vast deal for the average workingman.

They mean that he and his family, without any trouble and without incurring any obligation, without doing anything but that which they want to do, are able to save, in some cases, from a month to two months' salary in every year.

The origin of these co-operative stores is very well worth study, and one can understand it best by showing how they arose in single communities. Let us say that a number of workmen in a shoe town, finding that the prices in the stores were too high, and knowing that they could buy cheaper wholesale than retail, decided to buy all together instead of buying singly.

They probably started by selecting one of their own members as buyer for all of them, and paying him something for the trouble.

After half a year, or a year, the money that was saved by buying wholesale instead of retail, was divided among the customers or members, according to the amount that they bought.

These experiments proved so successful in various towns throughout the country that the movement spread with great rapidity. Not only in England and Scotland, but in Wales and Ireland as well, not only in the manufacturing, mining and shipping centers, but even in the heart of the great cities, the co-operative movement became firmly established and continued to earn large dividends for its members.

The new co-operative movement did not succeed without much opposition. The retailers, naturally, resented having their business curtailed and their profits diminished by the people purchasing wholesale on their own account. At first there was much abuse of the co-operators and discredit was thrown both upon their motives and upon the character of their management. The retailers went so far as to boycott the new co-operators by threatening to withdraw their patronage from wholesalers found guilty of selling to co-operators.

The movement grew despite this opposition. The wholesalers soon found that the co-operators paid readier cash and were much better customers than the ordinary independent merchant. Moreover, as soon as the wholesalers refused to sell to the co-operators, the latter replied by starting co-operative wholesale societies of their own. These wholesale and retail societies have been of great service to one another, and have helped to strengthen the whole co-operative movement.

At the present time the co-operative stores are mighty institutions. There are 1,433 societies in the British Isles, of which 32 are very large and the remainder comparatively small. The largest society of all is the co-operative wholesale society of Lancaster, which does an annual business of over $90,000,000.

One of the largest retail organizations is the Leeds Industrial Society, which has 50,000 members and does an annual business of about $7,500,000. If you take the combined business of the societies, this amounts to over $330,000,000 a year.

The co-operative societies do not restrict their business to members, but, as a general rule, any one can purchase and secure some rebate, though usually at a less rate than members. To become a member one pays $5 per share, and the business is so profitable that a fairly high rate of interest is paid upon these shares. In fact, the companies try rather to prevent than to encourage any single co-operator owning too much stock, and the amount that any individual or any family may have is strictly limited.

As a consequence the number of members is quite high, amounting at the present time to over 1,600,000; in other words, there are about 20 per cent fewer co-operators than trade unionists, though, of course, not all trade unionists are co-operators, and not all co-operators are trade unionists. I believe it probable, however, that over half of the co-operators are trade unionists, and from the beginning there has been a strong and friendly sympathy between the two movements.

The credit of the co-operative societies is excellent, because they have always lots of cash at hand and pay their debts promptly, and rapidly earn large sums of money. The societies do not attempt to cut prices, but meet the prices fixed by the other stores, and do not spend money in advertising, in soliciting trade or in extending long time credit to people who are without any visible means of support.

The advantage of the co-operative business is that it is a straight cash business, and it is, therefore, absolutely safe. As a consequence practically all the societies show great profits. At the present time the societies are earning about $33,000,000 a year, and these profits are increasing every year. This question of profits is the great subject of conversation in the households—especially in small communities.

The co-operative society means for a great many of the people the only opportunity that they have ever had to engage in business, and the interest in the dividends is as great as that among stockholders of large companies. I have talked with many of the people and their families in the towns, and the subject of conversation seemed very soon to drift to what the last dividend was, or what the next would probably be.

These dividends, which are paid quarterly, are very high, and in a great many cases they amount for members to 25 per cent upon the total amount purchased. If the dividends sink to less than 12½ per cent there is much criticism, and not infrequently informal gatherings of the housewives are held, at which their discontent is given voice to in no uncertain tones.

What astonishes one most at the co-operatives establishments is the little bits of shops in which the business is done. I was asked in one place to make an estimate of the probable quarterly business done in that place, and I found, to my surprise, that the amount of goods sold was $60,000, instead of $5,000, as I supposed, and I subsequently learned that there was a still larger co-operative establishment in the same town. The places look like little general stores in the small towns, though in the large cities they appear not unlike great emporia.

The managers of the store are selected by the governing board of the society among men who are specially trained for it, and the service both of the storekeeper and the men under him is at least as intelligent and as efficient as that of the general retail stores in the same community. The co-operative societies always pay their employes wages at least equal to the prevailing scale, and usually the remuneration is in excess of this rate.

The co-operative societies of the British Isles are not primarily interested in production, but very much more largely in trade. They do, however, have their own coffee and tea plantations in the tropics, and fleets of vessels to carry goods, and even in this country they have extended their lines of activity.

They own their own buildings, and, in many instances, they have small farms, ranging from 50 to 80 acres, upon which vegetables are grown, cows and pigs pasture and dairy products are obtained. In many places there are small shoe factories and repair shops; but by far the overwhelming majority of the things sold are made not by the co-operative society itself, but by independent manufacturers. The variety and diversity of these things is extremely great.

The housewife can buy in her co-operative society groceries and dry goods, clothing, hardware, millinery, boots, shoes, meats, furniture, and, in fact, everything that enters into the ordinary workingman's life. The purchaser, of course, is always at liberty to buy as much or as little as he wishes, and no attempt is made to urge him to increase or even continue his custom. The beauty of the system is that it is based entirely and absolutely upon the private interest of every individual co-operator.

Co-operative societies have proven an undoubted and permanent success. It has been shown, to paraphrase the old maxim, that "co-operation is the life of trade." Successes achieved in the British Isles have been duplicated on the continent, and in many countries results have been obtained which are in some respects more beneficial than those of the British co-operative societies. The success of these organizations in Britain is largely due to the conditions of the country and the character of the population.

In the greater part of the country, and especially in the small towns, the population in very stable. In many cases the fathers, grandfathers or the present workers labored, perhaps, in the same town, or even in the same factory or mine, and probably the children and grandchildren of the present workers will do so, also.

Moreover, all the people of Great Britain speak practically one language, read one literature, and are filled with the same political and industrial traditions and aspirations. Practically, too, the people of England, as those of Scotland, are practically homogeneous, and as a consequence, there is a mutual understanding among the people, especially in the same class of society and in the same community.

It is these same qualities and conditions—their ability to understand and trust one another, that makes them take easily to co-operation, as it makes them take easily to trade unionism. For this reason the difficulties of establishing successful co-operative societies in America are very much greater than in Britain or on the continent.

Some little institutions of this sort, especially in New England, have failed, and the difficulties arising from the heterogeneous character of the population—difference of language, the shifting of the population from one center to another, the unwillingness of the American to save small sums, etc., have been increased by other factors.

In America the department store and the mail order store have reached a development, both as to size and efficiency in methods, both as to fineness, attractiveness and cheapness, which renders the invasion of the co-operative store into our large metropolis a matter of great difficulty.

Eventually, however, I believe it probable that the co-operative store will take root in the United States, especially in the more stable and homogeneous of the industrial communities. Such a movement will probably owe its origin to the initiative of trade unionists, although, as in England, this will be done by individual members and not by the organizations as such.

COMPENSATION LAWS OF GREAT BRITAIN.

It used to be the case in England, as it is in most American states today, that an injured workman had for the most part no remedy at law or in equity against his employer for accident. No matter how faithfully he may have discharged his duty, no matter how free from contributory negligence, the employe killed or maimed in the performance of his work, could obtain no redress and secure no remedy. As in America today, the withdrawal from the workingman of the protection of the law led to the greatest hardships and men were thrown upon the streets maimed for life, and women and children were left penniless and destitute, as the result of injuries, which if they had happened to anyone but workingmen, would have been immediately and amply compensated for.

This state of affairs, which unfortunately still exists to the present day in most of the American states, arose from the action of the courts. It had always been assumed by the English law that an employer was responsible for the acts of his employe in the ordinary performance of his duties, and this doctrine had been proved necessary to protect workingmen and third persons from the carelessness of an employer, and his agents. In the case of the workingman himself, however, this protection was entirely removed.

In the year 1837, in the famous case of Priestley-Fowler, it was stated by the court that an employe could not recover where the injury had been inflicted by the carelessness of a fellow employe. The workman was supposed to assume the known risk of his employment, and he was also supposed to assume the liability of accident resulting from the carelessness of anyone of the men who were working with him. As a consequence the working man ceased to have any protection whatsoever. If there were a wreck on a train as the result of carelessness of a switchman or gatekeeper and the conductor, engineer, brakeman and all the passengers were killed, the result would be, according to law, that all the passengers, whether rich or poor, might recover, while the engineer, conductor and brakeman could not recover, because they were supposed to assume the risk that the switchman, whom, perhaps, they had never seen, would leave the switch open.

For many years the British workmen, through their unions, and especially the Union of Railway Employes, agitated for a redress of their grievance, and in 1880 they secured the employers' liability act, which was passed for seven years, and which was annually renewed after 1887. This act limited somewhat the scope of the doctrine of common employment and provided that where a workman was killed his representative should have the same compensation and remedies against the employer as though he had not been a workman.

While this act remedied the scope of the doctrine of any employment, and, therefore, did some good, the advantages arising from it were, on a whole, very small. Under the act the employer was enabled to evade the law by a device called "contracting out." By contracting out was meant to offer an alternative plan or to persuade the employe in one way or another to waive his rights under the act. As the employe was frequently in the dilemma of being forced either to waive his rights under the act or lose his job, the advantages accruing to him from the law were not very great. Moreover, it was soon found that the percentage of cases where the injury could be directly traceable to the negligence of the superoirs of the employe without any contributory negligence on his own part was exceedingly small. It was soon felt that a remedy of wider scope was necessary, and this was eventually obtained in the workmen's compensation act, which is now the law of England.

The inspiration of the new law came from the continent of Europe, and especially from Germany. In the 80's Germany inaugurated her system of insuring workmen against sickness, old age and accident, and the example which she set was soon followed by France, Austria, Belgium and Holland, Italy and most of the continental countries.

The principle of the new legislation was new and entirely different from that which the English law had been following. The English law, as our American law today, had sought to discover who was responsible for each accident, to weigh carefully the liability of the employer and of his agents upon the one hand and the contributory negligence of the injured workman on the other, and to make an exact balance between the two. This system worked injustice and hardship, because the smallest amount of contributory negligence, however slight, was sufficient to debar the injured man from securing relief. Moreover, in the great majority of cases it was absolutely and entirely impossible to determine who was responsible, and in more than half of the cases there was no direct responsibility or carelessness on the part of either the employer or the employe. The German law, however, took the stand that just as the soldier should receive a pension for death or maiming due to the nature of his work so the injured workman or the heirs of a killed workman should receive a pension or remuneration for injuries which were just as inevitable.

The English law followed in this precedent and adopted this philosophy. According to the most learned British jurists, the workmen's compensation act of 1897 introduces "for the first time in the history of English jurisprudence a liability upon an individual to pay compensation for personal injuries which are not the result of any negligence or other unlawful act, either of himself or of his servants." The bill provides certain definite compensation for the death or wounding of workmen engaged in certain occupations, irrespective of whether the employer has or has not been guilty of negligence, provided, however, that the injury to the workman has not been the result of his own willful and serious misconduct.

The workmen's compensation act of 1897 does not apply to all workmen in England, but it is limited to certain industries which include the most dangerous. It includes factories as well as laundries (but not workshops), mines, quarries and engineering works, and embraced at the time of its adoption about one-half of all British workers. In 1900 it was extended to include agricultural workers, so that its scope is still larger than formerly. It insures against all accidents, but not against injuries to the health, arising from the nature of the work. The injury must arise out of and in the course of the employment and must not be the result of some action taken outside of working hours, or outside of the regular employment. The cause of accident is immaterial, and the ordinary negligence of the workman does not prevent him from securing compensation, so long as it does not amount to willful and serious misconduct.

The employer is not liable for any injury which does not disable the workman for a period of at least two weeks from earning full wages at the work at which he was employed. The object of this provision is to prevent demands being made for slight injuries, and frequently the workman can secure compensation from his union for injuries during the first two weeks.

The workmen's compensation act does not take away from the workman the right to sue under the common law or under the act of 1880, but merely gives him a new and alternative method of proceeding. He may attempt to secure compensation in any one of the three methods, but not by more than one of them. If action is to be taken under the workmen's compensation act, however, the employer must be notified within a short time of the accident, and at some time previous to the workman leaving his employ, and proceedings must be begun within six months. The matter may be settled between the employer and the workman by agreement, but upon failure to reach a satisfactory settlement, provision is made for an arbitration which removes the matter from the law courts, and makes the proceedings more expeditious and more economical than they otherwise would be.

It would be wiser, however, if a permanent board of arbitration had been provided for the control of all cases, and if the practice of engaging lawyers to try the cases had been discouraged from the first. The employer is liable—even where the workman has been hired by a sub-contractor under him—the injured workman thus being sure of being paid, although provision is also made in the law by which the employer may himself recover from the sub-contractor. This prevents a workingman failing to secure compensation owing to there being a straw sub-contractor between him and his real employer.

The rate of remuneration for persons who are killed depends upon whether or not they have other persons dependent upon them. If the workman leaves any persons who are wholly dependent upon his earnings at the time of his death, they must be paid a sum equal to his earnings during the last three years of his employment, or if he has been employed less than that time, a sum 156 times as great as his average weekly earnings, provided, however, that this sum shall not in any case amount to less than $750 or to more than $1,500. If the workman does not leave any persons entirely dependent upon him, but does leave persons partially dependent upon him, they will receive such sum as may be fixed by agreement or by arbitration, but in no case greater than the sum he would have received if he had left persons entirely dependent upon him.

If he leaves no dependents at all, he receives the reasonable expenses of his medical attendance and burial, not exceeding $50. Where the workman is totally or partially incapacitated, he is to receive a weekly payment, after the second week, not to exceed 50 per cent of his average weekly earnings and not to exceed $5 per week. In fixing these sums the employer is allowed to deduct any sums (not wages) which he may have advanced as the result of the accidents for the relief of the injured workman. Any workman receiving weekly payments for a partial or permanent injury, may be obliged to submit from time to time to a qualified physician, who will certify as to whether or not the injured workman is still incapacitated.

One of the great drawbacks of the act of 1880 was that the workman was allowed to "contract out," and, as a consequence, the law was made of no effect. In spite of the opposition of the representatives of the working classes, a provision was inserted in the act of 1897 likewise permitting "contracting out," although in this case the provision safeguarded to a great extent the welfare of the workingman. It was provided that where employers and workmen agreed upon a scheme, which in the opinion of the registrar of friendly societies, was, on the whole, not less favorable to the general body of workmen and their dependents than the provision of this act, then he, the registrar, might grant a certificate permitting the parties to "contract out," or, in other words, to adopt an alternative scheme, but no scheme should be so certified which contained an obligation upon a workman to join the scheme as a condition of his securing a job.

Under this act a large number of companies, including some of the largest, adopted alternative schemes and contracted out. There were in 1903 over 122,000 men who had taken advantage of this provision.

In these various contracting out schemes the workmen had contributed $210,000 and the employers $320,000 to provide for forms of insurance, and during the year 1903 $470,000 had been paid for death, incapacity, accident and other benefits, as well as for management and expenses. In the case of these 122,000 men there were, in the year 1903, forty-two deaths where no dependents were left, and 113 deaths where there were dependents, while there were 19,113 accidents resulting in partial or complete incapacitation. Most persons contracting out were either miners or railway employes; about one-third of all the workmen contracting out being employes of two railways. There is still much opposition to the system of "contracting out," and in some cases it is claimed that where a majority or even a large minority of the employes are willing to accept the plan, the remainder are practically coerced.

Upon the whole, despite certain manifest difficulties, the workmen's compensation act has proved a success and has been of great, if not inestimable, benefit to the British workman.

"THE LAND OF THE POOR."

In crossing the narrow seas which separate Great Britain from Ireland, one feels that one is migrating to an entirely different country. Although England and Ireland are under the same government, although the same language is spoken and the same laws followed, there could be no wider difference than between these two lands.

Like England, Ireland is beautiful, and one looks out of the train window upon cultivated lands and smiling valleys; but here the resemblance ends. While in England one sees everywhere signs of comparative prosperity, the basis of Irish life is its poverty and misery.

Everywhere one notes evidence of this obvious poverty. In the cities, as in the country districts, the people seem poor and the indigent population is large. Outside of Belfast one sees but few industries, and in the small towns through which one passes the people seem poverty-stricken, and in many cases wretched.

One notes the comparative absence of large factories employing thousands of men, of mines, of iron works and textile mills, of large, thriving cities with great industrial populations. The people themselves seem to lack initiative and spirit. They seem oppressed, and, despite a certain occasional gayety, there appears to be amongst them a spirit of sadness which manifests itself even in their songs.

Ireland has suffered, and is still suffering, from the evils of the past hundred and fifty years. During the eighteenth century the English government adopted toward Ireland somewhat the same policy that it sought to adopt toward the American colonies. The industrial development of the island was crushed out by the commercial policy of England, and the industries of the country died under the influence of the competition of its stronger rival. The Irish, driven out of industry, were forced into agriculture, and even here they lost ground, especially after the adoption of free trade, which removed the duties from foreign grain. In the competition with the great grain-producing countries of America, Russia and India, Ireland was left far behind, and the failure of the potato crop sixty years ago crushed the last element of hopefulness out of the people.

The peasants were ground down between the upper millstone of falling prices for their produce and the nether millstone of rising, or, at least, stationary rents for their lands, and as each year passed the condition of the population grew steadily worse.

The result was that the Irish were squeezed out of Ireland. Hundreds of thousands died during the famine of 1846, when the food, for want of which the people were starving, was shipped out of the island. Those who could sought refuge in America, and during the last sixty years a steady stream of emigration has poured out of the country.

At every census the population has decreased. In 1841 there were almost 8,250,000 of inhabitants in the land. At the present time there are less than 4,500,000. Sixty years ago Ireland had over three times the population of Scotland. Today its population is less than that of the northern peninsula. Sixty years ago there were over half as many Irishmen as there were Englishmen and Welshmen. Today the population of Ireland is less than one-seventh of that of England and Wales. There are today in Ireland fewer people by almost 1,000,000 than there were 100 years ago at the time of the union.

The country naturally shows all the depressing signs of a depletion absolutely unprecedented in the history of the world's migrations. In these sixty years over 4,000,000 Irishmen have left their native shores—a population almost as great as that which now remains. The Irish who emigrated were the pick of the nation. It was the men and the women with initiative, with courage, with hopefulness, who left the Emerald isle to seek a new home in America, or to begin life anew under more favorable conditions in England, Scotland or the British colonies.

It was the young people who left, and it is the old people who remain. As a consequence, the birth rate in Ireland is low. The people who are capable of giving birth are for the most part out of the country, so that for every 100 births among a given number of Englishmen or Scotchmen there are only about eighty births among the same number of Irish. For the same reason, viz: that Ireland is overburdened with old men and old women the death rate is higher in Ireland than in Scotland or England. The difference between the births and deaths leaves but a small margin for any increase in the population.

The marriage rate is also low, there being only five marriages per 1,000 among the Irish population, while there are seven marriages per 1,000 in Scotland. Even without emigration it would be difficult for the country to keep up its present population. The bad conditions which formerly prevailed, however, still continue to a considerable extent, and the emigration and the constant drain on the population still go on.

Perhaps much of the poverty of the Irish is due to the fact that, unlike England, Wales and Scotland, it has not an industrial but an agricultural population. Only one out of every eleven males in England and Wales is employed in agriculture, whilst in Ireland the proportion is over one in three. Over a half of all the males in England, Wales and Scotland are employed in industrial enterprises, but in Ireland the proportion is less than one in five. Unlike England and Scotland, Ireland in the main is a country without great cities. There are, of course, Dublin and Belfast, with a population of over 200,000 each, but with the exception of these two places and of Cork, there is no city or town in Ireland with a population as great as 40,000.

There are many other signs of the poverty of the Irish population, even if that poverty were not perfectly obvious. In the United Kingdom there is an income tax that falls on all incomes over $750, but although there are many individual rich men in Ireland, the income from this source from the Emerald isle is only 1-22 part of that from the whole kingdom. In Ireland the railroad traffic, both as regards freight and passengers, is very much less than in England or Scotland. The number of letters carried, the number of telegrams sent, the tonnage of shipping, the number and size of the factories, the amount of coal used, the quantity of imports and exports, are all very much less than they should be in proportion to the population.

The taxation, which in the United Kingdom falls heavily on the poorer classes of the population, bears with extreme weight on Ireland, which has an undue proportion of poor people, and while doubtless the amount of wealth in the country increases, the poverty of the people, as compared with that of the English or the Scotch, is constantly and continually increasing.

When we speak of the Irish as being an agricultural nation we must not confound the situation there with that in our country. The Irishman who tills the soil is not in the position of an independent farmer holding his 100 or 150 acres, but is rather a peasant with a precarious holding of a piece of land small in extent and value, and with a rent in excess of what the land should legitimately bear. The farms, such as they are, are extremely small; over two-thirds of all the holdings are less than thirty acres in extent, and almost one out of every three farms is less than ten acres in size. To a certain extent co-operation has been introduced among these farmers, but as a rule the poverty of the individual and his ignorance of the general conditions of farming render it difficult for him to combine. The farms are, upon the whole, ill-kept, and the conditions under which they are held are such as to discourage any particular thrift or uncommon energy.

The men engaged in industry and in transportation in Ireland earn considerably less than do their brethren in England and Scotland, and upon the whole the proportion of unskilled workers in Ireland is much larger than in the two other countries named, while the pay for the same grade of work is less.

In general, it is true to say that the Irish workman earns on an average about half the amount earned in the industrial countries of England and Scotland.

The common laborer in England, who will earn $4.75 per week in Northumberland or Durham, or $5.80 in London, will earn only $3.25 in Belfast, and $4.10 in Dublin, and about $3.50 in other places in Ireland. The general surface laborer in mines will earn from $4.25 to $4.75 in the north of England, and would earn about $2.80 in Tipperary, Antrim or Sligo.

The spinners in the woolen mills who earn $8.50 in Leeds, will get but $4.75 in Ireland. Ten years ago an investigation was made into the condition of the railroad employes in England, Scotland and Ireland, and it was found that while only one employe in 500 earned less than 15s, or $3.75 per week in England, and only one in eighty earned less than that amount in Scotland, almost a half of all the railroad employes earned 15s or less in Ireland.

The poverty of the population can also be shown by the yearly migration of agricultural workers from Ireland to England and Scotland. Every year some 25,000 Irishmen cross the sea to earn $1 a day during harvesting time and then return to their homes, for the most part in the county of Mayo. The wages which fail to attract English and Scotch workmen thus draw thousands of Irishmen over the water, even though the savings that can be effected by a trip of this sort are not very considerable.

Much improvement is looked for in the condition of Ireland from the land laws recently passed by the British government. These laws contemplate the purchase of the land from the present owners under conditions involving the guarantee of the government, and on terms which are made as favorable as possible for the tenant. There is some complaint even under these laws of the exorbitant prices demanded by the landlords, but the general impression appears to be that the new act is the first step toward remedying the grievous conditions under which Ireland has suffered for over a century.

Another hopeful sign in the situation of Ireland at the present time is the energy with which the working population has entered into the trades union movement. The people are endeavoring to secure by industrial means what they formerly sought to obtain exclusively by political action.

The optimistic hope that all would be well as soon as home rule was achieved has now given place to a realization of the many other problems which beset the Irish worker. The Irish trade unions are to a considerable extent separately organized, and by means of their trade councils they have secured the adherence of the Irish political party to their plans for the improvement of the working classes.

When the British workingmen have succeeded in electing a large number of members of parliament they will count, as in the past, upon the adherence of the Irish party in support of their measures.

CONCILIATION BOARDS IN GREAT BRITAIN.

The most remarkable feature of British industry during recent years has been the comparative absence of strikes. During the last ten years especially the number of strikes has diminished continually, and in 1902 there were fewer of these conflicts than at any previous time during the last ten years. Not only the number of strikes, but the number of men affected, the number of working days lost and the amount of money expended by both sides have been gradually diminishing.

The principal cause of this comparative peace in British industry has been the recognition in the fullest and freest way of the trade unions and the creation of boards of conciliation and other machinery for the settlement of disputes.

These board of conciliation grew up as soon as the unions were recognized, and now exist in most of the important trades of the kingdom. In 1892 there were fifty-seven boards which were known to have settled controversies, and almost 1,500 cases were brought to their attention. Of these cases one-half were settled either by conciliation or by arbitration, and the other half were withdrawn, or were settled by private agreement, independently of the boards.

It is interesting to note that, as in America, the two parties when left to themselves usually agreed. Of the cases settled by the boards more than three-fourths were arranged by the parties themselves, and in only one-fourth of the cases was it found necessary or advisable to call in an arbitrator. The importance of the settlement of 1,500 possible disputes cannot be exaggerated, and this settlement could only have been effected after full and free recognition of the unions.

There was a time in England, as in America, when the unions were not recognized, and when war and not peace was the chronic condition of industry. Within the limits of an article of this size it is, of course, impossible to trace the growth of the general movement toward recognition and peace in all industries, but what has occurred in one industry, as, for instance, the coal industry, is more or less true of others.

In a large measure the prosperity of Great Britain always has depended upon its coal mines. Until three years ago the output of coal in Great Britain was greater than that of any other country in the world, and although she now has been outstripped by the United States the number of miners in the United Kingdom still is far greater than in any other country in the world.

The men are for the most part well organized. It is remarkable how rapidly the coal miners have developed their organizations in recent years. There were about a quarter of a million men organized in 1907, and more than half a million men, or more than a quarter of all the trades unionists in the kingdom, organized into miners' unions in 1901.

The miners, among others, led in the movement toward conciliation and arbitration, but for many years they met with the greatest difficulties. Before 1840 the condition of miners was unspeakably bad, and during the thirty years from 1842 to 1871 the miners of Northumberland struggled continuously for recognition. It was during the latter year that the Northumberland miners finally were recognized, and the experiment was so successful that recognition gradually followed in the mining counties of Great Britain and general agreements were made with the miners' organizations.

In casting about for a basis upon which to form agreements the unions accepted the principle of the sliding scale. The sliding scale is based upon the idea that wages must follow prices and that when the price of coal rises wages must rise, and when the price falls wages must fall. Although this sliding scale was praised highly at first and was hailed joyously as the solution of the whole labor problem, it soon began to show defects. In bad times the sliding scale led to price-cutting of the most reckless sort, and wages fell below a point at which it was possible to maintain a decent standard of living.

The miners, especially in Yorkshire, demanded that, sliding scale or no sliding scale, a certain minimum wage must be guaranteed, and it was claimed that prices could not and should not regulate wages. The miners asserted, and this is now the contention of trades unionists throughout the world, that wages must regulate prices up to the point of guaranteeing a minimum living wage, and that no industry or business that cannot guarantee this living wage has a moral or economic right of existence.

This principle has now been adopted, at least in a qualified sense, throughout the mining industry of Great Britain, and it has been taken up and accepted by other industries. There now exist in the various mining counties of Great Britain joint boards of conciliation, whose duty it is to regulate wages according to the state of the industry.

The important thing, however, is that a maximum and a minimum are established so that the employer knows that he will not have to pay above a certain amount and the workman is assured that wages will not fall below a certain rate. Between these two points the rate of wages may oscillate according to the state of the industry, wages rising in good times and falling in bad, but the normal, average state of industry seems in the past to have given the miners something like 15 per cent. above the guaranteed minimum.

In these arrangements the joint agreements between the mine owners and the mine workers everything is done to insure peace as far as possible. The agreements are made for indefinite periods, subject to termination upon three months' notice upon either side. The joint committees are made up of an equal number of representatives from each side, usually amounting to fourteen or fifteen. Wherever possible the agreements are made without the intervention of an arbitrator or outside person, but permanent arrangements exist for the appointment of a fair-minded and disinterested chairman, whose services may be called upon in the event of a failure to agree.

The manner of selecting the chairman is worthy of notice. Both sides attempt to agree upon the selection of a chairman who will act permanently, but it is determined in advance by the rules of the joint board that upon failure to agree upon a chairman the speaker of the house of commons will be requested to appoint a man who will act in this capacity. This system worked admirably, both the miners and the operators appearing to place implicit confidence in the justice and fair-mindedness of the man appointed, even where they have failed to agree and the selection has been by the speaker of the house of commons.

The tendency in Great Britain is for the functions of the permanent chairman to become ever more important. When first called upon he seeks to conciliate the parties, and to bring them to a common agreement, but upon failure to accomplish this purpose he has the right to decide the case absolutely and fix the wages at some point between the maximum and the minimum. From this judgment there is no appeal. There is always a danger that an arbitrator will weaken the powers of the representatives of the two sides and encourage them to persist in unreasonable demands in the hope that the arbitrator may give them something, but it is noteworthy that in the British coal mining industry the great majority of the cases have been decided not by the arbitrator but by common agreement between the parties.

Even after a general agreement has been arrived at many questions remain to be settled. The joint board cannot, of course, determine the wages of each individual man, but can merely fix general wages and conditions of labor.

In order to obviate any possible causes of dispute under the agreement and to interpret fairly, agents or joint boards are selected in each county for the settlement of disputes arising out of the interpretation or application of the general agreement. These boards of conciliation have been highly successful and have been renewed from year to year. The representatives of both sides appear to have great confidence in one another, and in spite of the fact that questions are often very technical, the board of conciliation will sometimes leave the settlement of a problem to the award of a single man, who may be the representative either of the operators or of the miners.

This board of conciliation is usually small, consisting of only six members on each side, and arrangements are made for arbitration by a permanent chairman in case the representatives of the two sides cannot agree. Only one case in ten, however, is settled by arbitration, the others being settled by agreement or voluntarily withdrawn or dismissed on account of lack of jurisdiction.

The above description is true of the conditions as they have existed in the British coal mining industry during the last ten years. Within the last few months, however, a cloud has appeared upon the horizon and an attitude has been adopted by the coal owners which seems to put in danger the whole principle for which the men have been striving, while it threatens the peace of the coal mining industry. Ever since 1901 wages have fallen in the mining industry of Great Britain, and from the high wages which prevailed during the Boer war the rate of pay now has declined until it has reached the minimum, which is about five shillings and sixpence (or $1.37) per day. Owing to the further fact that work is slack, due to the depression in business, the weekly earnings of the coal miners are very low.

To make matters worse, the mine owners of scotland now have served notice of their determination to reduce the minimum with the intention of enforcing a further reduction of wages. This, apparently, they have a legal right to do, provided that they give the men three months' notice. The men, however, feel, and have felt all along during the last ten years, that the establishment of a minimum or living wage had been recognized by the coal owners and that any surrender of this principle would take away from the miners all protection and permit the unlimited and continued reduction of wages.

The question is one of national importance. If a reduction of wages below the minimum can be effected in Scotland, it will inevitably be followed by a similar reduction of the minimum wage in other parts of Great Britain, and by a complete demoralization of the industry throughout the kingdom.

In this crisis the miners of Scotland have called upon their brethren in the English and Welsh mines to meet them in a conference to determine upon a single policy of united action in resisting the aggressions of the Scottish mine owners and in defense of the minimum wage. It is, of course, impossible to foresee what any conference will determine upon, but from such information as I have obtained it seems probable that unless the Scottish mine owners withdraw their demand for the abrogation of the minimum wage the result will be a total cessation of mining in Great Britain, as the English, Scotch and Welsh miners will defend this principle to the last ditch.

It is the earnest hope of the miners' officials, as well as of the leading men in the community, a hope expressed everywhere, that the Scottish mine owners may perceive the folly of their present attitude and may be persuaded to withdraw a demand which assails the fundamental principle upon which the peace movement has been based and which threatens the discontinuance of harmony in the coal industry of Great Britain.

THE TRADE UNION MOVEMENT IN FRANCE.

In every country which we have visited, the trade unions appear to show peculiarities and to differ from the trade unions in America. In America the labor organizations took their rise at a late period, but grew rapidly both in membership and power. In England, on the other hand, the growth of the unions has been slow and steady; they have developed in that country into great and powerful organizations, with large funds and with a complicated and excellent system of benefits for their members. In England, also, under the free government which there obtains, the unions have developed a system of agreements with the employers, and conciliation rather than strikes is the goal which is sought. In Germany the unions still show the effects of a policy of restriction and repression under a state ruled by the police. In that country the labor unions are still not allowed to hold even local meetings without first obtaining permission, and without admitting the police, and in many cases it is even impossible for them to secure halls in order to carry on the necessary work of the organization.

It was once said of the French that they could not make good trade unionists, but there is more error than truth in this statement. The uneven and difficult growth of the French trade unions has been due less to the character of the people than to the difficulties which have been put in the way of their organizations. It has only been during the last thirty years that the French government has ceased to be distinctly unfriendly to labor organizations, and only during the last twenty years that trade unions have been definitely legalized.

The right of workmen to associate was taken away during the French revolution by the law of 1791. In order to do away with the former close corporations of employers and workmen, and to secure complete freedom of labor, it was forbidden by law for people in the same trade to join together to pursue their "supposed" common interests. According to this law, any coalition of workmen, with the purpose of leaving off work simultaneously (that is, striking), or of influencing the hours of labor, or of making labor dearer, was made punishable by fine and imprisonment. The employers were equally forbidden to unite with the object of reducing wages unreasonably.

Like many laws of this nature, this statute was found to cut only one way. Against employers the law was hardly ever invoked and organizations among employing bakers, butchers, carpenters, etc., gradually came into being and were tolerated. Subsequently larger organizations and federations of employers were formed at Paris and in the provinces and these bodies, although without legal standing, were tolerated and recognized by the government.

In the meantime the law was rigidly enforced against the trade unions. From 1825 to 1848 over 7,000 workmen were accused of the crime of entering into combinations, and of these 4,500 were sent to prison, while from 1848 to 1864 there were almost 5,000 workmen sent to prison for the same offense. Notwithstanding this persecution a few unions succeeded in organizing under the guise of friendly societies, the compositors and hatters maintaining a precarious existence under this form. Finally, in 1868, the unions, without being made legal, were granted toleration so long as they refrained from the commission of acts of violence or from interference with the freedom of labor.

It was not until 1884, however, that the unions were placed upon a firm legal basis. In that year, through the activity of Monsieur Waldeck-Rousseau, a statute was passed which is still the fundamental trades union law for the country. By this law the unions were entirely legalized, it being merely provided that each union, taking advantage of the law, place in the hands of the government officials a copy of its constitution and by-laws and the names of its officers, who must be Frenchmen, in possession of their civic rights. The unions were granted the right to unite into federations, to sue and to hold property, with a proviso that they could only hold enough real property to provide places for meetings, as well as libraries and technical schools.

In France trade unions are included under the head of what may be called trade associations (syndicate professionels). These trade associations include, beside the regular trade unions, organizations of employers and mixed organizations. Thus, at the present time, there are over 2,600 employers' associations in mining, manufacturing, commerce and agriculture, the membership of which amounts to 185,000. There are also 155 so-called mixed associations, consisting of employers and workmen. In these organizations the employers and workmen each contribute a certain share of the expense of the organization, and provision is made for aid in the case of sickness or accident, for pensions to disabled or aged workmen, for savings banks and for other similar purposes. An association composed, however, of individual employers and workmen cannot take the place of a trade union and cannot represent the interests either of the employers or of the workmen. As a result the mixed associations at the present time include less than 35,000 members, and they are finding it difficult to maintain even this number of adherents.

At the present time there are 614,000 members of the French trade unions. The organizations, although small, with an average membership of only 170, are rapidly growing, their numbers having more than doubled within the last eight or ten years. As in England and the United States, the unions grew slowly during the bad times after 1893, but from 1898 their growth has been phenomenal. This is especially true in Paris, in which city 30 per cent. of all the French trade unionists are to be found. The unions have spread into many grades, and, especially during recent years, have attracted large numbers of women. At the present time there are over 50,000 women in the regular unions and in the mixed unions of employers and workmen. It is interesting to note that the proportion of women is much larger in the mixed unions and that these hybrid combinations are strongest in the trades where women or unskilled workmen are employed, and where the organization of real trade unions is difficult.

The French unions are largely engaged in solving the problem of unemployment. Over 800 of them have employment offices, many of them have out-of-work benefits, and still others make definite payments to permit the member out of work to travel to other cities. The unions also maintain general benefit funds, libraries, and, in some cases, schools for technical training, co-operative societies, newspapers, old age funds, accident funds, and in the case of five organizations, laboratories.

Unfortunately, however, the unions are for the most part so small and so many that they fail to have the same influence upon wages, hours and conditions of labor that is exercised by American and English labor organizations. In many cases, two or three or more unions exist in the same trade and in the same town, and friction and jealousy are engendered by this rivalry. The unions, however, have now begun to form federations of a national scope, and about one-third of all French trade unionists are organized under what may be compared with more or less exactness to our national and international organizations. Thus the national federation of miners, which includes about 60,000 members, or about one-half of all the miners of the country, is now practically organized upon a national basis, and the same is true to a greater or less extent of the metal workers, compositors, railway workers, and members of the building trades. The compositors have been organized for a long time, have initiated many reforms in their industry, have developed benefit features, and have dealt with much wisdom and discretion with the questions of the employment of women and the introduction of the linotype machine.

One of the most interesting developments in the trade union world in France is the development of the so-called labor exchange. These labor exchanges are local organizations, including members of the different cities, and correspond in some particulars to our central labor bodies. Originally formed for the purpose of finding employment for men out of work, these labor exchanges, including the great majority of the unions within the cities, have gradually extended their scope and influence so that they may almost be called the heart of the French labor movement. As a rule the labor exchanges possess buildings which serve as common meeting places for the individual unions, and have also waiting and lounging rooms, libraries, halls for lectures or for educational courses, etc. The original labor exchange was that of Paris, which was proposed as early as 1790, but which was not finally organized until almost a century later. At the present time there are eighty-six labor exchanges throughout France, and almost three-fourths of the trade unionists of the country belong to them. To defray the original cost of their buildings they have received large sums of money, amounting to over $600,000, from the cities, and they still receive annual subventions both from the municipal governments and from the departments. Their numbers are growing with extreme rapidity, having doubled within two years. A further development has been reached by the coalition of almost one-half of the labor exchanges into a Federation of Labor Exchanges, which has its seat in Paris and is beginning to exert a powerful and beneficent influence.

Upon the whole it appears that the French labor movement is in a period of development through which American and English unions may be said to have passed. Retarded and hampered for many decades by the open hostility of the government, they have now reached a point of practically complete independence, and are progressing along lines which should lead to a full development and complete success. Unlike England, Germany and Belgium, France is preponderatingly an agricultural country, and it is not to be expected that the number of trade unionists will represent the same fraction of the community as will finally be possible in these other countries. The French unions, however, already include almost one-sixth of all the workmen engaged in French industries, and the rate at which the organizations are growing and the progress made toward the development of federations and the outlining of sound labor policies, lead one to hope for a bright future for the trades union movement in France.

LABOR CONDITIONS IN BELGIUM.

To the traveler in Belgium, the country appears one continuous industrial town. From the car window one sees nothing but cities, towns and villages, and one is rarely out of sight of smoke stacks. With the exception of certain small provinces, the whole of Belgium resembles nothing but a cluster of mines, workshops and factories around which the population of the country is scattered.

To the American, accustomed to magnificent distances and large spaces, it seems quite incomprehensible that the Belgium population manages to exist upon its small territory. The whole country is not much more than 100 miles each way, not much greater than a quarter of the State of Ohio, and in about three hours one can traverse it in any direction. Upon this small area there are almost 7,000,000 inhabitants and the population increases by leaps and bounds. The birth rate is excessively high, and in spite of the fact that the country is more densely populated than any part of Europe, except Saxony, there seems to be more immigrants than emigrants. Half of the people are Flemish and half are French; but both sections of the population, who by the way live in perfect harmony and accord, continue to increase in population with each year.

With such a crowded population it is natural that Belgium should be a land of cities. For the most part, the people gather into cities and towns, and even the farming population is so dense that there is no isolation in life. As one passes through this country one can see how carefully the land is cultivated. The agricultural sections of the country are divided and subdivided into little miniature farms, almost two-thirds of the farms being less than two and a half acres in extent. Such a thing as a large farm is almost unknown, not one in 300 having the area of an ordinary homestead. The movement from the country to the city is very easy because of the small area and the easy communication, and, as many of the cultivators of the soil do not own the land which they work, the temptation to leave the field for the factory is correspondingly great.

Everywhere in Belgium one sees evidences of the utmost thrift and economy and the greatest possible utilization of every available means of increasing the family income. Nothing seems to be thrown away, and the cheapest means of production seems always to be used. Thus in Belgium, dogs to a large extent take the place of horses. The milkman, the baker, the coal dealer, the seller of petroleum, and the vendor of small aritcles, who can not afford to feed a horse, generally goes about town with a little cart drawn by one of these strong native dogs. One sees a dog harnessed to the wagon either in front or below the truck, and some times these dogs draw as much as half a ton or even a ton of coal. The dogs work willingly, dragging their heavy loads from early in the morning until late at night, and on the whole they are well-treated. But the sight is not a pleasant one, for they are often taxed beyond their strength and their tongues hang out and their bodies droop from exhaustion.

Next to the dogs, women are the hardest worked creatures in Belgium. Often a woman is harnessed with a dog. Women, in fact, are employed almost everywhere. Until within a few years many of them worked underground in the mines; and even now there are many thousands who do the hard work of picking slate upon the surface. In Liege we saw a troop of women with little twig brushes cleaning the street in an energetic but highly ineffective manner. There were fully a score of them, and although they were paid only thirty cents a day, it is probable that the work was not only worse done, but was dearer than it would have been in an American city where higher wages would have been paid and more modern methods used.

The Belgians appear to be not only extremely thrifty, but to work quite continuously. They do not work as hard as does the American workman, and they accomplish very much less; but their work extends through long hours and the pay for it is extremely small. Recently the government took a census of the working people of Belgium and printed a large report about the rate of wages, the hours of labor and the condition of the workers generally. From this report it appears that the great majority of the laboring population work from ten to eleven and a half hours, and that only about one in ten work less than ten hours. The wages are extremely low. Of all the working people of the country (including women and children) engaged in private industries, about a quarter earn less than 40 cents a day, another quarter earn from 40 to 60 cents, and another quarter from 60 to 80 cents.

Less than one in six earn over 80 cents a day, and less than one in a hundred of the whole working population earn over $1.30 a day. Even if we take only the adult male workers, the wages are very low. Only about man in ten earns over 90 cents a day, and only one in twenty earns over $1.20. The wages of women are naturally much less. Almost a quarter of all the people engaged in industrial enterprises are women, and of these women about two-fifths earn less than 30 cents a day and nine-tenths less than 50 cents a day. To find a woman engaged in any private industry earning over $1 a day is like looking for a needle in a haystack, the census showing that only one in 10,000 earns this magnificent salary. The boys and girls under sixteen are paid in proportion, one-quarter of them earning 10 cents a day or less, and only one-sixth earning as much as 30 cents a day.

Of course, one can not straightway compare Belgian or, in fact, any Continental wages with those paid in America. The conditions are different, the standard of living is different, and the cost of the articles that the workmen consume is also different. It is not true, however, that the condition of the workmen in Belgium or, in fact, in any Continental country is at all comparable with that of workmen in the United States. The Belgians say that they earn less, but that it costs less to live, but the truth is that they live for less because they live on less. In the mining districts the workmen live in well-built little brick houses, but they have only a few rooms to a family. The clothing is much cheaper, though also much poorer in quality, and articles of which labor forms a large part of the cost are also generally cheaper. The ordinary articles, however, which the workingman must use are almost as dear and in some cases considerably dearer than in the United States.

At Liege, for instance, wheat bread costs only from two and a half to three cents a pound, but on the other hand fresh eggs cost (in October) 3 cents apiece, fresh butter 28 to 30 cents a pound; beef 23 to 26 cents a pound; pork chops from 16 to 17 cents a pound, and lard from 9 to 18 cents, according to whether it is American or Belgian. Other prices are equally comparable with those in America. Sugar costs from 5 to 6 cents a pound, rice from 3 to 8 cents a pound, and petroleum from 12 to 14 cents a gallon. In other words, unprepared food is upon the whole as expensive, and in the case of meat, butter and eggs, more expensive than in the United States. In many parts of Belgium the workingmen rarely obtain meat, and then only the inferior cuts and much of the lassitude and lack of energy of the worker is perhaps accountable to the fact that he is under-nourished.

There are many articles which Belgium is able to produce much more cheaply than the United States, but in other industries the cost of production is greater than with us. To some extent this may be due to the low wages of the workman and the consequent ineffectiveness of his work. Low wages usually mean high cost of production, because the work done by the cheap laborers is usually of a low grade. To some extent, however, the low wages are due to the smaller natural resources of the country. Near Liege we visited a number of coal mines and were surprised to find that the veins of coal which were exploited were so thin, so superimposed upon each other, and at such a pitch that they could not have been worked at all in the United States. In our soft coal mines, the average output per man is from three to four tons per day, but in Belgium the average output per day per man is only about two-thirds of a ton. The Belgian miners earn only $250 a year, which is less than one-half of what the American miner receives, but despite this fact the cost of producing coal at the Belgian mines is over $2.50 per ton, while in the United States it is not far from $1 per ton.

Upon the whole, the conditions of the miners appear to be slightly better than those of most workmen in Belgium. The wages are quite low, averaging only about eighty-five cents per day, but the work is more regular than in American mines. In the mines which we saw, considerable provision had been made for the comfort of the men. They went to their work in their ordinary clothes, and wash rooms were provided for changing garments and for cleaning whatever was necessary. Provision was also made for the health of the miner while under ground, so that the mines could be kept in a sanitary condition and the men rendered immune, as far as possible, from disease. This is especially necessary in the Continental mines, as many of the workers suffer from the worm disease which is prevalent in these regions. The mines which we saw had small hospitals and men who were injured were paid from a fund to which both mine owners and miners contributed.

To a considerable extent the workmen of Belgium are united into trades unions. For a long time they have been organized politically, forming a part of the powerful Socialist party in that country, and the co-operative societies have also formed a nucleus about which the Belgian workingmen have grouped themselves. The co-operative movement is very successful in Belgium, and a considerable part of the profits from co-operation has been devoted to the education of the working classes and to improving their conditions generally.

The trade union movement itself is rapidly gaining ground. In 1902 there were over 100,000 unionists, who were represented in a congress of workingmen, and this number did not include forty organizations which failed entirely to put in an appearance. Many of these unions are Socialistic in politics, but others belong to the Catholic party, others to the Liberal party, while still others are neutral politically. The gain in membership during the year 1902 was over 10,000, or more than 10 per cent. of the membership of the year preceding.

Despite the large number of women workers, the organization among them appears to be retarded. In 1902 there were only 3,600 women organized and represented at the congresss, the percentage of women unionsts being smaller for Belgium than for most other countries. Organization has, however, begun to take root throughout the whole working class, and a steady growth in the numbers and in the power of the unions is expected by the leaders in this movement.

THE INTERNATIONAL MINING CONGRESS.

For five days the representatives of the world were in session in the Bourse de Travail at Paris under the auspices of the miners' international congress. For fifteen years this congress has held annual sessions, at which questions of interest to the miners of the world have been taken up and discussed.

The meeting this year was the most important since the organization of the international congress. For the first time in its history there were present at the congress delegates from the United States, and thus the seventy-seven members represented almost all of the coal mining countries of the world, or, in other words, almost the entire coal mining population of the world—that is, 2,069,500 miners. There were representatives from all parts of Great Britain, from Germany, Austria, France, Belgium and the United States, which countries produce over nineteen-twentieths of the entire amount of coal mined.

It is always extremely difficult for men of different nationalities and speaking different languages to meet and discuss problems of common interest. The majority of the representatives understood English, but neither French nor German, while those who spoke either French or German were ignorant of the other two languages. As a consequence all the proceedings, including the speeches of the delegates, had to be translated and retranslated, so that it took thirty minutes for a ten minutes' speech to reach the understanding of all the delegates. However, the translators were extremely able, and the delegates limited their speeches to the most important matters, with the result that the proceedings were very much more rapid and intelligible than might have been expected.

It would be difficult to exaggerate the advantages which have resulted from the annual meetings of the Miners' International Congress. The effect has been to inspire the delegates from the more backward countries with the hope of improving the condition of the miners whom they represent. In the past the initiative in these congresses was usually taken by the English miners. At first the German, French and Belgian delegates were unfamiliar with parliamentary rules, and the course of the sessions was delayed by a number of men trying to speak at once; but in the last session, and in a number of sessions previous, the congress was conducted in the most admirable method, and the rules of parliamentary procedure were adhered to most strictly. The various nationalities displayed the utmost courtesy and consideration toward one another, and friendliness and good-fellowship reigned throughout the congress.

Since the beginning of these annual congresses the conditions of European miners have been everywhere improved. Wages have risen, the hours of labor have been reduced, and the sanitary condition of the mines has been bettered. Another gain during this time has been the prohibition by practically all the countries represented of work by women inside the mines. While many women in Europe pick slate and do other rough work on the outside of the mines, almost none work inside.

The proceedings of the congress are conducted in a rapid, sensible and business-like manner. Each day a president is elected, who serves for that day only, and for each nationality a separate president is also elected. The credentials of the delegates are passed upon by members of their own nationality, and only in cases of dispute (which have not yet arisen) are questions of this sort submitted to the business committee. This business, or international committee, which agrees upon the proceedings and acts as sort of executive committee, consists of one member from each nationality. The delegates to the congress must be either miners or miners' secretaries, but the public is admitted to the deliberations. In discussing any measure or motion one speaker is heard from each nationality, and the speeches are usually made as short as possible in order to prevent a needless waste of time in translation.

Much of the discussion during the present congress bore upon the subjects of shorter working hours and the establishment of a minimum wage. The hours of labor have already been somewhat reduced in continental countries, while in England they are already shorter than they are in the United States. As in America, the miners of Europe are endeavoring to secure a universal eight-hour day for miners, and considerable progress has already been made in this direction.

The congress was unanimous in its vote to obtain by such means as were best suited to the situation in the various countries the speedy establishment of a minimum wage. The greatest possible difference exists between the wages of miners in various parts of Europe. In Great Britain the wages, until the last year or two, have been relatively high, comparing not unfavorably with the wages of American miners. In France and Belgium, however, wages are much lower, and in certain parts of Germany, notably in the eastern or Silesian district, and throughout Austria, the rate of remuneration is so low that the workingman can not live in decency, and in many cases can not even maintain himself in physical vigor. Generally speaking, wages are highest where the men are best organized, and it is one of the objects of this congress, therefore, to spread unionism into all parts of Europe, in order to maintain a fair rate of wages for coal mining throughout the world.

One of the most serious questions discussed by the congress was that of mine sanitation. In many parts of Europe, in Great Britain, France, Belgium and in other countries, the miners suffer from a worm disease called anchylostomiasis. This worm, which is very small, is usually to be found in damp and badly ventilated mines. It destroys the red corpuscles of the blood and produces a feeling of lassitude and an entire absence of energy, which prevents men from doing effective work. There are mines in which as many as 90 per cent. of the miners are affected by this disease, which not only reduces efficiency of the men, but weakens them to such an extent that they become highly suceptible to other diseases. The congress took action looking toward the investigation of the worm disease and advocated that legal measures be taken to arrest and combat its propagation.

The chief importance of the congress is its indirect, rather than its direct, consequences. The congress has no power to compel the obedience or even the adherence of the unions in the several countries, but almost all of the resolutions are adopted by unanimous vote, and the congress exerts a strong moral influence upon the miners' organizations and upon the community in general. The European newspapers devoted considerable space to the proceedings of the congress, and much interest was manifested in the future plans of the organizations. With each year the influence of the congress becomes greater as the miners of the world realize that the problems which beset them are more or less similar in all countries.

It is now proposed that the congress eventually form itself into a permanent body by the appointment of an international secretary and the establishment of a central office. If this is accomplished, the permanent secretary will secure information bearing on the conditions of miners in the various countries, and this information printed in German, French and English, will be widely distributed, so that the miners in each country may be kept informed of the conditions in all parts of the world.

As in all congresses, much of the most important work of the miners' congress is done outside of the meetings. The influence of the delegates from countries where wages are high and conditions of labor good upon representatives from countries where organization is just beginning, has been extremely effective and beneficial. The meetings of the congress also lead to the settlement of long-standing difficulties. During the present congress, for instance, the American delegates were able to make important arrangements for the transfer or admission of members from one country to another, these arrangements being made with Belgium, France, Germany and Austria. In the past some friction and misunderstanding had arisen owing to the fact that when a Frenchman or German presented himself for admission to the American union and asked as a foreign unionist to be exempted from paying the initiation fee it was frequently impossible to tell whether the applicant was or was not a member of a foreign union.

This difficulty has now been entirely done away with by the adoption of a uniform system, and this reform is entirely due to the fact that the delegates of these countries and from America were enabled to meet at an international congress.

The chief service conferred by the international congresses has been the moral aid which they have given to the organization of miners into trade unions throughout continental Europe. This organization is proceeding with much rapidity, although the continental miners are still not nearly so well organized as their brethren in the United States and Great Britain. The difficulties of organization are even greater in such countries as Germany and Austria than in the United States. In Germany, for instance, the union has to deal with the same problem of uniting different nationaities as is encountered in the United States. During recent years tens of thousands of people of differing nationalities, including Poles, Hungarians, Czechs, Italians and others, have entered the German mines. These people, usually unable to speak German, live by themselves in company patches, or what are there called colonies. Every effort is made, however, to reach the people of foreign nationality and with much success. The German miners, for example, issue an excellent weekly journal, printed in German, but containing one page in Polish, giving the most important news in that language. At first, as in America, the people of foreign birth underbid the native miners, but, with the progress of the years, the foreign speaking people became strongly imbued with the principles of unionism, and they are now among the most ardent and enthusiastic of unionists. Miners of foreign birth have also invaded the mines of Belgium, and, to a considerable extent, of France, but in all of these countries the problem of different tongues is being dealt with in somewhat the same manner as in the United States.

The continental miners, however, have even more serious difficulties to contend with. This is especially true of Germany. The attitude of the great producers of coal is one of absolute, uncompromising and unwavering hostility, and at all times they refuse to meet with the union or to discuss terms. The rate of wages, the hours of work, and the conditions of employment are fixed by the large operators, who post notices on their walls. There is no recognition of the union, no conferences between representatives of the two sides, no answer that the men can make except silent acquiescence or a strike. The operators, although organized into huge trusts, are opposed to the very existence of unions, and would, if it were possible, take away from the workmen the legal right to join trade unions. The hostility of these large employers goes so far, in fact, as to express a desire for the withdrawal of the franchise from the workingmen by the abolition of universal suffrage.

The hostility of the large operators in Germany toward the unions is re-enforced by a determined persecution on the part of the state. Like other public meetings, those of trade unions cannot be held without obtaining permission from the police at least twenty-four hours in advance, and without the presence of police officials at the meetings.

This law, however, seems to be enforced with greater rigor and stringency against the unions than against other bodies. The policeman sits upon the platform next to the presiding officer, and whenever he considers anything is said or done illegal, he rises, takes off his helmet and respectfully informs the audience that the meeting is dissolved. In many sections of the country the unions are sytematically boycotted by the owners public halls, and in some cases it is practically impossible to hold meetings in any suitable place. Even the meetings of the local organizations are considered public meetings, requiring twenty-four hours' notice and the presence of the police, and it is often necessary to forego having meetings at all and to secure the opinion of the members upon important subjects by meeting them individually. The police are harsh in their judgment of offenses committed in trade union meetings, and unionists have been sent to jail for two or three years for offenses which in America would not entail more than a small fine.

Notwithsanding all the obstacles, the organization of the miners of the world is proceeding rapidly, as is evidenced by the congress of 2,000,000 miners, of whom over 1,000,000 are already enrolled in trade unions.

HOW THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT INSURES THE WORKMAN.

One of the greatest evils in the life of the average workman is the uncertainty of his existence. Not only is he liable to be thrown out of employment at a week's notice, but with the increasing rapidity and intensity of the work, he may very well be an old man at 45 or 50, unable longer to earn a living wage. The worker, like all other men, is also subject to sickness, entailing upon him loss of wages and upon his family many privations. Finally, there is death lurking in every factory, and the man who began work in the morning in full health may be killed or crippled before the evening sets in.

The workman himself has sought to solve the problems which this uncertainty in his life entails. Through trade unions and friendly societies he has organzed in England, France, the United States and other countries, funds out of which are paid to him certain sums in case of sickness, accident or sudden death. This insurance by unions, however, has never been upon a scale which embraced all the people of the nation, and no attempt was made in this direction until the German government succeeded in the eighties in insuring practically all of the workingmen within its borders against accident, sickness, old age and invalidity.

Workingmen's insurance in Germany is organized by the government and is made compulsory. A miner or a textile worker, a bricklayer or a carpenter must insure whether he will or not. The government recognized that in the past no sufficient provision had or could have been made by the workingman against death, and that many of them would not insure except under compulsion. The workingman who was permanently injured became a burden upon public charity, and the condition of the wives, children and other dependents of sick or injured artisans were recognized as utterly deplorable. The low wages existing in Germany, as in most countries of the world, did not allow the workingman to lay by enough money to provide for his old age, especially when inability to work came earlier than the age when it is allotted to man to live in vigor.

The insurance laws of Germany were initiated by Bismarck, the Iron Chancellor, although they were not his original conception. For many years the idea of compulsory government insurance of workingmen was a matter of common discussion, and the plans for such an institution had been carefully worked out. There were already in existence certain organizations of a quasi public nature which served as a prototype for the new legislation. The purpose of Bismarck seems to have been to combat the the growing socialistic party by outbidding it for the votes of the workingmen. The socialist party which had grown largely after the war with France, had been harshly repressed after 1878, but notwithstanding all persecution, the movement grew in numbers and power, and the ultimate failure of the repressive legislation against it had to be recognized. The plan of Bismarck did not succeed in its immediate object of injuring the socilaistic party, which has since grown largely, attracting to its ranks not only workingmen, but peasants and members of the professional and even business circles who are discontented with the prevalent militarism and absolutism. The result of the plan, however, has been extremely beneficial, and the system of insurance worked out in Germany has been of enormous benefit to the workmen of that country, and has led to the inauguration of more or less similar legislation in most of the countries of Europe.

The insurance system of the German empire is divided into three parts: sick insurance, accident insurance, and old age and invalidity insurance. The laws providing for insurance against sickness were the first to be passed; the law of 1883, providing that all workingmen and officials employed in mines, collieries, factories or other industrial establishments, enjoying a salary of less than $475, were to be compulsorily insured. As the vast majority of German workers earn very much less than this amount, the numbers of persons thus exempted was small. Later the provisions of the law were extended to commercial firms and offices, so that at the present time about ten millions of persons are insured in this way. It was necessary for the success of the government insurance against sickness that fraud be prevented and that the officials who paid the insurance should know the person who claimed under the act. In other words, it was necessary to organize the insurance locally. There were in existence, moreover, thousands of local bodies already issuing sick insurance some of these societies having large accumulated funds. Instead of tearing down the old system, the government built upon it, and kept in existence the tens of thousands of organizations already giving insurance to workingmen. The local societies maintained a large part of their independence, but they were compelled by the new law to make annual reports, and certain minimum payments in all cases of illness throughout the empire where insisted upon.

There are at the present time many kinds of insurance societies against sickness forming a part of the government system, some of them local sick associations, embracing all the workpeople in a city, others including all persons within a single factory, others which are voluntary associations existing before the passage of the act, still others composed of persons engaged in temporary building operations, and others, again, organized by the separate states. All of these associations are under the one organic law, and are a part of the system and all must grant at least free medical attendance, free medicine, and after the first three days of illness a regular payment equal to one-half of the daily wages of the invalid for a period of thirteen weeks in a year, provided the workman is ill for that length of time. In case of death from sickness, the heirs receive a sum equal to the wages of the deceased for twenty days while burial expenses are also defrayed. To women employes relief is accorded for four weeks during confinement.

The sums so determined are usually estimated to be on less than three-fourths of the rate of wages usually earned by the sick man, but these payments are only a minimum, and are frequently, usually, exceeded. In some cases full wages are granted instead of half wages, and the payment of the benefit is sometimes extended throughout the year instead of ceasing after thirteen weeks. The sums so paid out are derived from a fund to which the workingman contributes two-thirds and the employers one-third, but the amount demanded of the workingman can not in any case exceed from 2 to 3 per cent. of his wages. The employer advances the money and checks off the sums against the wages of the workingman. He is also obliged to keep records of the men insured and of the sums paid by them, and is not reimbursed for this clerical work.

The German insurance against sickness has now been in operation for about twenty years, and the results furnish the most interesting information about the prevalence of illness among workingmen and women. There are at present over 22,000 associations under the government system, and over nine and a half million men and women insured, the average association having about 425 members. The amount of money spent is very large, the receipts amounting in 1901 to almost $45,000,000, and the expenditure to almost $40,000,000. On an average there is one case of sickness (counting only those of over three days' duration) to every three workmen, and the average sickness lasts about eighteen days. Taking the whole working class population there is a loss of about seven days per year for each workingman and woman.

It is not possible to determine from the German experience whether or not sickness is increasing among workingmen. What is certain is that the payments which have been made to persons who are sick have been largely increased, the average cost per workingman insured having risen from about $3.00 fifteen years ago to about $4.00 at present. This seems to be due to a more generous treatment of the sick rather than to a larger percentage of illness. The average payment to each person per day of sickness ranges between 50 and 60 cents.

The German insurance against accidents was originally limited to persons engaged in manufacturing and mechanical pursuits, but it has now been extended to include persons engaged in inland transportation, in the postal, telegraph and railway service, and in the army and navy, as well as agricultural workers, seamen, and people employed in building and construction. Everyone so employed, earning a salary or wage of less than $475 per year, must be insured, and he is paid for all accidents, provided they are not intentional. The sum granted must be sufficient to pay for the cure and to provide an allowance during the entire period of incapacity. It also includes burial money in case of death and an allowance to the surviving widow or children, or parents of the deceased. The entire cost of the government insurance against accidents is borne by the employers, who are formed into trade associations, with their own rules and regulations and their own independent administration and government. It is to the interest of each association to make the factories or mines under its control as safe as possible, and where an employer refuses to put in proper safety appliances demanded by his association, he may be assessed at a higher rate by that body, while the workingman, on the other hand, may be fined for disobedience of rules looking to his safety and preservation. Payment for accidents is made through the postoffice, but the money so advanced is refunded to the government by the employers' association.

Practically the whole working class population of Germany, or, in other words, almost 19,000,000 workingmen and workingwomen are insured in this manner against accidents. As every accident is reported to the government, statistics exist for each industry, showing the danger of that trade. The number of slight accidents is enormous, even in a country like Germany, where every precaution is taken to avoid injuries. During the year 1901, there were 112,000 workingmen and women injured, of whom, however, only 8,500 were killed. Accidents are, of course, much more frequent in industry and in transportation than in agriculture. The workingman who is permanently and completely disabled, receives two-thirds of his salary as a pension, while the person who is permanently but only partially injured receives a smaller sum in proportion to his disability.. The total sum expended in 1901 in accident insurance was about $30,000,000, the total reserve fund being over $35,000,000.

It was claimed by the opponents of the government insurance that if the workingmen were insured they would become more careless. This has not proved to be the case. The number of slight accidents reported has been greater, but there has been no proof that the actual number of accidents has increased, and the proportions of deaths has tended rather to grow smaller as greater and greater precautions are taken. The industry of coal mining is ranked by the Germans as one of the most dangerous of all occupations.

The old age and invalidity insurance was organized in 1889, and has been in successful operation for fifteen years. The amount of this insurance is greater or smaller according to the wages of the workingman and the amount which he contributes per week, the contribution being in proportion to the wages of his men. The expenses of this fund are met by a contribution of 50 marks ($12.00) by the government to every workingman receiving an old age or invalidity pension, while the rest of the expense is divided evenly between the workmen and the employer.

Despite the opposition which the German insurance plans at first encountered, they are now working to the advantage of the workingman and are meeting each year with increased recognition.

AMERICAN AND EUROPEAN LABOR CONDITIONS COMPARED.

It seems almost presumptuous to make a comparison between American and European labor conditions after only a few months' stay in Europe. To carry on such a comparison thoroughly and completely would require many years of study devoted to this single subject. No one, however, who is interested in labor problems can travel through Europe without being struck by certain salient important differences between American and European conditions.

One of the chief difficulties in the way of making this comparison lies in the fact that in each country of Europe conditions are different. There is a greater variation between the situation of of the British miner and the miner of Silesia than between that of the British miner and the miner of the United States. One can speak only in general terms, and can give expression only to those impressions which are the most obvious and striking.

Generally speaking the material situation of the American workingman is far superior to that of his European brethren. Although wages, hours of labor and general conditions of work are far from satisfactory in the United States, the situation of the American workingman in these respects is better than that of the European workingman. Wages, measured both in money and in what money will buy, are higher than in England, and are much higher in the United States than in Germany, France or Belgium. The working day appears to be slightly longer in the United States than in England, and somewhat shorter in the the United States than in Germany, France or Belgium. The intensity of work is much greater in America than in any of the countries named. There is less idling, less dawdling, less "soldiering" and more precision and activity in the work of the average American than in that of the Englishman, Frenchman or German. The productivity of labor is also far greater in the United States. The average American workman produces in a day much more than his European brother, and the higher wages which the American workman receives are, therefore, often compatible with a lower cost of production than is possible in Europe. The greater output of the American workingman is due to the fact that, owing to his better nourishment and better training as well as to his better education, he is able to accomplish more and to work with greater muscular and nervous energy. Moreover, the higher wages of the American workingman constantly stimulate the employer to introduce labor-saving machinery and to effect economies which are not at the expense of the workman. In addition, the greater natural resources of the country and the larger and more efficient manner in which industry is organized in the United States, permit the American employer to pay higher wages without entailing a greater cost, which fact should be borne in mind when estimating the advantages and disadvantages under which the American workingman labors.

In Europe, as in America, one constantly hears the statement that the dollar of the American workingman does not go further than the shilling of the Englishman, the mark of the German, or even the franc of the Frenchman or Belgian; in other words, that the cost of living is in proportion to the wages earned. Nothing could be further from the truth. The standard of living of the American workingman is far from what it should be in a country of our surpassing wealth and great natural resources, but it is higher than the standard of living in England, and much further advanced than on the continent. The European workingman spends less on living because he has less to spend, and he has less of the decencies, comforts and luxuries of life than does the American workingman. He lives on less money, but he also lives on less food. He has fewer clothes, and they are of poorer quality, and his lodgings, with some exceptions, are much worse. The chief article in the budget of the workingman—food—is on the whole not less expensive, and, in many cases, is more expensive than in the United States; house rent—which is the second largest item—is not much less expensive, and in some cases it is more costly than would be similar accommodation in places of the same population in the United States. On the whole, the things which are cheap are those which do not enter largely into the consumption of the working classes, or which do not have a great influence upon the purchasing power of wages.

Taking into consideration the whole of western Europe, it would seem that women work more, and, perhaps, at harder toil, than in the United States. The conditions surrounding many women workers in our great American cities are so entirely bad that nothing in Europe could be styled worse; but the proportion of women who are working, especially the proportion who are engaged in occupations requiring great muscular effort, seems to be larger in Europe—and especially on the Continent—than in the United States. It is not many years since women were taken out of the mines in Europe, and as late as two years ago women were still employed inside the Belgian mines. Even at the present time there are tens of thousands of women engaged at the difficult and tedious task of picking slate above the surface of the English, Scotch, Welsh, Belgian, French and German mines. Women are very largely employed in agriculture, and in many towns are put at work cleaning the streets, or are engaged at other toilsome and wearying tasks. In many countries women still seem to be the cheapest and most serviceable beasts of burden; in some they are employed at occupations from which, in America, they would be excluded by public opinion. The prevalence of barmaids in Great Britain may be taken as a case in point.

The spirit of unionism is stronger in the United States than in any country on the Continent, but it is weaker here than in England. In the latter country labor organizations have existed for so many years that the principles of unionism have been transmitted from father to son, and the organizations can always count upon a loyalty and a love possible only after such a period of life. On the Continent, the unions, while growing in strength, are neither so powerful nor so firmly knit as are the American unions. The repressive measures of the government, the constant clash of political and industrial ideals, and the newness of unionism itself, all have tended to retard the progress of the organizations.

On the Continent, moreover, relations between employers and employed are not so favorable as in the United States. There are, perhaps, fewer strikes, and there may even be less direct friction, but in these countries the workingman, whether unionist or non-unionist, is not accorded the social position which he enjoys in America, and his organization is not, as a rule, recognized or dealt with. Even in England, the independence of the workingman appears to be very much less marked than in the United States; as one labor leader in England remarked, the Pullman porter in America is a free man, while the English waiter is a slave.

In no country—not even in England—do the working classes possess the same opportunities for voicing their ideas and ideals as in the United States. In our country most of the trade unions publish journals, supplemented by scores of other labor papers, while many of the great city dailies are distinctly friendly to the cause of unionism and devote many columns to labor news. In England, on the other hand, the larger newspapers devote scarcely any space to the doings of the workingmen or their representatives, and both in that country and on the continent there seems to be a dearth of intelligently directed appeals to the working classes.

In some respects, however, the condition of the working classes in Europe is very much superior to that of their brethren in America. Both in England, and to a still greater extent on the continent, regard is manifested for the safety of the workingmen, and there is less of that reckless spirit in which the lives of thousands of American workmen are sacrificed to the profits of the employer. The number of accidents to employes upon American railways is very much greater—both absolutely and relatively—than in any country of Europe. The number of miners killed or permanently injured is far greater in the United States than in England or upon the continent, and in practically all other industries the death rate from accidents is less than in the United States. Moreover, in Europe, the injured and disabled workmen and the widows of the workmen are not thrown aside to become a burden upon the community, but in all these countries provision is made by some system of insurance to guard them against unmerited misery. Also, in many countries provision is made for the insurance of the workingman against illness, old age and invalidity. In some of the countries of continental Europe he can look forward to the payment of a definite pension in case of illness, or when, through age or weakness, he is unable to work longer. In Europe, as in America, however, there is practically no provision against unemployment, except in so far as this is furnished by the out-of-work benefits of trade unions. In this matter the old established British unions are far in advance of the American organizations, and more protection is afforded the English workingman than is given the American laborer.

In many resepcts the European workingman is obliged to meet the same problems as are met by the American workingman, and to encounter the same difficulties. As in America, the workingman in Europe has been compelled to struggle for the limitation of the hours of labor of women and of children and for the prohibition of night work for women. He has also sought to obtain the passage of laws regulating the health of the workmen and the ventilation and sanitation of mines, mills and factories. In England these regulations appear to be more minute and more rigidly enforced than in any of our American States, while in no part of western Europe is there such an utter absence of protective legislation as in some of our Southern States. As in America, the sweating trade exists in London, Paris, Berlin, and practically all the large towns of Europe. The difficulty regulating home industry has been met only partially there, as in the United States, and in Europe, as in the United States, there are hundreds of thousands of men, women and children condemned to work at starvation wages under unspeakable unsanitary conditions.

Perhaps the most salient fact about labor in Europe is its ineffectiveness and the extent to which it is wasted. In almost every trade the output per worker is very much less than in the United States. The workmen do not appear to labor with the same nervous intensity as in this country. This is true of England, and still more true of Germany France and Belgium. There seems to be a much greater indisposition upon the part of both employers and workmen to introduce new machinery and process and to adopt new methods of work, although in Germany there is an ever-growing improvement in this direction. A much larger proportion of the labor of the people, moreover, seems to be devoted to the production of luxuries, or of articles intended for the exclusive use of the rich. In no country of Europe does the consumption of the workingman play so large a role in the demand for goods, and nowhere do workmen produce for their own class to the same extent as in the United States. For this reason the union label, which is so important a factor in American industry, is practically nonexistent in England and on the continent.

Another great point of difference between Europe and the United States is the fact that in the latter country the labor population is constantly changing, whereas in Europe it is largely stationary. In America by races which have immigrated one nationality after another is supplanted more recently, and the great problem of the American workingman at the present time is to raise the standard of living of the newcomers to the level of the men already employed. In Europe, on the other hand, there is relatively little immigration and the population is practically homogeneous. Moreover, the European workingman does not move so readily from place to place, but is far more fixed and immobile. The result is that in Europe, and especially on the continent, the wages of labor are to a much less extent regulated by unrestricted competition, and in a large measure are determined by custom and tradition. In Europe, also, the professional strike-breaker who may be moved from place to place and put at any job is almost nonexistent.

It is no mitigation of the real hardships of American workingmen that the conditions in this country are not so bad as they are in Europe, and the American workingmen should, as heretofore, strive to secure further improvement in conditions and more fortunate lives for the whole working class.

THE SOCIAL DEMOCRATIC PARTY IN GERMANY.

Some weeks ago, I was seated with a number of German workingmen, in one of the beautiful garden cafes which are to be found everywhere throughout the length and breadth of Germany. There were eight or ten in the party, two, members of the Reichstag, and all staunch trade unionists and enthusiastic social democrats. The conversation turned upon the condition of the workingman in Germany and in the United States, and later upon the progress and prospects of the Social Democratic party.

The discussion, which—as is usual in Germany—extended over many hours and became more interesting as the evening wore on, confirmed in my mind many impressions and pre-judgments which I had formed concerning the social democratic movement. Those with whom I was conversing gave me many details in regard to the formation of the party, its internal organization, and the lines of policy which it had been led to adopt.

In many respects, the Social Democratic party is one af the most remarkable political organizations in the world. In the rapidity of its growth, in the effectiveness of its machinery, and in the force and vividness of its appeal to various classes in the community, it stands almost unrivalled among political parties. It has increased in strength and influence and acquired recognition even in the face of pronounced opposition. In 1878 there were almost 500,000 Socialists, and in the number of its adherents the party stood fourth or fifth among the dozen or score of political bodies represented in the Reichstag. At that time, the German government, under the leadership of Bismarck, determined to crush the organization by means of laws rendering its further activity illegal. The result was, of course, exactly what might have been expected and exactly the opposite of that which was intended. For a few years the Socialists were confused, not knowing which way to turn, but they soon regained confidence and the secret propaganda which went on added rapidly to their numbers. By 1890 the failure of the oppressive law of 1878 was recognized and it was repealed. But by that time the organization had nearly one and a half million adherents, and in point of voters was first among the German parties. Since then the number of Socialist voters has steadily increased, until at the present time about two and one half million men—or something less than one-third of all German electors—vote this ticket.

If the electoral districts of Germany were redistributed every ten years according to the population, either with or without gerrymandering, the Socialists would hold at the present time time something like 110 or 120 out of a total of 397 seats. As a matter of fact, there are only about one-half this number of Socialists in the Reichstag. No redistricting has taken place for over thirty years, and the cities which are the strongholds of Socialism are, at the present time, represented in the German parliament on the basis of the population which they had thirty years ago. Even as matters stand, however, the Socialists hold one-seventh of all the seats, and are the second largest party in the Reichstag.

The effectiveness of the party is demonstrated in many ways. Though its receipts and expenditures are not large, considerable sums are spent in agitation, as well as for the subvention of a large number of daily papesr reperesenting its interests. The agitation for reforms is not confined to election times but is carried on continuously. In the party press, on the floor of the Reichstag, in the public meetings frequently held all over the country, many of the abuses which have crept into the German civil and military administration are pointed out and attacked. Frequently the Socialist is the only party in parliament willing to seek the redress of grievances, and in many cases the reforms demanded by other classes of society have been obtained through the intermediation of the Socialistic party, which is primarily made up of workingmen. Thus, the organization is at once democratic, popular and practical. Nevertheless, in its annual conventions questions of fundamental principles, as well as of temporary policy are discussed.

Not until one understands the actual political conditions in Germany does he begin to realize the secret of the great success of the Socialistic party. The political ideal of many of the men in power in Germany seems to be one of enlightened despotism, although, perhaps, the despotism is more apparent than the enlightenment. The liberty enjoyed by the citizens in Anglo-Saxon countries is very much restricted, and the rights of free speech and free assembly are by no means fully recognized. Everywhere are police regulations, almost everything is a misdemeanor, and many slight offenses are crimes. The country staggers under the weight of a militarism which crushes the people, impoverishes them and takes from them their liberty. In order to maintain huge armies on the French and Russian borders—which, in turn, leads to the excessive armament of these countries—the German youth is forbidden to emigrate, and upon coming of age, he is obliged to spend two or three years in dingy barracks, subject to the violence and cruelty of a brutal non-commissioned officer. The horrors of the German military system have been recently described in a book written by a young German officer, who was rewarded by a six months' imprisonment. But while the book swept through Europe and was sold by the hundreds of thousands, it contained nothing that had not adready been made known to the parliament and to the people of Germany by the constant attacks and complaints of the Socialists. The book of Lieutenant Bilse has aroused German public opinion, but has glanced off from the hard shell of German officialdom. Militarism has taken a new lease of life in the increase to the navy and in Germany's colonial misadventures, such as the brutal atrocities which led to the despairing revolts of the Hereros, one of the negro tribes subject to German domination.

The paternal manner in which the German government oversees the exercise of free speech is shown in many ways. The doctrine of lese majeste seems capable of infinite application, and many persons are annually sent to jail for remarks which in England or America would be visited with no punishment whatever. Not only the dignity of the sovereign, but that of the chief officials, military and civil, is proteceted by this wide-sweeping doctrine. In Germany, silence is golden, as the position of prison editor (Sitz-Redacteur) demonstrates. The editors of the Socialistic papers are so often sent to jail for statements conceived to be derogatory to the constituted authorities, that the editorial staff would soon be exhausted were it not for substitutes. As a consequence, these papers now usually have a young man holding a very subordinate position in one of the mechanical departments who calls himself the responsible editor and who goes to jail in place of the man who actually wrote the offending article.

At the table where we sat, every German had served a term of imprisonment varying from six months to four years. One of the members of the Reichstag had been sent to prison for a few years for a slight offense, and another of the men claimed to have served three and one-half years for having brushed into a policeman in the course of a somewhat disorderly meeting.

The action of the Socialists, as of the trade uionists in Germany, is very much hampered by the law regulating public meetings. Permission to hold a public meeting must be obtained twenty-four hours in advance, and the gathering is attended by a policeman who sits next to the chairman, and has the right to dissolve the meeting if in his judgment anything occurs which does not conform to the letter of the law. Boys under 17, and in certain parts of the country, boys under 21, are not allowed to go to public meetings of any sort, and the presence of youths under the statutory age has been used as a pretext for abruptly dissolving meetings which were being conducted in a most law-abiding and peaceable manner.

While the Socialists in Germany number over two and a half millions, there are less than one million trade unionists. I asked my German friends why this was, and in the course of a long explanation they gave me many reasons. In the first place, the German workman seems to have been accustomed for a longer time to political than to industrial action, and the Socialistic party after 1890 had a long start upon the trade unions. Moreover, where trade unionists are concerned the opposition of the great industrial chiefs is very much greater than where Social Democrats are involved. There are men in Germany who are perfectly satisfied to have every man in their employ vote the Socialistic ticket, but will not tolerate the weakest union in any part of their business. The wages paid in many industries are so low as to make unionism extremely difficult. The textile workers find it impossible to get together the few pennies necessary to create a labor organization. As one of the Reichstag members said, "Union dues cost money, but the ballot is free."

A still more important reason for the difference between the strength of the Socialists and that of the trade unionsts—although the vast majority of trade unionists in Germany are Socialists—is the fact that many of the Socialists are recruited from ranks outside trade union circles, and even outside the working class itself. Many of the men who vote the Socialistic ticket are subordinate officials and petty employes in the postoffice, the telegraph, railroad and other government departments, and these men dare not belong to the trade union movement, neither can they, of course, openly join the Socialistic movement without fear of some sort of retribution. Nevertheless, many of them do so belong and vote the ticket regularly, and secretly send their contributions to the party. Another large class of adherents is found among the peasants. During the last half dozen years a propaganda among the agricultural workers has brought increasing numbers of peasants and farm laborers to the party. Many of the votes also come from small shop keepers and tradesmen, and numbers of what in Germany is called the lower middle class. The appeal to the professional classes has also been strong, and many lawyers and doctors openly—and more secretly—support the movement. In fact, every section of the middle class is contributing to the swelling vote of the Socialistic party. Many of the people are not in sympathy with the ultimate Socialistic ideals of the collective ownership of the means of production, but they are, upon the whole, in sympathy with the immediate demands on behalf of the workingmen; they are heartily in favor of the agitation of the party in defense of the rights of free speech and free assembly, and with the assaults upon the abuses which have flown from the spirit of militarism and bureaucracy in Germany.

The Socialistic party in Germany is thus not only a movement which declares for the ultimate and complete acquisition by the community of all the means of production, but it is also a party with a distinctive and present day working class policy. Finally, it is a party which goes beyond the working class itself and represents the struggle of the liberal minded and progressive Germans in their antagonism to the feudal government which still holds sway.

On motion the reports were received and made part of the minutes of the convention.

Delegate John T. Dempsey, for the special committee appointed to consider the seating or unseating of delegates from Districts 7 and 23, read the following report on District 23:

"To the Sixteenth Annual Convention, U. M. W. of A.

"Gentlemen—Your committee, to whom was referred the controversy involving the seating or unseating of the delegates from Districts Nos. 7 and 23 for non-payment of national assessment, after hearing the statements of all parties concerned, beg leave to submit the following report:

"In the case of District No. 23, since referring it to this committee the secretary of that district has presented us with a statement from National Secretary Wilson to the effect that he had paid their indebtedness for national assessment in full. We, therefore, recommend that delegates from that district who have met all other obligations required by the National Union, as per convention call, be seated."

On motion the report of the committee was adopted and the delegates seated.

The committee reported as follows on District 7:

"In the case of District No. 7, we find that the local unions, whose delegates are here, have paid all assessments against them to the district office, and that the district secretary has received sufficient amount from local unions to have paid all assessments now charged against them had they done so, but instead of so doing we find that, owing to shortage of district funds, the district officers used some of the amount collected for national assessment for district purposes without any authority for so doing. Therefore, your committee is of the opinion that these local unions are not responsible for the conditions that now exist, and recommend that the delegates from District No. 7 be seated in this convention.

"Your committee further recommends that this convention take some action that will prevent in the future any use being made of moneys collected for national assessments other than that for which it is so collected.

"Recognizing that it is because of the district tax being inadequate to meet district requirements that the national funds were used in this instance, and knowing that some time will be required for the local unions to assert themselves and raise by assessment or otherwise sufficient funds to pay this indebtedness, while we fully appreciate the effect this may have in the payment of assessments by other districts, we believe that these delegates, because of the fact that their local unions which they represent have paid all their taxes and assessments to national, district, and otherwise as levied, and who express a willingness to make every effort in their power when they go back home to see that this indebtedness is paid, should be seated; that the district should be given two months to pay up in full their debt; failing to pay up in full the national officers shall ascertain who is responsible, and whether district or local, annul their charter, withdraw their supplies and publish them as part of the delinquent list. We do this, believing that the effect that the unseating of these delegates who have met every obligation required of them by their district and national laws, would have on the organization in the field they represent would more than offset detrimentally the good it would do otherwise.

"With this understanding we recommend the seating of the four delegates from District No. 7.

"ROBT. LEGG,
"GEO. RICHARDSON.

On motion of Delegate Walker, District 12, the report of the committee was adopted and the delegates seated.

President Mitchell introduced Mr. William Abraham, M. P., fraternal delegate from the British Trades Congress to the recent convention of the American Federation of Labor. Mr. Abraham is also president of the South Wales Miners' Federation and treasurer of the British Federation of Miners.

Mr. Abraham spoke at some length, and was heartily applauded by the delegates. At the close of his address Mr. Abraham was tendered a rising vote of thanks for his presence at the convention and the address he had delivered.

Vice-President Lewis moved that secretaries of districts be authorized to collect the railroad certificates from members of their delegations. In the absence of the secretary of any district, the district president or vice-president to collect the certificates.

The motion was seconded and carried.

After the usual announcements and reading of communications the convention was adjourned to meet at 9 o'clock a. m., Wednesday, January 18th.

THIRD DAY—MORNING SESSION.

The convention was called to order at 9 a. m., Wednesday, January 18th, President Mitchell in the chair.

It was moved that the delegates named in the supplemental report be seated and the committee continued.

The motion was seconded and carried.

Secretary Wilson read the following communication:

"To John Mitchell, President United Mine Workers of America:

"By a resolution of the House of Representatives of Indiana you are cordially invited to deliver an address to that body at your convenience. Yours respectfully,

"E. B. McDOWELL,
"MARTIN T. GEAKE,
"Committee."

President Mitchell—I take this occasion to say I have extended my thanks to the committee who are here representing the General Assembly. I feel, of course, personally honored, and I probably feel more so because I know this invitation comes, not as a tribute to me personally, but as a tribute to my organization. I have promised to accept the invitation if the work of the convention will permit. I am sure it is a compliment to a labor organization when its representatives are invited to address the law-making bodies of our country. I assure you that if I speak there I shall, in my coal digger way, try to do you credit.

President Mitchell announced the following special committee to consider that part of the president's annual report treating of the subject included under the caption, "Mining, a Skilled Trade:"

W. B. Wilson.....District No. 2
Uriah Bellingham.....District No. 5
James Cantwell.....District No. 8
Thomas Richards.....District No. 9
Lee Jackson.....District No. 11
Peter McCall.....District No. 12
John F. Ream.....District No. 13
J. S. McCracken.....District No. 19
W. E. Hicks.....District No. 23

Delegate Fitzsimmons, for the Auditing Committee, read the annual report of that committee.

(Auditors' Report printed with Secretary's Report.)

On motion, the report of the committee was adopted as read.

On motion of Delegate Richardson, District 14, the rules were suspended and the committee adjourned at 10:30 to allow the committees to work.

THIRD DAY—AFTERNOON SESSION.

The convention was called to order at 2:30 p. m., Wednesday, January 18th, President Mitchell in the chair.

RESOLUTION NO. 1.

Whereas, The companies in the anthracite coal region have taken from the miners enormous sums in fines or dockage for rock, boney or culm in the coal, or for non-usable coal, and it is now being proved that is usable, as shown by the culm dumps; therefore be it

Resolved, That the companies pay to the miners' union a royalty of ten cents on the dollar made from said culm banks, or a greater or less per cent. as the union thinks proper; and, be it further

Resolved, That the unions themselves put up washeries and get the money out of it for the purpose of increasing the funds of the organization, and to provide a fund for disabled and aged miners, and for orphans and widows. This will help increase the membership of the U. M. W. of A.

JOHN F. PESOTINI, Duryea, Pa
Local Unions Nos. 778, 1623 and 402.

The committee recommended that the resolution be non-concurred in.

On motion, the recommendation of the committee was concurred in.

RESOLUTION NO. 2.

Whereas, At the present time the mine inspectors in the anthracite region, as well as in other coal regions, are not elected by the citizens of the county or district, but are appointed by the state and county officers, therefore be it

Resolved, That we favor their election by the citizens of the respective counties or districts, such inspectors to be chosen from miners or mine workers.

JOHN F. PESOTINI, Duryea, Pa.
Local Unions Nos. 778, 1623 and 402.

The committee recommended that the resolution be referred to the Special Committee on Skilled Mining.

On motion, the recommendation of the committee was concurred in.

RESOLUTION NO. 3.

Whereas, The miners' examining board in the anthracite region at the present time is appointed, and issues certificates to miners after working two years in the mines; therefore be it

Resolved, That the members of the board be selected from among the miners or mine workers of the district or county, and that instead of issuing certificates to men after working two years in the mines they should be issued only after five years' work, and after careful examination. Many of the examining boards are not true to their duties, and many of the men get certificates through fraud. In such cases a fine ought to be imposed for the protection of the miners.

JOHN F. PESOTINI, Duryea, Pa.
Local Unions Nos. 778, 1623 and 402.

The committee recommended that the resolution be referred to the Committee on Skilled Mining.

On motion, the recommendation of the committee was concurred in.

RESOLUTION NO. 4.

To the Delegates to the Sixteenth Annual Convention, Indianapolis, Indiana, Greeting:

We, the undersigned, do hereby urge the delegates to form state organizations of Tennessee and Kentucky, as the coal seams of southeastern Kentucky are so nearly like those of northeastern and northwestern Kentucky, and so different from the deposits in Tennessee, that we believe both states would be materially benefited by having state organizations, that of Kentucky to be known as District 23 and that of Tennessee to be known as District 19. Respectfully submitted,

W. M. HOLLARS, Straight Creek, Ky.

The committee recommended that the resolution be referred to the districts involved and the National Executive Board.

On motion, the recommendation of the committee was concurred in.

RESOLUTION NO. 5.

To the Sixteenth Annual Convention of the U. M. W. of A., Greeting:

The Mine Workers of sub-District 3 of District No. 15, U. M. W. of A., have had, and still have, a struggle against the Utah Fuel Company, and have suffered and endured much from said company. The company does not wish to recognize the union, and if this struggle is lost will not even allow us to hold our meetings and will discriminate against all union men and will appropriate our homes under false pretenses; therefore be it

Resolved, That the members of Local Unions 2631, 2630 and 188 ask that assistance be given them and they will fight until they win. The following will show that victory is ours if we continue the struggle:

First. The production of coal is not over 33 per cent. of what it was before the strike; second, part of the product is boycotted; third, the mines are in an almost unworkable condition; fourth, no experienced miners are at work, and, fifth, the said company has made us offers, but will not recognize the organization.

The statement in the U. M. W. Journal by our district officers that we do not work in conjunction with the U. M. W. of A. is not true, as we are today working and fighting to save the charter which we have, and wish to stay with the U. M. W. of A. Help us and we will stand until justice is done us.

Castlegate, Utah, January 11, 1905.

The committee recommended that the resolution be referred to the National Executive Board.

On motion, the recommendation of the committee was concurred in.

RESOLUTION NO. 6.

To the Sixteenth Annual Convention, United Mine Workers of America, Greeting:

Believing that the Journal is and should be the direct means for the discussion of the vexed question of labor and for the discussion of economic problems, therefore be it

Resolved, That no articles be suppressed by the editors or insulting personal letters written by the editors to any local unions' correspondents, and, be it further

Resolved, That so long as the postal laws are not violated, such articles shall be published.

Respectfully submitted,

P. B. JENKINS, Local Union 2741.

The committee recommended that the resolution be not concurred in.

On motion, the recommendation of the committee was concurred in.

RESOLUTION NO. 7.

We, the delegates of sub-District No. 6, District 2, U. M. W. of A., recommend the following to the National Convention:

Whereas, The immigration to the United States of America has been exceeding the demand for labor for the last few years, which makes it inconvenient for the laboring people of this country to keep and maintain their families as American workingmen should, we, therefore, recommend that a committee be appointed to draw up a bill to present to Congress asking that a law be passed restricting immigration for the next ten years.

As the time may be too long before Congress will be able to pass a satisfactory law, we recommend that emissaries be sent to all foreign countries to ask that laboring people stay away from the United States of America, as this country is overstocked with labor at all times, and there is not work enough for them to keep and maintain their families, which is a great weapon for capital to keep labor below what it should be.

Respectfully submitted,

W. S. DAVISON, President.
WILLIAM BROAD, Secretary-Treasurer.

The committee non-concurred in the resolution, and recommended that the convention endorse the action of the American Federation of Labor on the immigration question.

A motion was made and seconded that the recommendation of the committee be concurred in.

President Mitchell—The American Federation of Labor has advocated the educational test, and that the newly arrived immigrant shall have a certain amount of money, at least enough to enable him to live until he can secure suitable work and not be obliged to accept the first work offered him.

The motion was then voted on and carried.

RESOLUTION NO. 8.

Whereas, An organization exists known as the Civic Federation, and

Whereas, Such organization claims to be friendly toward organized labor, and

Whereas, Said organization at its recent banquet in New York patronized a non-union cigar, which is hostile to the principles of trade unionism, and

Whereas, Our National President, as a participant at said banquet, indulged in the use of a non-union product; therefore be it

Resolved, That it is the sentiment of this convention that our National President or anyone affiliated with the U. M. W. of A., sever all connection with the Civic Federation.

A. L. GERMER,
GEORGE HANSEN.

Adopted by Local Union 728, U. M. W. of A., and referred to the delegates to the national convention.

The committee recommended that the resolution be not concurred in.

It was moved and seconded that the report of the committee be concurred in.

Vice-President Lewis in the chair.

President Mitchell—If your chairman ever smoked non-union cigars in his life, he is not aware of it. I don't know whether I ever ate non-union bread or not. I shall ask each one of you delegates what kind of bread you are eating? At the banquet bread was served already cut in portions. If you see a loaf with a label you can tell whether it is union or not, but you cannot when it is cut. It appears that after the banquet was over someone went to the Central Federated Labor Union of New York and reported that we had eaten non-union bread and smoked non-union cigars. If there was any non-union product used at the banquet of the Civic Federation in New York, certainly it was the duty of the Central Federated Union of New York to look after it. I think the local committee there should have looked after the matter. I am quite sure the cigars were union, because Mr. Gompers was there, and if there is any one thing that has to have the label on when he is about it is the cigars. The resolution states that your National President smoked non-union cigars. As a matter of fact I smoked no cigars at the banquet. I am not stating this as an excuse, because I should probably have smoked the cigars laid at my plate if I had cared to smoke.

The resolution was discussed by Delegates Burke and Blee.

Delegate Blee moved as an amendment that the entire matter be stricken from the minutes. (Seconded.)

The matter was further discussed by President Mitchell, Delegate Jones, Delegate Randall and Delegate Gibbs.

A motion was then made and carried that the amendment be laid upon the table.

The motion to adopt the recommendation of the committee was then voted on and carried.

RESOLUTION NO. 9.

This resolution was read and discussed at some length. A motion was then made that it be omitted entirely from the minutes. The motion was seconded and carried.

President Mitchell in the chair.

Vice-President Lewis—There are certain commissioners of the coal operators in this city holding a meeting. They have been discussing the question of attending this convention, but thought the delegates might possibly accuse them of coming here to learn what we are doing. I told them that this was a public meeting.

I move that we extend to them an invitation to attend the sessions here at all times except when we are in executive session.

The motion was seconded and carried.

President Mitchell—The chair will ask Vice-President Lewis to extend the invitation.

President Mitchell asked that the regular order of business be suspended for time and that Mr. William Abraham be given the privilege of the floor.

Mr. Abraham announced that he wished to say a word of farewell to the delegates, as he would leave the city in the evening, and would soon sail for his own country.

At the close of Mr. Abraham's address a vote of thanks was tendered him for his presence at the convention and for his address.

Short addresses were made by Mr. Robert Noren, of Chicago, a representative of the Garment Workers' organization, and Mr. Yeager, a representative of the Bartenders' and Waiters' International Union. Mr. Noren asked for both the moral and the financial assistance of the miners for the Garment Workers who were on strike in several of the large cities. He asked that the miners purchase none but union made garments, and that they ask the dealers in their cities and towns to handle none but union-made goods.

A motion was made and carried that the question of financial assistance to the Garment Workers' organization be referred to the National Executive Board.

Delegate White, for the Committee on Resolutions, continued the report, as follows:

RESOLUTION NO. 10.

Resolved, That if another agreement is sent to the miners to be voted upon it be arranged so they can vote for one, two or three years' contracts, as they see fit.

Adopted by Local Union 376, and presented to the convention.

JOHN DICHERN, President.

JOHN McCLINTOCK, Recording Secretary.

The committee recommended that the resolution be non-concurred in, as it dealt with a matter concerning the scale.

On motion, the recommendation of the committee was concurred in.

RESOLUTION NO. 11.

Resolved, That, in line with the desire of our organization to educate its membership, a systematic effort be made to have local unions instructed by literature and lectures in the principles of organized labor, the purposes for which our unions exist and the necessity for liberal support.

FRANCIS MAY, Floodwood, Ohio,
Local Union No. 118.

The committee recommended that the resolution be non-concurred in.

On motion, the recommendation of the committee was concurred in.

RESOLUTION NO. 12.

Resolved, That the delegates to the next convention of the American Federation of Labor be instructed to secure one standard union label.

FRANCIS MAY, Floodwood, Ohio,
Local Union No. 118.

Recommended by District No. 6 to the Sixteenth Annual Convention of the U. M. W. of A.

The committee recommended that the resolution be concurred in.

It was moved and seconded that the recommendation of the committee be concurred in.

President Mitchell—I think what is wanted is not a uniform label, but a uniform design for a label. If you have a uniform design everyone will know the label when they see it. I think it would be better to amend the resolution and instruct the delegates to vote for a label having a uniform design. Probably you all know the cigarmakers' label. You might have a label which would be almost a fac simile of that, but instead of having the words "Cigarmakers" on it, you could have the words "United Mine Workers," or whatever organization used it. I think that would be a better way to give the instructions than to instruct for a uniform label.

Delegate Chris Evans—I move as an amendment to the resolution that the words "standard union label" be stricken out and the words "uniform design" be inserted instead.

The motion was seconded and carried.

The resolution as amended was then adopted.

RESOLUTION NO. 13.

Resolved, That the hoisting engineers of District No. 8, members of Local Union No. 2117, demand an eight-hour workday for all members of our craft.

WILLIAM MELBOURN, President.
HARRY G. DUNCAN, Secretary.
A. R. POWERS, Delegate.

Brazil, Indiana, December 20, 1904.

The committee concurred in the resolution, and recommended that it be referred to the next scale committee.

On motion the recommendation of the committee was concurred in.

RESOLUTION NO. 14.

To the Resolutions Committee of the Sixteenth Annual Convention U. M. W. of A.

The following is presented from Local Union No. 941, Burnett, Vigo County Indiana.

Whereas, The death rate and number of accidents in the coal mining industry has not decreased, and the causes which lead to these evils are not being remedied, and,

Whereas, The conditions of the mines are undermining the health of ourselves and thousands of our fellow workers, and great havoc is caused by the number of explosions in recent years, which, together with the unsanitary condition of the mines bring sorrow to the innocent ones in our homes; therefore be it

Resolved, That in all mines under the jurisdiction of the United Mine Workers of America a well drilled force of shot firers shall be employed; that all mines be fitted out with the best devices for the safety of the thousands of men who work under the earth for their living; that the most proper methods of ventilation be used, and that this body seek legislative aid to pass laws for the protection of the miners against those dangers, as well as to protect the general public, and be it further

Resolved, That no agreement be made until measures have been mutually adopted by the two contracting parties to protect the men against these wrongs.

JOHN WIMMER, President.
THOMAS D. JONES, Vice-President.
H. G. YATES, Recording Secretary.
WILLIAM J. ROBERTS, Financial Secretary.
Local Union No. 941.

The committee recommended that the resolution be referred to the next scale committee.

On motion, the recommendation of the committee was concurred in.

RESOLUTION NO. 15.

Whereas, The United Mine Workers of America receive in return for services rendered a greater amount of money than any other unskilled laborers, and

Whereas, Under the present methods of production and distribution of the wealth of this country (for profit, not for use) he has degenerated into a mere machine, carrying his allowance of wages from the owner of the machine, which he must use in order to live, to the owner of the store, whose goods he must have in order to maintain himself and his family and sustain strength to use the machine, only to find himself at the end of two weeks as poor as on the preceding pay-day, and two weeks nearer the age that makes him unfit for work. If he is sober, industrious and honest, and finds himself at any time unable to work for two weeks he has to subsist upon the charity of his brother workers, who are within two weeks of the same lamentable condition, while the only trouble experienced by the owners of the machine and of the store is in finding a market for the surplus product of the workers and while he is idle they revel in luxury; therefore be it

Resolved, That it is the earnest desire of the members of Local Union No. 1734, U. M. W. of A., Jasonville, Indiana, that the national organization establish a co-operative supply system, with headquarters in a general co-operative supply store at Indianapolis, Indiana, from which the membership can be supplied, either through branch stores or a mail order system. The business to be modeled on the plan of the co-operative associations of England, and be it further Resolved, That in connection with the foregoing all efforts made by the U. M. W. of A. to secure from Congress and the legislatures of the states be discontinued in order that we may have more means wherewith to supply ourselves.

Approved by L. U. No. 1743, in regular session, January 4, 1905.

GEORGE DONNELLY, Secretary.
J. B. HALSTEAD, President.
ED. CUTTY, Delegate.

The recommendation of the committee was as follows:

The committee non-concurs in the resolution, but believes in the principle of co-operation.

On motion, the recommendation of the committee was concurred in.

RESOLUTION NO. 16.

Whereas, In view of the fact that there are thousands of mine workers in this country who speak foreign languages, and

Whereas, Many of these men do not belong to our organization and are a menace, not only to the United Mine Workers of America, but to themselves, as they make it more difficult to effect settlements or make contracts with the operators in other fields; therefore be it

Resolved, That this convention direct the national officers to have printed in different languages such important information as, in their judgment, they deem best for distribution among such foreign-speaking people.

MARK M. SMITH, Local Union No. 888.
District 16, Meyersdale, Pa.

The committee made the following recommendation:

The committee favors the spirit of the resolution, and refers it to the National Executive Board.

On motion, the recommendation of the committee was concurred in.

RESOLUTION NO. 17.

Whereas, The growth of the business of our organization requires a vast amount of printing and publishing to be done, and believing it would be in the interest of economy for the organization to own its own printing plant, therefore be it

Resolved, That we authorize and require our national Executive Board to acquire a printing plant for the purpose of printing and publishing all papers, circulars, documents, etc., necessary for the use of the organization, in the English and the different foreign languages spoken by members of our organization.

B. SEDLECKY, Local Union 2080.
JOHN ZELENKA, Local Union 1245.
EMERSON WOLFE, Local Union 1486.
H. JOHNSON, Local Unions 786 and 1978.
J. R. HADLEY, Local Union 1077.
JOSEPH BRIGGS, Local Union 2527.

The committee recommended that the resolution be non-concurred in.

On motion, the recommendation of the committee was concurred in.

RESOLUTION NO. 18.

To the Sixteenth Annual Convention of the U. M. W. of A.

Gentlemen—Whereas, It has been the experience of the officials of our organization in West Virginia, Pennsylvania and other states where struggles have been going on, that unscrupulous judges, in conjunction with minor officials, who are in office for the purpose of interpreting and enforcing the laws honestly and impartially, have been used by the operators in their interests to break up the organization and end the struggles in their favor, to the extent that they have misconstrued the law and assumed authority not vested in them, and in many cases have succeeded in attaining their objects by reason of their illegal, dishonorable and totally un-American action, which was in some instances in violation of the national constitution, federal, state and county laws; therefore be it

Resolved, That this convention instruct the National Executive Board, that where there are, in their opinion, any grounds for impeachment proceedings in cases where the United Mine Workers of America are concerned, against any judges who have laid themselves liable by their action, to immediately proceed to do everything in their power to have all that can be legally and honorably done to have such men impeached and removed from office, and in case of minor officers that we use every influence of the organization in the same way as with the judges to have them removed, and fair, impartial and honest men put in their places.

(Signed.) JOHN H. WALKER,
F. M. GUTHRIE,
B. M. FLAHERTY,
J. A. SPRINGER,
GEORGE BAGWILL,
JOHN HUTCHINSON,
THOMAS HAGGERTY.

The committee recommended that the resolution be concurred in.

On motion, the recommendation of the committee was concurred in.

Delegate White—That completes the partial report of the committee.

Delegate Hudson moved that the time for receiving resolutions by the committee be extended to the hour for convening the convention Thursday morning.

The motion was seconded.

Delegate W. D. Ryan arose to a point of order, and stated that the convention could not adopt the motion without reconsidering the action taken on the former motion.

The chairman held that the point was well taken, and declared the motion out of order.

The convention was then adjourned to meet at 9 o'clock a. m., Thursday, January 19th.

JOHN J. MOSSOP,
PATRICK FITZSIMMONS,
M. McTAGGART,
Committee on Credentials.

On motion, the report of the committee was accepted, the delegates seated and the committee discharged.

Delegate Robert Randell—At yesterday's session something was said about a remark I made in the Dietz (Wyoming) local. I do not care to take up the time of this convention simply to defend myself, but the Colorado strike was mentioned, and I now ask permission of this convention to give the history of the Colorado strike. I can give the history as one who went through the strike. I am a Colorado miner; I have grown up among the coal and metalliferous mines of that state. I know the history of our struggle; I know the history of our suffering, and I know the history of our bitter defeat. I also know the history of the part your President played in the Colorado-Utah coal strike, and, with your permission, I will give you that history.

At the time of the calling of the great strike—November 9, 1903—with the exception of the northern coal district the miners of Colorado, New Mexico and Utah were almost entirely unorganized. The coal companies believed and boasted that their men would never strike on a call from the United Mine Workers of America, but within two days after the strike call was made ten thousand men, or 95 per cent. of all the miners of Colorado, were striking. The unorganized miners came out because they had been led to believe that if they struck the union miners of Northern Colorado would strike and stay with them until a victory for all was won. That strike could not be won without the northern men. The southern men struck because they had confidence in John Mitchell and because they had confidence in the United Mine Workers. The coal companies were taken entirely by surprise and were paralyzed. A coal famine was imminent. The great steel works at Pueblo were closed, the Denver companies ran short of coal, and within two weeks it was up to twelve dollars a ton in that city. The miners of Colorado were overjoyed. They knew they could win the strike; they knew that all they had to do was to sit down, be quiet, and within six weeks the state would be paralyzed by a coal famine and the public would, as in the anthracite strike, force the coal companies to make terms with the union. At this critical period, when everything pointed to an early settlement and complete victory, an order was suddenly sent by President Mitchell to the men in charge of the strike to go into a conference with the officials of the Northern Coal Company, and, upon any terms that were obtainable, get the northern miners to return to work. This order was against the protest of our district officers, against the advice of our Executive Board member, Mr. Kennedy, against the advice, I believe, of every one of the national organizers, with one or two exceptions, and against the protests of the rank and file of the miners in District 15.

Mr. Mitchell, I ask you, who induced the northern miners to return to work? I challenge you to prove it was the miners. The district officers, and even your own national organizers, protested against asking the northern men to go to work. I will tell you what induced you to do it. It was the Northern Coal Company, backed up by the Citizens' Alliance of Denver and the Southern Colorado Coal Company that induced you to ask the northern men to return to work. I challenge you to deny that. In a letter to myself District President Howells said:

"Blood and Strube had more influence with John Mitchell than the pressing needs of the miners and all the argument that could be brought to bear by District 15."

Mr. Mitchell, allow me to ask you why Mr. Blood, the attorney for the Denver Citizens' Alliance and the Northern Coal Company, and Mr. Strube, the president of the Northern Coal Company, had more influence with you than the miners and the officials of District 15, who were gallantly fighting a battle to overthrow the strength of inhuman corporation. From what source were you influenced? Let your actions answer that. Your representatives, at the behest of the Northern Coal Company, and acting upon your orders, called the northern miners together and went into a conference with the Northern Coal Company. We had struck for an eight-hour day and a twenty per cent. increase in wages. The Northern Coal Company refused to give us an eight-hour day, and offered us only a few cents advance at Lafayette, and the same in other camps. You ordered us to accept the offer and return to work; but the northern miners refused to betray their southern brothers for a bribe of a fraction of a cent per ton.

Mr. Mitchell, why did you order men who had struck for an eight-hour day and a twenty per cent. advance to return to work without the eight-hour day and with only a fraction of the twenty per cent. advance when everything pointed to a complete victory for the union? A few days after the men were again called together by John F. Ream and Blood. Another offer was made. This offer was for a few cents more per ton and an eight-hour day, provided the miners in the southern field won their strike. Again the northern men refused to accept, and for temporary gain betray their fellow workers in the south.

In the Denver Post of November 16, 1903, is the following concerning the prominent part played by Mr. Ream to force the settlement upon us:

"The officials of the Northern Coal & Coke Company were apprised of the presence and activity of this influence on Saturday morning and went to work at once to act upon that information. They at once intercepted John F. Ream, one of Mr. Mitchell's men, who was en route to Trinidad, and induced him to go back to the northern field and try to offset the effect of the power working to defeat the settlement."

Mr. Ream, induced by the officials of the Northern Coal Company to go back and get us to accept the offer, tried to do so. This was twice Mr. Mitchell had tried to induce the northern miners to return to work. Twice they refused, and we thought you would be satisfied with the result. But you were not. Your next step, Mr. Mitchell, was to order Mr. Ream to visit the locals in Northern Colorado and induce them, one at a time, to go on record as favoring a settlement, a thing they had refused to do in a body, a policy no one but an autocrat could approve of, an action that was one of disruption and not of unionism.

Mr. Howells, having heard of the underhanded work, called a meeting at Louisville. All day we heard the matter discussed by Mr. Ream and Mother Jones. Mr. Ream urged us to return to work, and read a telegram from Mr. Mitchell, Mr. Lewis and Mr. Wilson, urging us to go back to work. President Howells perfectly understood the situation, and for that reason urged us not to return to work, saying if we did so we would discourage and defeat the southern miners.

Mother Jones told us to use our own judgment and decide for ourselves what we thought best for all, but she said the organization had led the unorganized miners of Southern Colorado to believe that if they struck the union miners in Northern Colorado would stand by them until a victory was won. Going against your orders and refusing to become a party to the betrayal of the southern miners is one of the reasons why John Mitchell has forced Mother Jones from the organization she labored so faithfully to upbuild. Mother Jones' dear, white head will soon be laid at rest; her voice will soon be hushed. Her heart, that beat so warmly for suffering humanity will soon be still in death. When she is laid in the grave no one can say she ever played false to the toiling and suffering masses.

At the mass meeting that was held to decide the matter the vote was two to one in favor of remaining on strike. This made the third time—not counting Mr. Ream's abortive attempt to induce them to do so—that the northern miners refused to betray the southern miners. We thought Mr. Mitchell would be satisfied with that; but no, he was determined to carry out the deal. The Denver Citizens' Alliance realized that unless something was done quickly to get the northern mines producing coal the two companies in Southern Colorado would be forced to surrender. If they were forced to surrender it would mean a defeat for the Citizens' Alliance, Peabody and militarism. With their defeat it would have placed the Cripple Creek and Telluride miners on the road to victory.

To give you an idea of how the Colorado Steel and Iron Company, and the Victor Fuel Company were playing the northern miners against the southern men, let me quote from a statement made by Charles Billington, at the last convention of District 15:

"I believe at the time the northern coal companies were in conference with us to bring about a settlement, they were also conferring with the large companies of the south. I have been informed that they were holding these conferences between our sessions, and I believe the matter was fixed up so as to make a reasonable settlement with us, so as to put our coal upon the Denver market and thus help defeat the southern miners."

Mr. Billington is not a friend of mine, but an admirer of John Mitchell, and was District Board Member during the strike After all the recommendation made by Mr. Mitchell's representative, after all the defeated deals arranged between him, the coal companies and the Citizens' Alliance, the northern miners refused to betray their southern brothers. But John Mitchell was determined to do what his representatives could not do. He sent word to our District Secretary and President that unless they used their influence to force the northern miners to return to work they would not get one cent of support from the National organization. To prove that he took such unconstitutional means to carry out his ends, let me quote from President Howell's report:

"But again a demand was made that the northern field meet with their operators and accept the propositions of settlement offered with, as I have reason to know, a threat that if they did not do so they would be cut off from support from the National organization. This argument, if you may call it an argument, forced me to concede the settlement of the northern matter."

Secretary John Simpson, in a letter to myself, said:

"Yes, John Mitchell did tell us that unless we settled in the northern field we would get no support. He did bring all the pressure possible to bear to get us to recommend that the north go to work, and we did recommend it under protest."

Then, for the fourth time, the northern miners were forced to vote on the proposition of returning to work. With the threat of John Mitchell staring them in the face they voted to return to work. The result of this unholy conspiracy was that the market in Denver was relieved, as well as the markets throughout the state, and the opportunity to force the southern coal companies to surrender was over. The day the northern miners returned to work the discouraged southern miners were defeated and the strike lost. The Denver Citizens' Alliance, the Victor Fuel Company and the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company closed upon the western miners the door of hope for years to come.

Soon afterward we, in Colorado, had the pleasure of a visit from Mr. Mitchell. On December 3d he arrived at Trinidad. In an address to the miners he said, "Be peaceable, be law-abiding, but strike, strike, strike, until you win if it takes five years." The miners were peaceable, they were law-abiding, and they struck, and struck, and struck, for one long, bitter year, and you, Mr. Mitchell, let them starve, and starve, and starve until they were forced by hunger and suffering to return to the mines from which they had been called on a promise of support and fair dealing. While you were traveling through Europe, Mr. Mitchell, and staying at fashionable hotels, your expenses being paid by the pauperized miners of the United States, you withdrew this support from the suffering western miners. You may boast of the money spent in the Colorado strike and compare it with the amount per capita spent in the anthracite strike, but the conditions were entirely different. In the Colorado-Utah coal fields the families were evicted from their homes and it was impossible to rent houses for them. The price of the necessities of life were at least twenty-five per cent. higher than in Pennsylvania. No other work was obtainable for the miners in District 15, and the strike occurred in the winter time when coal was a large item of expense. There was money enough spent to win the strike. The western miners did not want to drain the treasury of the United Mine Workers; they did not want more than what was reasonable and just that they should have. Our district president, Mr. Howells, offered Mr. Mitchell a fair proposition. He said that if Mr. Mitchell would allow the district office $300,000.00 they would call out every miner in Colorado, Utah and New Mexico, give the miners sufficient support, and if, by the time that was spent the strike was not won they would be willing to call it off.

Secretary Wilson in his annual report says that on the first day of July when the support was withdrawn there were only 2,500 men on strike. The report of our secretary-treasurer, John Simpson, shows there were over 4,000 men on strike. Let me read a statement by District Secretary Simpson, made in February, 1904:

"We herewith submit to our various local unions the following official report, giving as accurately as possible the amount of our indebtedness. It will be necessary, in order to make it plain to all, to go back to November 9, 1903, the commencement of the struggle in which we are now engaged. At that time an allowance of $12,000.00 a week was donated to District 15 for strike purposes. This amount was insufficient to carry on this work, as is evidenced by the fact that it became necessary to call upon the National Executive Board for more at the meeting held in Indianapolis, January 4, 1904, when $6,000.00 additional was granted. This amount only paid the indebtedness existing at that time in part and it has been a continual struggle to hold our forces, even though we have made use of every means which could be possibly devised to procure shelter and food for the strikers.

"According to lists prepared by local officials and sent in by them to this office we have 19,000 men, women and children to care for out of $12,000.00 per week, making an allowance of 63 3-19 cents per capita for food, were it possible to apply the full amount to that end. Other expenses were made necessary, such as rents, tents, doctors' fees, attorneys' fees, coal, etc., thus cutting down the small amount of money allowed each person weekly. Our local unions in fields where we have made settlements have been very generous in the way of loaning and donating sums to help carry on the work, but the list of our creditors and the amount of indebtedness shown will indicate to you that the resources at our command were not sufficient to meet the demands made upon us. Had we not been able to secure credit many would have gone cold and hungry, and what has promised from the beginning to be a winning strike would before now have ended in confusion and certain defeat. "JOHN SIMPSON."

On page 12 of the report of a meeting held at Pueblo, is the following:

"Mr. Mitchell came instructed to continue the strike. Women and children very badly in need of shoes and clothes, many of them going around with gunny sacks on their feet."

The fact is that 19,000 men, women and children engaged in one of the most justifiable strikes ever organized were living upon 63 cents per week. Those people had been thrown from their homes, and in many cases lost their furniture, clothes and bedding. They were compelled to buy tents or pay rent, and buy food, fuel and clothes. During the long winter of 1903-4 hundreds of men, women and children were camped on the desolate hills. Nineteen thousand men, women and children dressed in gunny sacks, while John Mitchell discussed the labor question over the banquet board and drank champagne with the Civic Federation and the Denver Citizens' Alliance. You allowed the miners of Mexico, Utah and Colorado 63 cents per capita at that time, and in July, 1904, withdrew that support entirely. Then the miners met in district convention and decided that something might yet be won from the coal companies and resolved to send solicitors through the East. This they did, but you, Mr. Mitchell, did everything you could to prevent the Eastern miners from supporting their Western brothers. Between the rank and file of the Eastern and Western miners there is no enmity or jealousy. The time is coming when leaders like John Mitchell, and men of his type, who have fastened themselves like carbuncles upon our organization will be scraped off, and the miners of the East, the West and Canada will be joined together and as one band will fight for the overthrow of industrial slavery.

Mr. Mitchell, does the money in the local treasuries of the United Mine Workers belong to you that you must guard it so zealously? Why, after you refused to give these men support from the National treasury, did you feel compelled from an overpowering sense of duty to prevent the local unions from contributing? Is it any wonder that the miners of the West look upon you as a greater enemy of theirs than the coal companies themselves? Mr. Ritchie said in the last convention in District 15:

"In regard to Mr. John Mitchell, I denounce him as one of the greatest autocrats I have ever seen, and the time is coming when we must turn him down or he will turn us down. I think the time will come when we will receive a call from some of the most progressive people on this side of the Mississippi river asking us to take some steps to bring about an organization for the West. I will not advocate a continuous strike, nor to call it off; I deplore the condition of this strike. Many of our women and children have had to wear gunny sacks on their feet and there is much poverty in the camps. If the strike is called off we cannot get work and I would not expect it. If Mitchell was doing his duty he would be here leading the strike instead of being in France staying at a twelve dollar a day hotel while the miners of the district are starving. I will state that the National has not turned us down if John Mitchell has. Some of those men in the National are with us. I had a conversation with T. L. Lewis and he stated that no matter whether there had been an injustice done District 15 or not he cannot help it. President Mitchell, before going to Europe, laid down the policy to be pursued. I will say, however, that if I had been National President at the time of the deportation I would have stopped it or I would have bankrupted the National treasury. I do not believe we can get the support promised us. Before we left Trinidad we got a telegram from Colville, secretary of Missouri, asking how the second call had been answered. It seems that they are waiting for results. Kansas is with us, so is Indian Territory and Arkansas, but away back East is a man who is putting his thumb on you. I have not seen the time since the strike was first inaugurated when we could win out any better than we could now if we had the money. If we were to win this strike we would be turning down our idol. Some of the Eastern people don't want him turned down. Be careful of your vote on the proposition of a continuation of the strike and we will not go down. If we go down another organization will be built on the ruins."

From Scofield, Utah, on January 6th of this year I received the following letter:

(COPY.)

Scofield, Utah, Jan. 6, 1905.

"Robert Randell, Dietz, Wyo.:

"Dear Sir and Brother—John Mitchell has been a traitor against us. John Mitchell told us at the beginning of the strike of Carbon county that he would support us for three years if necessary, but we found out that he is a traitor, and also he said he would stay with us; but no, he went to Europe in the month of June, 1904, and he sold himself to the company, and in the first part of December he sent a man over here to try and get us away from here by trying to give the fare to us. He has been telling us to get support wherever we can, and that he would settle all the bills, and the bills were about $10,000; but no.

"At the beginning of the strike the company stole our property valued at $50,000; and, what is more, the company has stopped the rent that we should have got from the houses, and John Mitchell has called off the strike so that he would get $20,000 for it, so that we would move away from here. The strikers from winter quarters and Clear Creek, men women and children, are 289 altogether. What do you think of John Mitchell in this case?

"When Louis Robertie was soliciting for us strikers John Mitchell and his officers tried to arrest Louis Robertie and told the locals of the East that the strike was called off in Carbon county.

"And if Chas. De Molle was the president of the U. M. W. of A. we would have won the strike long ago. John Mitchell and his officers have arrested Chas. De Molle because he knew we would win the strike if Chas. De Molle was free. John Mitchell is only a bluffer and not a union man.

"John Mitchell also sent a man over here and paid our President $15 to try and get us away and lose all our property. John Mitchell should have told us at the beginning of the strike that he is only a bluffer, and he is only a traitor. We ask you to let all the brothers know that we have a big case between the strikers and John Mitchell and Co.

"Yours fraternally,

(Signed) "JOHN MACKETA."

Adopted by Local Union No. 188, U. M. W. of A., Scofield, Utah. (Seal.)

Those strikers, having passed through a winter of suffering as pitiful as our forefathers passed through at Valley Forge, were in dire need of food, fuel and clothing, yet John Mitchell, the little tin labor god of the capitalistic class, spent the time in dining with Peabody, Perry Belmont, Andrew Carnegie and Frank Robins, dining and wining with the man who has the blood of the Homestead men on his hands and with the man who has done more to crush American manhood and degrade American womanhood than any other man in the United States. Yet John Mitchell drank champagne and dined upon terrapin soup with them, while the women and children of the West were cold, hungry and naked. John Mitchell played the miners of Colorado false. He forced the northern miners to return to work and in doing so violated the constitution of our organization. He promised the southern miners ample support in the strike, called in November, 1903, and told them to "Strike, strike, strike," until they won. Then, by stopping the support he placed a blot upon our organization and proved himself to be a greater enemy to these miners than the coal companies themselves. He entered into an unholy conspiracy with the Northern Coal Company at the behest of the Citizens' Alliance of Denver, and proved himself a traitor to working men. President Howells said:

"Strube and Blood (the president of the Northern Coal Company and attorney for the Denver Citizens' Alliance) had more influence with John Mitchell than the pressing needs of and all the arguments that could be brought to bear by District 15."

The statement is true. It is proved that Mitchell made an unholy deal with them. The statement made at the district convention by Charles Billington goes to prove what we, in Colorado, know to be a fact, that the southern coal companies induced the Northern Coal Company to make a settlement and get the northern miners to producing coal to save the southern field from certain defeat. The attorney of the Denver Citizens' Alliance took part in the conference, and John Mitchell dined with those men at a banquet given by the Denver Chamber of Commerce, December 5, 1903. He dined with the members of the Denver Citizens' Alliance; he fell from his high pedestal to dine with the men who have disgraced their state, starved our people and driven us from our homes. In only one way have I any respect for Peabody. He at least was true to his class and served his masters faithfully, but I cannot find words to express my contempt for a man who, having raised himself to power by the sufferings of the working class, falls a victim to the flattery of his capitalistic masters and proves himself false to the working men. In the name of the men in the West, whom you have proved a traitor to, I denounce you. A story has been told of a poor Italian striker at Scofield, Utah, who for eight years had been putting every cent of his earnings into a home he had built upon the company's grounds. One day he went to the office for what pay he still had coming. The superintendent wanted him to go back to work, telling him unless he did so he would forever lose his home. The Italian said: "For eight years you have stolen nearly all my wages, but what little you have not stolen I have saved and built a home with. Now you are going to steal my home. You can take the wages you have stolen for eight years, you can take my home from me and from my wife and children, but you cannot take my manhood." Those are the people, the rank and file whose names are unknown, whose pictures never appear in the magazines, who never discuss the labor problem over a bottle of champagne—those are the men who lose their homes, who go cold and hungry, and see their children crying for want—those are the men who are building this organization; not the little tin labor gods who are always fawning at the feet of the capitalistic class for a smile from their masters.

Vice-President T. L. Lewis—There are always two sides to every question. There is one thing I always feel sorry for, and that is when I hear a man get up before an intelligent body of people and assume to tell them something that is based absolutely on misrepresentation. Either the gentleman who has just got through talking to the delegates to this convention doesn't know what he is talking about, so far as the Colorado strike is concerned, or he has been made the victim of some one who is well able to put down on the paper he has read, vituperation and abuse in as strong language as can be used in English.

I know something about the Colorado strike. Every member of the National Executive Board, including President Mitchell, knows something about the suffering of the people of Colorado, and the sufferings of the people in every other mining district in this country where we have been engaged in struggles. What are the facts in regard to the Colorado strike, and the developments leading up to its inauguration? Why did it take place? Every statement made by the gentleman who has just taken his seat would lead you to believe that John Mitchell or some one associated with him ordered this strike in Colorado. That is a falsehood in every particular. Why? Because the National organization of the United Mine Workers had in the state of Colorado organizers trying to build up the United Mine Workers' organization, and previous to November 9th the representatives of District 15 importuned the national officers to declare a strike in that state. Our own representatives in that district believed that, so far as some sections were concerned, the time was inopportune and a strike could not be inaugurated. The President, myself and other officers did not believe the men in Colorado were well enough organized to carry on a successful battle in that district and for that reason refused to listen to the demands from that portion of the United States to declare a strike at that time. Between the time at which the officers of Colorado began to ask us to inaugurate a strike in that state, down to the 9th day of November, when a strike was declared, we were repeatedly asked by men in that district to declare war. When we asked them how much organization they had in the southern field they had to tell us there was practically none. This fact has been admitted by the gentleman who just left the floor. What took place then? President Howells came to Indianapolis to attend a meeting of the officers of the national organization and at that meeting he said the time to strike had come. He said: "The time is now or never, and if you don't strike now in Colorado you will set back the work of the organization at least ten years." Even then we questioned his judgment. When the National Executive Board convened in Indianapolis to consider the advisability of taking up the question of inaugurating a strike in Colorado, a man named Montgomery came from Denver and asked permission to appear before us. He is the commissioner of labor from that state, and, in my opinion, a greater fraud never got into a suit of clothes. He asked to appear before the National Executive Board to outline a plan for averting the strike, and at the same time allowing the men of Colorado to secure an eight-hour day and many other things. At first the Executive Board refused to grant him a hearing. They afterward decided that nothing could be lost by listening to him. He was allowed to appear before the board. After he had made his statement and retired from the meeting of the Executive Board, as all persons are required to do, after presenting their case, he assumed to himself, however, the authority to telegraph to Denver that there would not be a strike. If it had not been for that telegram, in my opinion, there would have been no strike in Colorado in 1903. That was the concensus of opinion of the members of the National Executive Board. They are here and can contradict me if I am not making a true statement. What was the result? With that information sent to Colorado from that man, and the fact that the officers of the Colorado district insisted we must declare war then or never, we endorsed the application of District No. 15 to strike. Those are the facts. That was when the National Executive Board endorsed the application of President Howells and his colleagues in District No. 15 to declare war in that country.

The strike took place. The men of District No. 15—or at least the officers, according to their statement—were surprised at the number of men who joined the strike. I was not surprised after I learned of the inducements that had been held out to those people in the event they would lay down their tools. Of the hardships those people endured, of the fight they put up, of the efforts to win a victory, I have no comment to make. As far as the National Executive Board is concerned, it went behind the men, furnished them financial assistance, and eventually we had to send national men into Colorado to take charge of the strike, because representatives of the Colorado men themselves refused to assist in bringing that strike to a successful issue unless the national organization would pay them three dollars a day and their expenses.

I have been in strikes in my time, many of them, and I got no money for my services when the strike was on in my own district. Those are the facts with reference to some of the men in Colorado who find fault with the national organization.

As far as the settlement in the northern field is concerned, and its being a conspiracy to defeat the men in the southern field, that settlement was considered by the members of the National Executive Board. Every phase of that strike and its effect on the southern field was considered by the officers of the national organization and not by President Mitchell alone. Our men were sent there to make a settlement, and did eventually make it, and whether the judgment of the National Executive Board is worth considering or not, I leave to the delegates here to decide. The National Executive Board thought it best to make a settlement in the Northern field, considering all the conditions and surrounding circumstances in that section of the country.

So far as supplying relief to those men is concerned, it is a strange thing to me that the gentleman did not tell you that in the latter part of December, in addition to the amount of money we were sending out there, they contracted an indebtedness of eight thousand dollars. The National Executive Board, in the early part of last January, wiped out that indebtedness. While this convention was still in session word came to us that, notwithstanding the orders that had been issued to them not to contract any bills without the consent of the National organization, they contracted an indebtedness of $25,000.00 more, which the National organization had to pay. This was outside of the weekly allowance, and when the National Executive Board, in the early part of last summer, found what the conditions in Colorado were, and found out the amount of coal they were producing even early in the spring, they decided to call the strike off, or at least advise the officers of District No. 15 to do so. A convention was called in Pueblo for that purpose. At that time Governor Peabody had declared martial law there, and immediately word was sent from the national office that we could not afford to declare that strike off in the face of the declaration of the Governor. I think President Mitchell has covered this entire matter in his report. We felt that we had to continue the strike then, notwithstanding the fact that we knew it was lost, and men in that country knew the strike was lost, and when they were asked if it was not lost they admitted that it was, yet at the same time they were trying to make the people out there believe it could be won.

When we withdrew the national support from that strike we did it in accordance with the unanimous approval of the National Executive Board. President Mitchell went to Europe, but if he had been in this country the same thing would have been done as was done at that time. After we had notified the men of Colorado what was going to take place they refused to declare the strike off. Even after we had withdrawn our support Secretary Wilson and I sent $15,000.00 to John Simpson, the Secretary of District No. 15, in order that they might have something to start on.

I don't know how other people view it, but I feel sure the strike in Colorado was lost in the month of March previous to the time we withdrew the national support. If it was not for the fact that different developments, growing out of the action of the Governor of that state, took place, the United Mine Workers' organization today would be several thousand dollars better off, because we would have declared the strike off in the spring.

President Mitchell did not run the business in Colorado. President Mitchell does not run the business at any other time so far as strikes are concerned. He is the executive head of this organization. He makes his suggestions and recommendations to the Board, and if the Board does not see fit to endorse them, each member has his own opinions and convictions and we generally express them and put them into effect on that Board. It is absurd for any one to get up in this or any other convention and say that John Mitchell was alone responsible for declaring off the strike in Colorado.

President Mitchell—Will the delegates give the chair a few minutes of time? Gentlemen, Delegate Randell has made so many direct and implied charges that I cannot remember all of them in detail, and therefore, until his remarks are transcribed, I shall probably not be able to refer to all he has said. I will say in advance that I am not going to refer to Delegate Randell in anything but a brotherly way I am sorry for him. Delegate Randell is evidently of the opinion that the President of the United Mine Workers of America is either vested with so much power under your laws, or is such a strong personality himself, that he is able to take men up here and set them down there; that he is able to do what he chooses with the organization, and make men come on strike or return to work at his own sweet will. I wish to say for Delegate Randell's information, that the power of the President of the United Mine Workers of America is extremely limited; that his authority is very much circumscribed; that he cannot go outside of the law to do things, and if he should attempt to depart from the laws of the organization, he is surrounded by an Executive Board that will very promptly call his attention to the fact that he has overstepped his authority.

Delegate Randell attempts to prove the statement which he made in the local union at Dietz, Wyoming, to-wit: that John Mitchell was a traitor and that he sold out the Colorado strike. Now, it matters not to me whether Delegate Randell regards me as a little tin god, or whether he regards me as most men do, simply as an ordinary man who has done his share in the struggle of our people.

The strike in Colorado, as Vice-President Lewis has said, was endorsed, not ordered, by the National Executive Board. In my action in it I was carrying out the instructions of the National Executive Board. The settlement in northern Colorado, upon which he has laid the foundation of these charges was not made by President Mitchell, but was made with the consent and by the instructions of the National Executive Board. I do not say this in order to remove from myself any share of the responsibility, because I assert now that to settle in Northern Colorado was the proper course to pursue, and from the experience of the past year, knowing, as I do, every detail of the Colorado strike, I say now, unhesitatingly, that if I had it to do again I should advise the Northern Colorado miners to make the settlement they did. Delegate Randell assumes—he evidently does not understand anything about the Denver markets, or where they sell coal in Colorado—that if the men in Northern Colorado had remained on strike, the Denver people would have frozen, and that the mills would have been shut down. Why, gentlemen, the strike wasn't two days' old until all the coal they wanted was enroute to Denver from mines east of them. Whatever shortage there may have been was caused simply by the delay in getting the coal to them from Indian Territory, Kansas, and points farther east.

If there is a man here who knows anything about Rock Springs, Wyoming, he knows that the miners of Rock Springs would not have struck at that time if we had offered them ten dollars a day. I sent National Board Member Bousfield there to make an investigation and his report is on file at our office. Vice-President Lewis has personal acquaintances in Rock Springs, men who are working there and who are familiar with the situation. He has letters from them saying those men could not be made to strike. What the conditions there are is a matter of common knowledge to every miner in this country. President Howells said he would have called out Rock Springs if I had given him $300,000.00. Gentlemen, to be perfectly plain, I would not trust him with $300,000.00. However, he never asked for $300,000.00, and the statement he makes in regard to that is untrue, but if he had asked for it, I should have refused it and I will tell you why. A year ago last December there was a meeting of the National Executive Board. The National Executive Board Member for Colorado at that time was Mr. Gehr. Mr. Ream, the National Board member from Iowa, came to me and repeated a conversation he had had with Mr. Gehr. He said that one night in a hotel in Trinidad, Mr. Howells came to him and said: "I have had a conversation with Board Member Gehr, and he made this proposition to me: He said there were certain men in Trinidad—they call them stock jobbers—who deal in the fluctuations of stock, and he said if they were given certain information concerning this strike and when it would end, they would give a certain amount of money." Howells wanted to know more about it, and Gehr got further information. First he was only going to get $1,000.00, but later he found there might be $25,000.00 in it. He related this to Mr. Ream. I sent for Board Member Gehr and brought him into my private office. I think Secretary Wilson was present. I said to him, "Gehr, I think this is dishonest." "Well," he said, "It would not influence the strike one way or another. It simply means giving those stock jobbers the information and they can make money out of it and will give some of it to me." I said, "Mr. Gehr, you cannot serve on this board, and I want your resignation. I want you to tender your resignation by the 15th of this month." That resignation is in my office, but it was forced upon him. Now, I will give you at least one reason why I would not trust Mr. Howells with $300,000.00, and one reason why I want to repudiate every statement Delegate Randell makes. When Mr. Howells came to the national convention one year ago, what did he do? He placed in charge of the Colorado strike Mr. Gehr, the man who had to resign because he wanted to make money out of it. That is the sort of man he placed in charge of the Colorado strike.

In our December meeting, we liquidated every debt which the officers of the Colorado union claimed to owe—a sum of $6,000.00—which was in excess of the $12,000.00 a week we were giving them; but during the time our national convention was on Mr. Gehr had run us in debt $27,000.00 more. When Mr. Gehr was questioned about it, he said that he didn't give a damn; that as long as there was money in the national treasury he would give it to the Colorado strikers. That is the man who claimed he knew more about the strike than we did. Mr. Howells is not a safe witness against any one.

Let me say further that when the strike was called, the very first money that went from our organization to Colorado was used to pay President Howells' back salary. The records will show this. The last money that was sent there before President Howells quit his job—money contributed by your local unions—was used to pay more back salary. I have the records in the office to prove this statement. That will show how much they care for the poor, suffering coal miners of Colorado!

Gentlemen, Mr. Randell is entirely without information as to why we advised the settlement of the northern coal strike. President Mitchell did not direct four different attempts to get the men to go to work; neither did he instruct his representatives to try and have the men settle locally. What I did do, in connection with my colleagues, was to advise the men to secure a settlement on a fair basis. They were receiving much higher wages than the men in the southern field. The settlement we made secured for them a minimum of $3.10 a day for eight hours' work. That does not look much like selling them out. How would you like to be sold out that way?

As far as this Citizens' Alliance of Denver and Mr. Strube and Mr. Blood, and your President's dining with them is concerned, I say it is absurd and preposterous, and if Mr. Randell knows anything he knows that he made a mis-statement. A year ago last December, when I visited Trinidad, I left there to go to Denver to meet the Governor, who had sent for me. At that time Governor Peabody was threatening to send troops to the southern field, and sent me a message asking me to meet him. When about to depart, I received an invitation from the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, asking if I would address that body. I answered that I would be very glad to do so. I am glad at any time to visit any city to address such a body as the Chamber of Commerce. I am glad to address employers whenever I get a chance, to tell them what we want and what our union stands for. If you will look over all the addresses I have made to employers' associations and meetings of capitalists, you will find no one word that means surrender on our part. There has never been a time when I have not asserted the right of our people to better wages, better conditions, and their right to strike. I have told them time and again that, no difference what they did, they could never induce me to agree that our people should not retain the right to strike and the right to fight. I never shall agree that they have not those rights.

To go back to the meeting in Trinidad. When I got there on the 4th of December how do you suppose the men in Trinidad met me? Delegate Randell says that they all knew their cause was lost when the northern men went to work. The northern men went to work during the month of November, and while I was attending the American Federation of Labor convention, in Boston. The train on which I went to Trinidad was five hours late. For those full five hours thousands of men, women and children waited at the depot for that train to come in. Were you there, Mr. Randell? Did they receive me with clubs and guns? I have received about as enthusiastic receptions as most men, but I never received a more enthusiastic one than the people of Trinidad gave me. The train arrived late at night, but the streets were full of people and they struggled with one another to shake my hand. Men who were there at that time can tell you that this is true. Men cheered as though I was a savior come among them. The next day a meeting was held in a hall in the middle of the town; I addressed a great multitude of people, and admonished them to be peaceful, as I have always done in such cases. I consider the man who violates the law the worst enemy our union has. I told them to obey the law and to be careful what they did. I asked them so to act as to command the respect of every one. I said to them that, while personally I favored other means than strikes for the adjustment of grievances—that I favored arbitration and conciliatory means first—when all those peaceful means failed, then I favored their striking, and striking and striking until they won. I never said they ought to strike for five years. I am not in the habit of making exaggerated statements. If I advised them to strike for five years, that meant we would pay them to strike for five years.

The Colorado men were paid strike rations the first day they came out. They were out only a few days when $22,000.00 of our money was used to ship them to other places. Word was sent out to the camps, "If you want to go away come in and get your fare paid." This was not done by the direction of the National organization, it was done by the direction of the local officers.

But to go back to the Denver matter. At the banquet where Randell says I sold the men out, where he says I drank champagne—I don't remember seeing champagne, and I'm sure I didn't drink it—and where we really had a very ordinary lunch, I explained to the men present the wrongs of the Colorado strikers and asked for their support. If there was a member of the Citizens' Alliance at that meeting, I did not know it. I cannot say I do not believe there were any members of the Citizens' Alliance present, because I do not know. When I go into a meeting of two or three hundred people, I cannot tell whether there is an employer among them or not. Afterward I went to see Governor Peabody. He had sent for me and when I met him I asked him what he wanted with me. He said he understood I wanted to see him. I explained that Mr. Montgomery had come to Trinidad and extended, in his name, an invitation to call and see him. We quit quarreling about who was responsible for my visit and started to talk over the strike situation. He showed me then a petition signed by two or three hundred names, most of which I could not read because they were Mexican and Italian names, asking for the troops. I tried to prevail upon him not to send them and said there was no lawlessness in Southern Colorado. He said, "If there is any lawlessness down there I will take care of it." I said, "All right, governor," and we parted. That is the result of my visit to Denver. As for treating with representatives of the Citizens' Alliance or with any one else, I did not do so, and I know absolutely nothing about it. Delegate Randell evidently knows more about those things than I do.

In speaking of the Northern Colorado settlement, Delegate Randell said one of the reasons I forced Mother Jones out of her job was because she disregarded my advice. I wish to inform Delegate Randell that I appointed Mother Jones as organizer last spring. In April she was appointed a national organizer, and would be in the employ of the organization now if she wanted to be. I do not know why she did not remain an organizer for the United Mine Workers. After the Colorado strike, she went to Utah and was treated very badly there by the authorities. At a Board meeting we were holding in April, 1904, I sent her a telegram asking her to come to Indianapolis and we would make a different assignment for her. She wrote back saying she was going to San Francisco for her health. We wrote her a letter there in which we expressed sympathy for her. I presume the reason she did not come back to us was because she was going to work during the recent campaign for the political party she favors. I presume that is why she is not now working for us.

I know where Delegate Randell got some of the information he spoke of in his address. He got it from a speech delivered by the President of the Western Federation of Miners, who had the effrontery to go into our own convention and say that President Mitchell had stopped the local unions of the United Mine Workers of America from contributing to the strike in Colorado. Did one of you ever hear or know of your President, either by direct statement or by inference, attempting to stop you from contributing to this strike?

(Delegates from all parts of the hall replied that the President had never interfered with their contributing, and many of them stated that their locals had sent sums varying from $50 to several hundred dollars. Delegate Walker stated that the Danville District had sent $30,000.00 to the Colorado strikers; that President Mitchell had full knowledge of the fact, but had made no protest against it.)

Delegate Randell reads a statement made by a brother named Ritchie. Brother Ritchie is today drawing a salary from the National. That shows how vindictive I am.

Delegate Randell refers to a statement made by Mr. Ritchie. Mr. Ritchie was appointed by me to work in Colorado at a salary of $3.00 or $3.50 a day. Mr. Ritchie is the man who said I stopped at a $12.00 a day hotel while traveling in Europe. If I had paid $12.00 a day for my hotel bill while abroad, my bill for that item alone would have been $720, for I was there sixty days. I kept an account of my expenses, and my entire bill from the time I left New York until I returned to that city, a period of about two months and sixteen days, including transportation, hotel accommodations, cablegrams—and I had quite a number of them to send—postage, telegrams, cabfares, luggage, railway fares and everything, was $502.00. Does that look as though I stopped at a twelve dollar a day hotel? If I had done so, my hotel bill alone would have been $720.00, and I am sure they do not allow me to ride on railway trains for nothing. I will ask any delegate here if he can go to Europe and travel over several countries for ten weeks for that amount of money. When I am traveling for this organization I claim the right to have as good food and as good a bed as I have at home. If you do not wish to grant me that, you will have to get another President.

Delegate Randell asked this question, "Does the money in the local treasuries belong to President Mitchell?" Is that not a foolish question? Does it belong to me? If Delegate Randell has ever read the constitution of the organization of which he claims to be a loyal member, he knows better. I do say that the money in the national treasury cannot be expended without my consent, unless so directed by the National Executive Board. The money in the national treasury is just as dear to me and shall be safeguarded as carefully as though it were my own. I have a right to do what I please with my own money, but I haven't a right, nor has the National Executive Board a right, to do what it pleases with the money that belongs to the miners.

I think I have spoken of most of the things Delegate Randell mentioned. As for removing me and throwing me in the scrap pile, which seems to be the desire of Delegate Randell, and not only of Delegate Randell but of a few more men in and outside of this union who are impregnated with the same sentiments and with the same germ that is bothering him. I have had opposition from men who believe with me in the eternal principles of this union, and I am proud to have such men differ with me. I expect men honestly to criticise me, but I do not like to have men go around and malign me, I do not like to have them seek my destruction. As far as my present official position is concerned, I would be happy, indeed, gentlemen, if it were your wish, to turn it over tomorrow to some one else; happy, indeed, to go back to my home and to my loved ones; to live with them, to have the pleasure this work has denied me for seven long years. For seven years this work has kept me away from my wife and my babies, allowing me to go home not more than once every two months, and then not allowing me to stay more than two days at a time. Do you suppose the salary I get here, good as it is, attractive as it is, compensates me for the loss of the companionship of my wife and children? Do you think I want or crave this position? I wish to assure you—and I defy any man living to contradict what I am going to say—that from the first year after my election, I have never asked, directly or indirectly, for any man's support or for a single vote. I will admit that the first year I ran I made a contest for the office. But if I stay here one year or twenty years, this office must come to me unsolicited and unsought. I would not take any office in America that I would have to go and beg for.

I hope, gentlemen, you will pardon me for speaking so much of myself, but I feel keenly the charges that have been made against me. Like all men, I have my faults, my failings, and my imperfections, but the one thing that has ever been dearest to my heart, outside of my home and my loved ones, has been my people. Some of you may have forgotten, but I never have, the conditions you had when I first came with you. I do not claim any part of the credit for the change, but I hope the time may never come when my people must go back to where they were some years ago, when I used to see in the daily papers throughout the country—and I want you to listen to this, Brother Randell—accounts of men and committees going around begging bread for the miners; not miners on strike, but miners at work. Men were working and could not live. Of course, our people are not well enough paid yet, but compared with the conditions of years ago, they are better off—infinitely better off.

Statements made by Delegate Randell and by men like him do me injury. Some men will believe such statements. A lie uttered can never be called back. You may, Delegate Randell, as far as you are personally concerned, be convinced you are wrong and may do yourself the justice of vindicating me, but you cannot recall the lie which goes forth and can never be run down. I am the servant and the employe of this organization, but no man has a right to do me personal injury. I do not even hope that with this explanation every one here will be satisfied. I do not hope that even those who believed in me before Delegate Randell spoke will be entirely satisfied. Some will not; but as long as the men with whom I am associated, the men I work with day by day, the men who know me well believe that, whatever mistakes I make, whatever imperfections I may have, I am loyal and true to my class, that I am loyal and true to my people, I do not care particularly what those people say who are ready to malign and distort and twist everything they see. If men look for faults with a microscope they will find them, and there are plenty of men who are doing that. They are looking with a microscope for flaws and imperfections, and, no matter where they go they will find them if they look for them in that way.

Gentlemen, I thank you for your attention.

National Board Member W. R. Fairley:

Mr. Chairman and Brother Delegates—As one of the men who had something to do with the Colorado strike, and as one who knows a great deal about it, I desire to answer some statements that were made by Delegate Randell, and to give this convention some information that has not yet been given to it. Delegate Randell says that in consequence of a settlement in the northern field the strike in Colorado was lost. He also says that a coal famine existed in Denver, but he forgot to say, or he does not know, that so much coal was got from Southern Colorado that the miners in the northern field did not work half time. He further forgot to say that the men at Dawson refused to strike when that strike was called. He further forgot to say that all the striking miners in Southern Colorado were advised to go and get employment at Dawson by the officers of District 15. Possibly Delegate Randell does not know that when the convention was called in Trinidad on the 24th of March it was called by the district officers and not by the national officers. That convention was called for the express purpose of calling off the strike, because the district officers acknowledged that the strike was absolutely lost at that time. Figures were given in that convention which showed the approximate output was forty-four per cent. of the usual output.

Delegate Randell says there was plenty of money to carry on the strike. If that is so, how does it happen that the Colorado officials always exceeded the amount donated by several thousand dollars a week? The weekly donations were exceeded by such unreasonably large amounts that it became necessary for the National Executive Board to appoint myself and Brother Chris Evans to take charge of the field and the financial end of the strike. It has been asked how it occurred that we had to be sent to take care of the financial end of that strike? Brother Randell said that the insufficiency of the funds was so clearly apparent that the National Executive Board increased the donation from $12,000.00 a week to $15,000.00. That is true, but what Delegate Randell probably does not know is how much of that $15,000.00 a week was spent, because the actual facts are that from the second day of February until the last day of June it did not cost the national organization $11,000.00 a week. To begin with, the district officers had a donation of more than a thousand dollars a week more than it cost the national when managing their own finances. Can anybody tell me, if the strike was irrevocably lost in March, how it could be won in the months of July and August? The output of coal had increased very largely between March and July, and yet in the Pueblo convention President Howells and Secretary Simpson declared the strike could be won, although they agreed in my room in Trinidad in March, in the presence of Board Member Bousfield, that the strike was lost. The ex-district officers of No. 15 agreed that night that they would go into convention on the 24th of March and advocate calling off the strike, and had not Governor Peabody sent the troops that policy would have been followed out in the convention held on March 24th.

Much has been said by Delegate Randell about the poverty, the misery and the hardships endured by the Colorado strikers, their wives and their children. No one regrets that suffering more than I do; but I want to say to this convention that, while there was much of the poverty and misery which strikes always entail, the officers of that district did not meet any of it, because every time we attempted to cut down their salaries they quit.

When I went to Trinidad I was told by every national officer out there that they never went into the district office that they were not insulted by the district officers. In company with the national officers then stationed in Colorado I went to the district office, and my reception was in keeping with the reception of those who had preceded me. I might just as well tell this convention that the district officers absolutely refused to work unless the national office paid their salaries. I remember one night in particular when President Howells came to the hotel in Trinidad and asked that he be allowed to make a tour of the entire district. I said I had no objection to his doing so. The next thing he asked was that the national pay the expenses of the tour. I asked President Howells how long it had been since he had been around the district? He acknowledged that he had not been about the district for six months. My answer to his request that the national organization pay the expenses of that tour was that if he had stayed in Trinidad doing nothing for six months, I thought the district would survive if he lay around there for another six months. Gentlemen, those are the men who have vilified President Mitchell and twisted every act that the national officers ever did in Colorado.

At this point it was moved by Delegate Savage, of Ohio, that the speakers be limited to five minutes each.

Secretary Wilson—This question is not an ordinary one; it is a question in which every national officer and in which every member of the National Executive Board is directly interested, not because the policy of the national officials and the National Executive Board has been called in question, but because the honesty of these men has been called in question, and every one of them should be heard.

Delegate Dolan—We know the national organizers and officials have been attacked, but there are not ten delegates in this meeting who do not know that the attacks are lies.

It was moved by Delegate Finney that the rules be suspended and every national officer and organizer who wished to speak should be heard.

The motion was voted on and lost.

Delegate Perry, Iowa, moved that all the national officers, organizers and members of the National Executive Board, as well as others who had been attacked, should be allowed to speak, but that each speech be limited to ten minutes.

The motion was seconded and carried.

Delegate Dunning—I move that the time allowed each speaker be five minutes.

Chairman Boyle—The convention is working under that rule now.

Delegate Dolan—I move that the entire matter be stricken from the records, and that it be not allowed to go to the locals; also that the man who made the charges be expelled from this convention.

Delegate Jones, Wyoming—I feel that I ought to be allowed the privilege of this floor on the question before us. I have the honor of the board membership of the district composing Wyoming and Montana, and am a member of the local this man Randell misrepresents, and I want to be heard. I think I can show that John Mitchell is not the carbuncle, but that somebody else is a carbuncle who has forced himself on this organization.

On motion, the time given Delegate Fairley was extended.

Delegate Fairley—One of the gentlemen Delegate Randell loves so much—Mr. Ritchie—as soon as we proposed to reduce the wages of the district officers, quit. In other words, he did not intend to bear any of the burdens, neither did he intend to make any sacrifices for the Colorado miners who were on strike and whose sufferings we have heard so much about. Just after the strike was called those men who had the interests of the Colorado strikers so much at heart—as we have been informed—went to Trinidad, Colorado, and increased their wages from $3.00 to $3.50 a day. Now we are told that, in justice to the Colorado miners, we should have handed over to that district board and those district officers $300,000.00 so that they might divide it among themselves. Those are the people, gentlemen, who had all the purity and disinterestedness, and we, because we objected to having the funds of the organization handed over to them, are the villains. Every man in that strike absolutely refused to work unless he was paid for doing it. They actually paid men for erecting tents to shelter the strikers and their families. Why, the funds of the organization were held in so little regard that ex-Board Member Gehr advocated that each striker should be provided with credit. Can anybody tell this convention now, if it took nearly $20,000.00 a week to run the Colorado strike while it was in their hands, less than $11,000.00 a week did run it when the national officers took hold of the finances? Even then no one went hungry. The fact of the matter is I had not been in Colorado a week when the district officers acknowledged to me that the strike was absolutely lost. Yet men will come here to this convention and charge President Mitchell and the other officers of the organization with not giving the Colorado miners a square deal! Gentlemen, that strike might have been continued until this time, but if it had we would simply be spending money we might as well throw into the ocean. When the facts were known in June the output of coal was nearly normal, and to have continued the strike would have shown a lack of wisdom and a sense of duty on the part of the National Board. President Howells said to me time and again that the strike was lost unless there was some other policy adopted than the one we were pursuing, but he has never explained what that other policy should have been.

Board Member John F. Ream—as the delegate from Wyoming used my name several times in the course of his remarks, I beg permission to say a few words. In one instance, at least, he made a grave charge against me, in reply to which I desire to make a brief statement. It is not my purpose to notice that part of his speech which he might claim to be argument, because that has been answered by others. It is my purpose, however, to deny the charges he has made against me. All I care to say in reference to what he might call argument in regard to this question is that I think he holds an erroneous opinion regarding the cause of our defeat in Colorado. He has attributed it to the settlement in the northern field in a short time after the strike was inaugurated in the southern part of the state. I think a man who knows anything about the Colorado situation will agree that the strike was lost in that state, as the great strikes during the last year in our own and other industries have been lost, because of the ability of the employers to fill the strikers' places with non-union men. It was not lost because the men in the northern part of the state made a settlement in accordance with the advice of the National Executive Board. If the National Executive Board of the United Mine Workers of America had not prevailed on the men in the northern part of the state to make a settlement and return to work their places would have been filled by men imported from the East and South, as were the places of the men in the southern part of the state. The delegate from Wyoming has said that that settlement was forced upon the northern part of the state; that they were advised and compelled to accept it in opposition to the wishes of President Howells. I want to deny that statement. Before leaving Trinidad to attend the meeting at which the question of a settlement was to be discussed, being anxious for harmony between the national and the district workers, I had an interview with President Howells. In that interview he said that any settlement made in the northern part of the state that would be satisfactory to the men there and to the national organization would be satisfactory to him. In the presence of President Mitchell and the national organizers he admitted that he made that statement. Notwithstanding that, when the men in Louisville held a meeting he and Mother Jones came there and opposed a settlement. He opposed this settlement in the face of the statements he had previously made.

After the failure to induce the men to accept the northern field settlement, which provided for an eight-hour day and a material increase in the price of mining, the delegate from Wyoming says I started for Trinidad and was intercepted by Mr. Blood and other officials of the coal companies and prevailed upon to return to the northern field. That statement is absolutely false. This places the burden of the proof upon my friend from Wyoming. I think he should present proof that his charge is true or stand branded before this convention as a man who makes false charges. I do not say he has done this maliciously; but I do say he has been misled by people who know nothing about the situation, but who are enemies of the organization of the United Mine Workers of America.

National Board Member Bousfield—A great deal has been said concerning the termination of the Colorado strike. I am glad the attention of the National Convention has been called to it in order that a quietus may be put upon the charges that have been made.

I had something to do with the Colorado strike, and in various parts of the country I have been blamed and accused for it almost as emphatically as Mr. Randell has accused President Mitchell today. I made my statement in the interstate convention in the southwest last summer, and at that time did my best to state the position of the national organization and the reason why the national support was withdrawn from that district. It is not necessary for me to go over the statements that have been made by others here today. Suffice it for me to say I endorse everything that has been said by President Mitchell, Vice-President Lewis and Board Members Fairley and Ream. What they said was absolutely true. Delegate Randell read from the proceedings of the last convention held in Pueblo on the 20th of last March. Delegate Randell told you that in the early part of last March the district officers said emphatically that the strike at that time was irrevocably lost. I want to reinforce the statement made by Board Member Fairley by reading from the same proceedings an extract from the report of President Howells on the 20th day of last September, long after the strike was ended. President Howells said in his report, when speaking of the financial matters of the district:

"In a short time afterwards he called upon me and Mr. Simpson to meet him in conference, in conjunction with Mr. Bousfield, to consider the advisability or non-advisability of continuing the strike as it was then being carried on. Our opinions were elicited as to whether or not the strike, in our opinion, could be won or was it lost. I also stated, as I stated before the National and to the Executive Board, that the policy laid down by the resident National Board members had lost the strike, and that if it was continued along those lines it was irretrievably lost."

President Howells distorted the language he had used at the conference, and he was so informed by Secretary Wilson in the convention called in June last year for the purpose of cutting off financial support.

There are many things that could be said concerning the Colorado strike. I think, however, these matters should not be discussed from an individual, but from a national standpoint. I want to say, however, that the men of District 15, and the men of District 15 alone, are responsible for the actions of the national officers and responsible for the defeat of their strike. Had the men of District 15 been as true to the national organization as the national organization was to them things, in my opinion, would have been quite different, even at the time when President Howells and Secretary Simpson declared the strike lost. I refer you to my report made to the Interstate Convention in the southwest, where I said a great many things I cannot say here today in the time allowed me to speak. I want to say, however, that as long as I am a national officer I shall regard myself as partially responsible for the expenditure of your money. I shall never seek to shirk that part of my duty or that part of the responsibility attached to me as an officer. I regard myself as one of the custodians of the money of the national organization, and as being at least partially responsible for the uses to which it is put, and I feel I would not be doing my duty if I did not call a halt when I thought it was being spent uselessly. If the men in District 15 had tried half as hard to economize as they did to spend money the statements made by Brother Randell here today could never have been suggested to him, for I don't think he is speaking altogether his own mind.

I was there when the letter written by the president was read in the convention. The convention decided to strike regardless of the advice of the national organization, claiming that the National Executive Board, or, to use their own language, "that President Mitchell had called them on strike and he would have to order them back to work before they would do so."

Secretary Wilson—I have no desire to reiterate the statements that have been made by President Mitchell, Vice-President Lewis, and others of the national officials. I simply want to concur in their statements, so far as their statements have gone. I think I know the source from which come these allegations that are made year after year in our national conventions, and I propose to say to this convention my opinion of where that source is.

Unfortunately for the Socialist movement there are a number of leaders in the movement and a number of papers claiming to be Socialist papers that conceive that Socialism consists of denouncing the officials of labor organizations as fakirs, frauds and traitors to their class. The result has been that those who have heard the speeches of these leaders, and those who are readers of the papers referred to, are imbued, or many of them are, with the idea that Socialism is and means abuse of the officials of labor organizations.

I want to state here and now that I have no quarrel with Socialism, but I have a quarrel with any man who sets himself up as a Socialist, or as a Republican, a Democrat, a Prohibitionist or a Populist who conceives that the principles he stands for are imbedded in abuses of some one else, conveyed either by direct statement or indirect innuendo. Statements of a nature like those made by Mr. Randell have been carried in certain Socialist papers for years past, and I am not surprised that men who have not sufficient judgment to discern and discriminate between Socialists and Socialism are carried away by the innuendoes carried in those papers. Mr. Randell comes here and makes the assertion that he speaks for the miners of the West. I deny positively that he speaks for anybody but himself.

The United Mine Workers of America endorsed the strike in Colorado. The organization did not order that strike, but after it endorsed it, funds were furnished by it for those on strike. Mr. Randell makes the assertion that those men, women and children were permitted to "starve, starve, starve!" Let me say to you that there is not one particle of truth in that assertion. There was not a man, woman or child in Colorado engaged in or connected with that strike, from the ninth day of November until the 30th day of June, who was not supplied with a sufficient amount of food to maintain existence in a reasonably good condition. Delegate Randell says that Secretary Simpson made the assertion that at the time support was withdrawn by the National organization there were still four thousand men on strike in Colorado and Utah. I want to make this assertion—and the members of the National Executive Board will bear me out—that the officials of District 15 acknowledged to the members of the Board that there were not more than 2,500 men on strike at that time, and some of them even contended there were not more than 2,000 on strike at that time.

The responsibility for the loss of the strike in Colorado is placed upon the shoulders of President Mitchell.

The loss of the strike in Colorado was due to the lethargy of the men in Colorado who were on strike. Mr. Randell tries to convey the impression that men in Colorado had to buy tents out of their own funds when they were evicted from their houses. Those tents were bought out of the funds of the National organization, and when they were sent into Colorado the men who were to occupy them would not erect them unless the National organization would pay them for their day's labor while erecting them.

In the early part of March the reports that were sent to the national office indicated indicated that there was from sixty to seventy-five per cent. of the normal production of the mines in the strike district. There had not been a large number of men who came on strike who had gone back to work, but the coal companies had succeeded in importing from other places a large number of men to take the places of the strikers. While they were doing that, it was impossible to get the strikers themselves to perform picket duty and apprise the men who were being imported of the troubles that existed. They could not be induced to do picket duty unless they were paid their day's wages while doing it. The result was that the coal companies were able to get men to mine the coal.

Delegate Randell speaks of President Mitchell making a tour of Europe and living on the fat of the land, as though President Mitchell had gone over there on his own personal initiative, while everybody in the convention knows that President Mitchell went to Europe by the direction of the United Mine Workers of America.

Mr. Randell says that President Mitchell betrayed the miners of Colorado. What a declaration! President Mitchell and the members of the National Executive Board were responsible for $437,000.00 being sent to support those striking miners. Would it have been sent if there had been any desire to betray them? When the strike was inaugurated there were less than three hundred men who were members of the organization in that field. There never had been any organization there. So far as their membership in the United Mine Workers is concerned, they had no claim upon its finances. They had never contributed to its funds, and yet from the very day they laid down their tools the National Executive Board furnished them the means to live, and furnished it to them irrespective of whether they were able to take care of themselves or not. It is well known there were numbers of men receiving aid from the United Mine Workers who had never contributed to it, and yet they had bank accounts varying from a few dollars to several thousand dollars, and they had those bank accounts intact when the strike was over.

Now, Mr. Chairman, President Mitchell and Vice-President Lewis covered most of the points mentioned very thoroughly, but I want to say again that I concur in every statement they have made, and know that, so far as President Mitchell and the National officers and members of the Board are concerned, every effort was put forth to protect and promote the interests of the miners of Colorado. We acted as we did for two reasons; first, because we believed it would be for the welfare of the miners of Colorado; and, second, because we believed it would be for the welfare of the miners of other parts of the country. On those two grounds we supported those men to the extent of $437,000.00, although they had never been contributors to the treasury of the United Mine Workers of America prior to that time, and have not contributed anything since.

FOURTH DAY—AFTERNOON SESSION.

The convention was called to order at 2 p. m., Thursday, January 19th, President Mitchell in the chair.

President Mitchell read the following telegram:

W. B. Wilson, United Mine Workers of America, Convention Hall.

In behalf of the International Longshoremen, Marine and Transport Workers' Association, I send fraternal greeting to the greatest organization of workers on earth, and hope the result of your deliberations will bring comfort and happiness to the miners and their families. D. J. KEEFE.

Detroit, Mich., January 16, 1905.

President Mitchell—At the time of adjournment we were discussing a question under suspension of the rules. Are there any further remarks on the question?

National Board Member Jones, Wyoming:

Mr. Chairman and Fellow Delegates—I assure you it is no pleasure to me to take the floor at this time, but I do so because I feel the discussion so far has placed the local to which I belong in a bad light. In other words, I myself and the local of which I am a member feel disgraced by the action of Delegate Randell.

In the first place, Mr. Chairman, the delegates will recall that the delegate spoke, not as a delegate from Wyoming, but said, "we, of Colorado." He seems to have forgotten that he is at present located in Wyoming, but still imagines he is in Colorado. When I spoke yesterday I had in mind particularly this gentleman, but I also had in mind others of his class. I want to say, as Brother Wilson, did, that I have no fault to find with the Socialists; that I have no quarrel with them; I am at least ninety-five per cent. Socialist myself, if not all Socialist. Like Brother Wilson, however, I have fault to find with the Socialists of the Randell and the "Appeal to Reason" brand.

Delegate Randell said that if President Howells had been given three hundred thousand dollars he would have brought the miners in Wyoming out. I think I know more about Wyoming than our Colorado friend does. I worked for fourteen months in Rock Springs, and the great majority of the people there you cannot talk to. It is estimated that in Rock Springs, a town of six thousand people, there are representatives of forty-three different nationalities. Among the people there are a large number of Chinese and Japanese. Our district president, M. F. Purcell, went to Rock Springs at the expense of the district and tried to organize the camp. The first thing he got was a notification from the marshal to vacate the town, saying that the order came from the mayor. Purcell is an Irish bulldog, and did not propose to be chased out. He said to the marshal, "Go back and tell His Honor the Mayor that I am here at the invitation of some of the people of this town, and I will go out when I feel like it, or you will take me out dead." The national paid the expenses of a Finnish interpreter, and he had no sooner reached the town than the spotters were after him. The men who have worked in West Virginia and Colorado know what these spotters are. Talk about Rock Springs coming out! Three million dollars could not have brought those fellows out at that time. I doubt if there is a foot of land in that town that is not owned by the Union Pacific Railroad Company. Men suppose they own their own homes, but there is in each title a clause which allows the Union Pacific Railroad Company to remove them at any time.

One year ago I attended the national convention held in this hall. After the adjournment, in company with another Dietz man, I met our operators in this city. We disagreed twice, and were on the verge of disruption. We had about concluded to bid good-bye to each other when, through the good offices of the presidents of Districts 14 and 25, we were encouraged to remain in the city. Then through the good offices of our national president both parties remained until an agreement was reached. We got more in that agreement than we had hoped to get, and we got it through the personal influence of John Mitchell. The Dietz sent us here on that occasion to demand five things—we went back with at least fifteen. Yet there are men of the stripe of Randell who will get up in their locals and say we never got anything! The Dietz local will not be two years old until the thirteenth of April. Before the local was organized the company paid whatever it pleased and imposed on the men whatever conditions it pleased. In those days if John Smith's little boy threw a stone at a sparrow and broke a window, John Smith was charged with a five-dollar fine in his next statement. The operator was absolute there. Then the United Mine Workers organized the camp, and today the miner receives 12½ per cent. more for digging coal than he did before the local was organized. The company men, with the exception of a few in one mine, receive from ten to twenty-five per cent. more than they received before the local was organized. There are men receiving fifty cents a day more than they received then, and I am willing to admit here and now that the advance was gained by following the advice President Mitchell gave me. We had no idea of demanding fifty cents a day advance. We did not dream of such a raise. President Mitchell asked if we had demanded anything for the outside men. We were afraid to ask for anything for them because we had not been so instructed. We did ask, however, after he advised us to do so, and we received an advance for them.

Randell says President Mitchell is a carbuncle that has attached himself to this body. Randell, I am informed, has lived in Dietz about four months. I am informed that while the struggle was on in Colorado—I don't know whether this is true or not—that instead of interesting himself in the Mine Workers he was soliciting aid for the Western Federation of Miners. Why does not he and his kind seek the camps that are operated under the supervision of the Western Federation of Miners? They do not do that, but they seek the places where our organization exists. Why did they not go to Aldrich, Montana, the only place where the Western Federation of Miners has jurisdiction in the coal mines of that state? They do not go there, however, they come to Dietz and other places operated under the jurisdiction of the United Mine Workers. Why? Because the coal miners that are under the jurisdiction of the Western Federation of Miners are working for $2.75, while our men in the same state are getting from $3.13 to $3.60. How did our organization get a foothold? The very men who are in that state today trying to pull down our organization pulled down the organization that was there before us. They wanted offices and they could not get them. They went to the convention of the Western Federation and said, "Give the coal miners an office." The Western Federation of Miners did not think the coal miners looked like men who ought to have offices, and so they did not get them. They went back and sowed the seeds of discord among the coal miners.

As I said, Randell came into our town about four months ago, and I am informed on good authority that he has done nothing in that local except find fault with the U. M. W. of A. In the last election in Wyoming we had the honor of having one of our number elected a member of the legislature. He was elected on the Republican ticket, and a truer man does not breathe, I don't care what party he belongs to. I was a candidate on the other ticket, but I could not carry the Parker load. I was swamped, and I am not sorry for it. I had the honor of voting for Edwin Gilroy on the Republican ticket, and I am proud of it. Gilroy went before his local union and asked the members to suggest legislation. This man Randell, in his class-conscious moment, said, "Yes, that is the way it always is! Elect a man on an old party ticket and you have to bend the knee and beg if you want him to do anything for you." This in the face of the fact that he (Gilroy) was begging them to suggest legislation.

I know (?) the Dietz people have it in for John Mitchell, and I have letters to prove it. I haven't a written speech or a memorized one—I make my own speeches—but I have a letter I would like to read. Speaking of Mr. Randell the writer says:

"He came from Colorado here, and from what I have heard him say I believe he was through the East soliciting funds for the Western Federation of Miners during the trouble in Colorado, and in comparing the two organizations one night I believe he clearly showed that he considered the Western Federation of Miners first—go back and join them.

"That he is sincere in his beliefs I firmly believe; but I believe that in justice to all concerned he should prefer the same charges at the national convention he has here. I cannot help feeling sorry that this local should be held responsible, for I believe a great many of our locals do not believe as our delegate does, and while a delegate is supposed to represent the majority of a local, in this instance he does not."

I will read from another letter from the same party:

"Since the first meeting he announced on the floor that Mitchell had sold us out, and the only evidence he produced at the time or since then was the report of District 15 and articles from the Western Federation of Miners' Magazine. I simply heard him read from both, and have seen neither. I have not liked him and for that reason may not be entirely fair with him in my own mind; but I assure you that all I have written can be borne out by a great many here. That he believes the assertions he has made himself, that he is convinced in his own mind beyond the shadow of a doubt, goes without saying. But that any man would make such a serious charge against a man in a position as responsible as the executive head of the U. M. W. of A., and on such flimsy evidence as all I have seen, proves to my mind that he is so prejudiced in party beliefs and affiliations with the Western Federation of Miners that he is willing to take the mere assertions of these papers as evidence of guilt."

The last meeting we had was a repetition of several before, between the election of this delegate and the meeting of which he speaks, and I can assure you the defenders of the present officers were not lacking. That those who believe in Mitchell are in the majority is shown by the fact that he received three-fourths of all the votes. If all our 380 members could be induced to attend the meetings, I am sure not more than fifty would say John Mitchell had not performed his whole duty, having in mind always the interests of the members.

The very fact that three-fourths of our members voted for John Mitchell stamps Mr. Randell as a man who would represent himself rather than his constituents. If there is any one principle that is dear to the hearts of the Socialists it is the principle that men ought to represent their constituents, not themselves. They maintain that a man has no right to represent himself, that he ought to represent his constituency. That being so, I suggest that when Mr. Randell goes home he either apologize to those people for misrepresenting them, or withdraw from the Socialist club at once.

Mr. President, I would not feel such agreat interest in this matter if I did not see in the future a danger. These people are located in several of our camps, and are positively injurious. I would not expel them; no, I would say, "Let that man speak and let his speech go on record." I am in favor of free speech; I do not believe in curtailing it. I do not believe in using any measure that is unfair to defeat any proposition, even though it be unfair.

We had this same question up in our district convention, not with reference to the national president, but with reference to our district officers. The same people who are seeking flaws in the actions of the national officers were there with a big stick to club our district officers. I believe the district officers they attacked were Socialists. They came to Helena to roast somebody, but they went back roasted.

I don't believe in idolizing any man, but I do believe in a certain amount of hero-worship. The man who does not worship to some extent is a cold-blooded being, and he does not know how to love. There are men in this world whom I love and whom I would defend with my life. The man who is continually seeking to destroy is not a Socialist; he is an Anarchist. As I said before, I have no fight with Socialism. Our present district president is a Socialist. I supported him for his present position, and am supporting him to the best of my ability in doing the work of his office. Others of our officers are Socialists. The dearest friends I have in Dietz are Socialists. It is not Socialism or Socialists I oppose, but that brand of Socialists that do not know they are Anarchists.

I do not know that I ought to detain you any longer, but I wish to state before I leave the floor that I will go back to Dietz, if President Mitchell will let me go west—and I want to go west; I would rather work there than anywhere else—and Delegate Randell and myself I hope will be in the same meeting and we will thresh this matter out again. There is further evidence that he does not represent that local. When it came to a test lately for the offices they were not in it.

The question was asked from the floor: "How did he get to be a delegate?"

I am glad you asked that question. I will tell you how he got to be a delegate. You know that in our camps and coal towns many pay their dues but take very little more interest in the local. They feel at heart they are right; they are loyal to the organization in one sense, but they do not care to be bothered with the details of the organization, and so stay at home. We have in Dietz what you probably have everywhere, those men who are satisfied with the officers, who are satisfied that everything is being done that can be done, and they leave well enough alone. Then, as you know, there is in most locals an element that is not satisfied with anything that is done. They kick here, and I suppose when they have gone to the place below they will kick. These fellows went to the local in their might. They gathered at that meeting every man of their kind they could gather. They didn't get all the Socialists, however, but they got every crank in the camp. They got fellows who had been called down for violating the agreement; they got the fellows who wanted to go on strike last summer when a strike would have been detrimental to us; they got the fellows who always have a knife for everybody in power, and in all they got about forty members out of 380. If he represents anyone at all he represents forty out of 380 members. That is how he was elected. He and his crowd went there loaded, and the other fellows, the innocent men, not anticipating any dirty, underhand work, stayed at home and allowed that load to be fired. As evidence of what I say I wish to refer to the fact that the man he defeated, only a few months ago in that local union was presented with a bookcase that cost forty-five dollars. This was presented to him by the members of the local to show their esteem for him.

I would not have said a word of this if the brother had not asked the question he did. He was elected regularly and legally, I do not deny that. However, if the election was to be held tomorrow he would be so overwhelmingly covered up in the debris that he would never be resurrected again. I believe he is ambitious, but I also believe he is as well known now as he is ambitious. I don't anticipate any future trouble in Wyoming or Montana from Mr. Randell. I believe we can very well take care of him from now on; but I want to say to you, don't accept the suggestion that was made by Brother Dolan and oust him from the convention, and don't strike the speeches from the record. Let the record speak for itself—it speaks volumes. If you do that, gentlemen, there are men who will go from this convention and misrepresent what was said and done here. Yesterday when I took my seat after speaking to the convention, a good brother asked me where I was from. I told him I was from Wyoming, and he said, "I am from Kansas and I don't like your shot." There are good men in the West, but some of them don't understand. I am from the West, and I shall not convict myself when the law of the land does not require that I should. I love the West more than I love the East. I have been in the West now for a number of years, and I should not care to live anywhere else. I like the people of the West, I like the country, and I am going to live there the balance of my life if they will let me, and when I pass in my checks they will be passed in from the West. Whoever vilifies the West, I shall never do so. I want to be understood for what I am, and I want to be what I am and nothing else.

I have occupied more time than was allowed me, and unless I am stirred up by some provocation I shall keep still for the rest of the session.

National Board Member Haggerty:

Mr. President and Gentlemen—I want to state to the convention that I am one of the members of the National Board that have been attacked. I want to show you why my vote was cast in favor of declaring off the strike in Colorado.

When President Howells of District 15, together with the National Board members from that district and the organizer, appeared before the National Executive Board on the third day of last May, a question was propounded to President Howells and to the representatives of that district, the answer to which caused me to change my mind as to the Colorado situation, and caused me to record my vote in favor of declaring the strike off. After we had discussed the matter pro and con, and before a vote was taken by the board, President Mitchell put this question to President Howells: "If you will show the least ray of hope that the strike can be won, notwithstanding that we have spent in the neighborhood of four hundred thousand dollars, I shall recommend to the board that they spend a like amount or more." He was unable to show that, but, on the contrary, admitted in the presence of the entire board that the strike was hopelessly lost except that some policy be pursued other than the policy pursued up to that time. That is one reason why I voted to declare the strike off.

I shall now give you another reason why I voted to declare the strike off. The funds of the organization were fast being depleted in a field that was not of as much importance to this joint competitive field as were other fields where the members of the organization were on strike. There were other strikes that had to be won to protect the agreement in the East. We had strikes in West Virginia and in the Meyersdale field that were of far more importance to the miners of Mr. Dolan's district, as well as to Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, than Colorado would be for the next twenty years. I believed that if the vast amount of money that was being spent in the West was spent in the East it would be better. This is another reason why I voted as I did.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I do not care to occupy more time than is necessary to explain why I recorded my vote as I did. Let the delegate from Wyoming go back and inform the miners that President Howells told the members of the board last May that the strike was hopelessly lost unless another policy was pursued, and what that policy was neither he nor anyone else ever told the board.

President Boyle of District 11 in the chair.

Delegate Chris Evans:

Mr. Chairman and Delegates—I shall not take up much of your time in discussing this matter. I went to Colorado in November, 1903, and remained there until July 24, 1904, when all the rest of the national officers had left the state. It is for this reason I am so anxious to be allowed to say a few words in regard to the situation in Colorado during the strike.

A great deal has been said in connection with the treatment of the miners that were on strike in Colorado. Whether your National Executive Board acted wisely or not is not for me to determine. They did, however, decide that I should go into that district for the purpose of looking after the financial end of the strike. I went there and did the best I knew how in looking after the money that was sent into the district and spending it to the best advantage.

I shall say a few words in regard to men who have been on strike in years gone by. How many of the national officials of the United Mine Workers received pay during the year 1897? Is there any board member here present who served during that year and received pay for his services? So far as being remunerated and getting salaries for being on strike is concerned, I never knew of such a thing in all my experience with strikes. When we went to Colorado we found it was the most difficult thing imaginable to get any man to do work in connection with the strike without his first asking, "What pay am I going to receive? How much per day am I going to get?" I was in Colorado during the elections in that part of the country. I did not favor repeating there, and I shall not favor it here if I can avoid it. I do not want to repeat what has been said by the national officers and others who have spoken; but there are a few things I wish to place before this convention. The convention has already heard that outside of the amount allowed the district by the National organization the district officers were given six thousand dollars. In addition to this six thousand dollars, after I went there I paid $23,-237.29 for old accounts that had been created prior to my going there to take charge, making in all nearly $30,000. Now we are told the National had no interest in the poor families in that district during the strike. Let us stop for a moment and see how much the district officers, men who belonged in Colorado—not foreigners as we were termed—did for the people of their district and how far their charity went. In the report made by Secretary Simpson of that district in September last he states that the president of the district received for that term $2,603.05, and that the secretary received $1,164.15. For the month of October the district president received $167 and the secretary received $108.05. These are men who had the interest of the organization and the interest of the poor, starving families at heart, and who were criticising and condemning the national officers for the stand they had taken!

"Now, let me call your attention to one other fact in this connection. You will remember that the national officers had decided that, so far as financial help was concerned, it would be declared off on June 30, 1904. Now, here is a point I want to impress upon your minds. From that time on they were supposed to get their aid through the various solicitors who went through the eastern states asking locals and districts to give what they felt like donating. It has been said that the national officers refused to give them aid, and that as a result of that refusal the wives and children of the miners were starving. In July, August, September and October—four months—the district officers very carefully undertook to deduct their wages and other expenses from the amounts that you in the various districts were willing to give to those starving families that my friend Randell speaks so touchingly about. Does this look as though the national officials were the only ones who were hard hearted?

My friends, I do not wish to take up much more of your time in discussing this matter; I feel that it has been discussed thoroughly, and I am afraid the delegates are almost disgusted with it. I admit it is enough to disgust any one. There is one thing I want to impress upon your minds, and that is that there is no question in my mind as to the source from which all this confusion emanates. Secretary Wilson has well said where all these evils sprang from, or rather where the greatest portion of them sprang from, and I say without hesitation it is from the very element that Delegate Randell represents in this convention. I will cite you one instance to prove what I say. I happened to be in that section of the country when President Mitchell came to Trinidad. I happened to be in Denver when he was there, and I also happened to be in the convention in Pueblo when they decided to continue the strike, contrary to the wishes and advice of the national officials. What did I find there? I found the representatives of the Western Federation of Miners there, and I found they had been in every convention that had been held, and in every instance they did all in their power to encourage the coal miners in that state to strike. The president of the State Federation of Colorado—and, by the way, I wish to say that my impressions are very strong that the Western Federation is the bone and sinew of the State Federation—undertook to say on the floor of that convention at Pueblo, when the continuance of the strike was being discussed, "If I were in my own convention, where the password could be taken up, I would then be in a position to tell you what I thought should be done." I have sometimes wondered what he thought of the composition of that delegation! There were four of the board members there. While this man undertook to impress upon the men present that there was only one place where he could make his statement, he did say to them, however, what he would have said had he been in his own convention, and that was that the calling off of the strike at that time would be cowardly. What effect do you suppose that would have upon members of that delegated body, when advocates of that character were using such language and making it appear it would be cowardly to call the strike off then? Is there any man who knows the history of the coal miners who would think for one moment there was any thing cowardly in the officials of the United Mine Workers at that time, when they believed it was for the best interests of the organization, to call off the strike? I know them to be different men, and so do you.

In concluding my remarks I shall state again that the source from which most of this trouble has emanated is the party our friend Randell represents. And, while I do not agree with my friend Dolan in wishing to expel the gentleman, I do say that I think it advisable for this convention to use every means possible to get these people to understand that, so far as our conventions are concerned, the United Mine Workers of America are going to control the action of the convention, and not the Socialist party.

Delegate Savage—Suppose the delegate from Wyoming should wish to say something more on his side of the question, would the chair permit it?

Board Member S. E. McCullough, Mich.—We have met here to transact the business of our constituents, and to do it as sensible, representative men. We are supposed to transact this business without prejudice or passion. All I have to say in reference to the Colorado situation is this: I was not in Colorado, but I did vote to call off the strike. I voted to call it off simply because of the evidence given by the Colorado delegation and the representatives from that field.

There is one question that has been raised I wish to speak a word on—a question I have never spoken on in any of the conventions of the United Mine Workers I have attended. I refer to the question of Socialism. I am a Socialist and I am proud of it. Many remarks have been made today in reference to the Socialists. Remarks have been made that reflect upon the honor, the integrity and the unionism of some of the best men in the trades union movement of this country. I joined a labor organization over nineteen years ago in the days of the Knights of Labor, and have paid up every month's dues from that day on. I have been a consistent trades unionist and have evoluted into a higher state —into the Socialist movement. Being a Socialist does not make a man a bad trade unionist; it does and should make him a better trade unionist. The Socialist movement of this country is not injured by men who denounce it from the outside, nor is it injured by attacks from the capitalist class. It is injured by the men who claim to be Socialists, but who do not understand one of the fundamental principles of Socialism. Any man who understands anything about the condition of this country knows that the Socialist movement has not found root except where the trade unions had been first. A man who pretends to be a Socialist and attacks the principles of trade unionism and denounces its officers as traitors, is the greatest enemy the Socialist movement has in the world.

As a trade unionist and as a Socialist I say that this fight between us should be stopped. If we ever hope to gain anything we must gain it by co-operation, not by harsh words and cruel treatment. We must gain it by holding out our hands and saying to each other, "You are my economic brother; God bless you!" and if there is any difference between us let us settle it peaceably. Let us work together for the betterment of the human race. I hate to see a Socialist resolution come in here. It is wrong for a Socialist to bring a resolution into a trade union convention. You cannot make Socialists out of men in that way. The only way you can make Socialists out of men is to talk with them and reason with them. No man ever resoluted me into Socialism. I came into the Socialist movement because I studied it for years and believed it was right.

A delegate arose to a point of order, and stated that Delegate McCullough was not speaking to the question. Chairman Boyle—The point is well taken.

Delegate McCullough—I am not the man who raised this question, but I am defending the question as a trade unionist and a Socialist. I have listened to delegates who preceded me, denouncing Socialism in unmeasured terms, and I simply wanted to say that the men who bring such charges as we have listened to here this morning are not Socialists.

Delegate Douthwaite, President of the Colorado District, received permission to speak, and said:

Mr. President and Brothers—I have heard a great deal of discussion about Colorado, and I did not think it right for me to sit here and not defend my men. Brother Randell has been discussed enough, I think. I never met the gentleman, never spoke to him in my life, and never knew he had a resolution to offer about Colorado. I am the only delegate from District 15, and am glad you have given me the privilege of taking the floor in its defense.

I was in Colorado from the first day of 1903 to the 20th of January, 1905, and I have been in receipt of information regarding that strike. I want to say that all the members of your Executive Board have told the truth conscientiously as they saw it. When they say, however, that every man out there had to be paid for striking they are stretching the truth. The men who wanted to be paid for doing the work of the strikers were not United Mine Workers until they were bought to be United Mine Workers. There are as good union men in Colorado today as there are in the United States. From 1885 up to the present day I have been paying dues to labor organizations. The men in Colorado did not all have to be paid for striking. You were not told of the work the men there did for nothing. I was one of the members on the financial board, and when the statement is made that the money that was given to us after last June was used to pay salaries, I want to clear my skirts of that charge. The financial board O K'd all bills. What Secretary Simpson and President Howells paid to themselves came from the assessments of the northern district. After the National withdrew their financial help solicitors were sent out to collect money for the strike. If I had been of the same opinion as the National Executive Board at that time, that the strike was lost, I would have thought it cowardly to send men out to solicit aid to support it. I thought, and I think so to this day, that if we had had thirty thousand dollars on the seventh day of last September to make the second call for Colorado, we would have a different story to tell, a story that would have been full of glory. That is why we sent men out to solicit aid. I am partly responsible for this money, for I am one of the three who spent it. We did not pay it all out for salaries.

In Northern Colorado, where my friend says he lost the strike because we went to work, I was on the conference committee that met Strube and Blood. I was the man who in my local urged the miners to accept that proposition. I was there at the meeting when Mother Jones and Bill Howells said they would not urge them to go to work. I was there when they sent Brother Ream and Bill Howells to the telephone to ask them for the eight-hour proposition. When Brother Ream and Brother Howells returned from the telephone they said they would give us an unconditional eight hours, and I want to say we got a thirty per cent. advance in Lafayette, and it was the best thing we ever did in Northern Colorado to accept it. If we had not accepted it we would today be working ten hours and working under the same conditions as in Southern Colorado. Why? Because we only worked sixteen days after we made that settlement until we were chopped down to two days a week, and for five months last summer and spring we only worked three half days a week. There was no possible show of the north coming out on strike to help the south to win. Therefore, I say it is wrong to condemn President Mitchell and put the weight on his shoulders for the failure of the strike.

President Mitchell—What kind of coal is mined in Northern Colorado?

Delegate Douthwaite—Lignite coal, which is only good for domestic use.

President Mitchell—Can it be used for steam purposes or do they use it for steam purposes?

Delegate Douthwaite—No, sir, they do not.

President Mitchell—You were in Northern Colorado when we made the settlement?

Delegate Douthwaite—I was there.

President Mitchell—Was bituminous coal shipped to Northern Colorado?

Delegate Douthwaite—It was President Mitchell—Is there any statement made by Delegate Randall you believe?

Delegate Douthwaite—No, sir; not one.

President Mitchell—You have been a Colorado miner for years?

Delegate Douthwaite—I have. However, I will say this in defense of Delegate Randell. There are times when people are mistaken. I believe there are times when I condemned President Mitchell and the National Board. I was like a drowning man grasping at a straw, and I thought when they refused to endorse the credentials of our solicitors they were doing wrong. I said things then of which I am ashamed today. When a man is placed in such a position he is not always accountable for what he says. I changed my mind when I had time for a second thought. I think, however, that Brother Randell has plenty of time to get that second thought.

I am sorry that this discussion was brought out here. I came here, not to condemn any officer, local or national, but to bury the hatchet. We realize that we need the assistance of the National to help us organize Colorado. I believe every man was conscientious and did what he could, and it may have been a lost cause from the first day. However, let that be a thing of the past, and let us start anew to build up an organization in that state.

Board Member John Fallon, Pennsylvania—As one member of the Board I desire to say a few words on this question. As one of the National Board members, and acquainted with the men attacked, I could not sit quiet and allow any man to come into the convention and do as Delegate Randell did without protest. I could not allow any man to come in here and try to make the delegates believe the head of our organization is a monster. The delegate from Wyoming came here and tried to make the convention believe that the people of Colorado were sold out. At one time, when one of the greatest labor struggles this country has ever seen was on, I had an opportunity to see a great deal of the man who was attacked here today. I had an opportunity to see him day and night for a great part of that year. If he wanted to be a traitor to his cause for the sake of a few paltry dollars, I wish to say that he might have hundreds of thousands of dollars for every thousand dollars the poor Colorado operators could have given him.

I concur heartily in every word that was uttered by President Mitchell, Vice-President Lewis and Secretary Wilson. I also concur in what was said by the rest of my colleagues on the National Executive Board.

I am proud to have it to say that I am one of the men who went back to the East and told our locals it was useless for them to contribute money to the Colorado strike, for I considered it virtually lost. I voted to call the strike off, thinking it unwise to spend the money of the National organization to carry it on longer. After doing that I could not consistently advise the locals to send their money to be spent on the Colorado strike.

Delegate Jones, Wyoming—Inasmuch as there are two principals in this discussion, President Mitchell and Delegate Randell, I think if they wish a further opportunity to speak it should be given them. I think if Delegate Randell wants the floor he should be given an opportunity to speak now. Then if President Mitchell wants to speak he should be given an opportunity. I do not think it would be fair to close debate until the two men most interested in the discussion are given an opportunity to be heard again.

Chairman Boyle—You have heard the statement made by Delegate Jones. If you wish to give President Mitchell and Delegate Randell another opportunity to be heard you had better take some action now.

Delegate Nichols—I would like to have the chair ask the question of the two principals, and ascertain if either of them desires to speak before debate is closed.

Chairman Boyle—Does Delegate Randell wish to speak again on the question before the house?

Delegate Randell—I certainly do, but I would like to have the printed report of what the Board members have said before I answer them. I have not been able to make very good notes. I would like to know if, after the report of the proceedings is printed, I can have five minutes to answer them.

Secretary Wilson—Unless there are definite instructions from this convention to print a verbatim report of the debate it will not be printed. We have never printed a verbatim report of the proceedings of our convention unless direct instructions were given by the convention to do so.

Chairman Boyle—Does President Mitchell wish to speak again?

President Mitchell—That will depend entirely upon what Delegate Randell says.

A motion was made that the convention exonerate President

Mitchell and all other officials mentioned in the discussion from the charges made. (No second.)

On motion, the rules were suspended and the convention adjourned at 4 o'clock p. m., to meet at 9 o'clock a. m., Friday, January 20th.

FIFTH DAY—MORNING SESSION.

The convention was called to order at 9 o'clock a. m., Friday, January 20th, President Mitchell in the chair.

President Mitchell—At the time of adjournment last evening it was moved that Delegate Randell be given a further hearing. If Delegate Randell wishes to make any further statement, he may do so.

Delegate McPherson—I move that a verbatim report of the proceedings of Thursday and this morning's session in regard to the Colorado matter be printed and distributed among the delegates.

The motion was seconded and carried.

President Mitchell—If Delegate Randell wishes to speak further on the matter under discussion he may do so.

Delegate Randell—Mr. President and Fellow Delegates: I am sorry that what I have said and what has been said about me has taken up so much of the time of this convention; but you cannot blame me for it. Mr. Mitchell threw his thunderbolt at me day before yesterday. He denounced me on the floor of this convention. Not a word had been said about the Colorado-Utah strike until he brought the matter up. He forced me into a position where I was compelled to reply. Let me state now that when I answered Pat Dolan's surprising assertion, and said that outside of the labor leaders of the Civic Federation the members were men like Andrew Carnegie, whose hands are red with the blood of the Homestead strikers, and Frank Robbins, who has always oppressed the miners, I did it for Pat Dolan's enlightenment. If Pat Dolan had kept still this discussion might never have come up. I did not mean to attack Mr. Mitchell, and I never considered that he would take offense at what I said. Mr. Mitchell attacked me, and when I am attacked I fight. I am not a boaster, I am not a braggart or a bluffer; I am not a bully and I do not seek quarrels, but what I say I mean. Mr. Mitchell has brought this entire discussion about, and he alone is responsible for it. You cannot blame me for fighting back when I am attacked. A man who will not fight is a coward, and I despise a coward. I could bring in new evidence to support the statements I made yesterday, but I will not do so, as it will only prolong this debate.

I do not claim to represent in any official manner the miners of Colorado, neither do I represent the Socialist party nor the Western Federation of Miners. I am simply a western miner, one of the rank and file, who feels that a big wrong has been done, and I am not afraid to say so. I am confident that had I the time and the printed reports of what has been said, I could go over the statements made by the national organizers and tear them up. I am willing to debate this matter with any single individual, but the best lawyer who ever lived could not win a case against twenty-five other lawyers if he had not the time to answer their statements in detail. I am willing to debate this question with Mr. Mitchell on any platform at any time. As I have not a verbatim report of what was said yesterday, if I attribute to any one of the national officers statements made by some one else I am willing to be corrected. Mr. Mitchell said that District President Howells never offered to close the strike with $300,000.00, or if that was not sufficient, to not ask for any more. Mr. Mitchell's statement is contradicted by the statement of President Howells made in the convention in District 15. In a report to the district convention President Howells said:

"I followed President Mitchell to Denver from Trinidad for the purpose of getting a lump sum on which to run the strike. I named $300,000.00 as the sum needed and that if the National would allow us that we would show them a clean pair of heels in nine weeks. We could get no satisfaction. Organizer Bousfield was sent to Wyoming to make an investigation and report if that state could be brought out on strike. After a thirty-six hours' investigation he came back and reported that it would be impossible to bring Wyoming out on strike."

Your statement, Mr. Mitchell, that President Howells used funds given by the National to pay back salaries is proved by President Douthwaite to be a mistake. Your statement that Howells wanted to handle the $300,000 is absurd. President Howells and the district officers did not want to handle the money personally. They were perfectly willing to allow the National to oversee the handling of that money.

I reiterate the statement that you forced Mother Jones from the organization. You did not do it by forcing her from her position, but by asking her to do things she could not do without sacrificing her principles.

In regard to Secretary Wilson's statement that only 2,500 men were on strike at the time the National support was withdrawn. I will refer to Secretary Simpson's report made in June which showed that there were 4,000 men on strike who had to be supported.

Mr. Bousfield said the men in District 15 were responsible for the loss of the strike, and Mr. Wilson said that they would not put up tents without being paid for doing it. It is a shame to say such things of the men of the West! The working class of this country never fought a more heroic battle than did the men in Colorado, New Mexico and Utah, and it is a disgrace to the United Mine Workers for these men to get up here and say they were defeated because they did not strike hard enough. The western miners have suffered many indignities, but this is the greatest indignity of all that has been heaped upon them.

Mr: Fairley said, as did President Douthwaite, that after the northern miners returned to work and produced the coal that defeated the southern miners they only worked half time. I was in Northern Colorado at that time and I was one of the men who was forced to go back to work. I never scabbed in all my life before, but I am firmly convinced that when I dug coal in Northern Colorado to defeat the southern men I scabbed. If I did scab in that instance it was because the officials of this organization forced me to do so.

Mr. Fairley said I did not know what I was talking about. I think I do. The fact remains that during the months of November, December and January 19,000 men, women and children in Colorado and Utah were living on 63 cents per week per capita, and even that amount could not all be expended for food. How would you like to have your families thrown out into the street, not even allowed to go back into the houses to get clothing or furniture or bedding, and then have them live on 63 cents per capita per week?

Delegate—We have lived on less.

Delegate Randell—Mr. Fairley said the district officials kicked because their salaries were cut in two. I believe if Mr. Fairley's salary was cut in two he also would object.

Now, in regard to "Comrade" Jones of Dietz, Wyoming. I do not wish to take up the valuable time of this convention going over the petty squabbles of the Dietz, Wyoming local; but as Mr. Jones has seen fit to speak of the election there, I wish to reply to him. I was elected by a vote of over two to one at one of the largest meetings held in that local since I have been a member. I was elected by a vote of the members present. Can Mr. Jones say as much when he was elected National Board Member? I strongly suspect that the anonymous communication he read was from the defeated candidate for delegate himself. I sincerely hope that Brother Jones will go back to Dietz soon. He will not be so brave in making charges against me on the floor of his own local as he is here. I will compare my union record with Brother Jones' any day.

I wish to speak of the Western Federation local at Aldrich, Montana, where the men have been on strike since July. When you go back to Montana, Brother Jones, you will have to answer the statement that they are scabs. You should be ashamed of yourself!

I solicited aid for the Telluride strikers, and I am proud of it. This is the first time I ever heard it was a crime to solicit aid for strikers. I know why Mr. Jones is so willing to defend Mr. Mitchell. He is going to be turned down at the next election for Board member, and he wants to get into the good graces of Mr. Mitchell in order to hold his four dollar a day job as organizer. He accuses me of being ambitious, but I am not as ambitious as he was to break into the Legislature of Wyoming. He seems to have a grudge against the Socialists. Last fall when he was offered the nomination for state representative on the Democratic platform he forgot all his Socialistic principles. The Socialists of Dietz worked against him and I have it to say he was defeated. Mr. Jones, you are a political scab of the peanut variety!

I have all sorts of regard for Harry Douthwaite, and I know that he comes here to try and smooth matters over. He believes that is the best policy, but I differ with him. I give him the right to have his own opinions, but claim the same right for myself. I was not surprised to hear him defend the action of the National officials in regard to the Northern Colorado strike, because he was one member of the committe who labored to bring that about. I do not believe Mr. Douthwaite meant to say that the miners of the northern field worked half time after the settlement, because he knows better. It is a fact, however, and every person who was there at the time knows it, that they were running short of coal in the city of Denver and would have been practically without coal if the northern miners had not been forced back to work. Brother Douthwaite stated that lignite coal is not used for steam purposes. I believe he knows better than that.

In conclusion, let me say that your President, Mr. Mitchell, should not be so quick at hurling thunderbolts at delegates in this convention. It has been stated that I made charges against Mr. Mitchell in the local at Dietz, Wyoming. I venture the assertion that a great many members of the United Mine Workers have made statements fully as bad as mine in their own locals. I cannot understand why Mr. Mitchell should bring this up against me here and force me into a position where I am compelled to defend myself.

I am not here as a representative of the Western Federation of Miners, as some of you seem to believe and try to make out. The Western coal miners know they should be affiliated with the great body of coal miners of this country. They also believe there should be a closer affiliation between the metalliferous miners and the coal miners; but the expressions that have been made upon this floor reflecting upon the Colorado strikers by Mr. Lewis, Mr. Wilson and other members of the Board and national officers will do more to drive the western coal miners into the Western Federation of Miners than anything the Western Federation could possibly do. I ask that this convention show the coal miners of the West that the United Mine Workers of America are not going to turn them down. I ask you to show that the rank and file of the eastern miners are in sympathy with the rank and file of the western coal miners who are in their organization.

I know I have made bitter enemies in this convention, but I want to thank you one and all for the privilege of speaking here and of defending myself.

Delegate Kennedy, Colorado—I was absent yesterday when this matter was discussed and failed to have a hearing at that time. I now ask the convention to grant me the privilege of speaking for about ten minutes. Some things have been said I should like to answer.

On motion Delegate Kennedy was given the privilege of the floor for ten minutes.

Delegate Kennedy—Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates: I was ill yesterday and unable to attend the convention, so have not heard the discussion that was carried on. I have, however, heard of the charges that were made, and wish to answer some of the things that were said.

I have never met the gentleman who has been accorded the privilege of the floor several times within the past few days, and who has made various charges and statements. I would not take part in this discussion at all were it not for the fact that a few things have been said that I know pretty nearly all about, because I have been in the strike district in Colorado from the time the strike was inaugurated until very recently. I did not leave the state until after the strike was declared off. I am the man who eventually did face the music and say to the Colorado miners that I believed their strike was lost and that it should be called off.

I presume I can bring up nothing new in regard to the northern field, but I was one of the people, and the first one, who in any official way went into the northern field to attempt to bring about an amicable adjustment of the differences between the miners and the operators there. I acted under instructions sent to President Howells by President Mitchell. I went to the northern field and got the conference which President Mitchell had assured us in a letter we could get if we went there and asked the operators to meet us. When the conference was in progress Mr. John Ream of Iowa, appeared and we worked in harmony to bring about the settlement. We agreed to everything prior to the time the strike should have been inaugurated, with the exception of the eight-hour day. The operators conceded a fair and equitable share of what the miners thought they should have, taking into consideration the conditions that existed in the competitive fields in the West. I want to call your attention to the fact that before we met with the northern operators they were then paying at least thirty per cent. more than was being paid in the strike field in the southern part of the state. After we finally reached a setlement we got $3.10 for eight hours in the northern field when they were only getting $2.85 for ten hours' work in the southern field, and that is all they have been getting since. I don't think that was such a bad settlement for the northern field.

Since Mother Jones's name has been mentioned I wish to say something about the matter. After Brother John Ream, myself and others in the northern field had the settlement about made; in fact, it was made with the exception of taking the referendum vote, Mother Jones and President Howells appeared on the scene and succeeded in tying up the settlement. I was then forced—believing I was doing justice to the northern miners, and Brother Ream took the same position—to prepare a telegram and send it to the northern miners advising them to accept the settlement. I have never regretted doing that. I don't know whether Brother Randell was working in the northern field at that time, and I don't care. I have worked all over the northern field; I know the conditions there, and I know the settlement we got was a good one, taking into consideration all the circumstances surrounding the western coal miners. The only apprehension I have now is that possibly we may not be able to hold what we gained in that settlement, on account of the defeat in the southern field.

I understand that board members here have made the statement that all the men in the West had to be paid a salary before they would even put up tents.

President Mitchell—That statement was not made. The statement was made that many of the men for whom tents were provided demanded pay for erecting them.

Delegate Kennedy—On March first it was reported that seventy-five per cent. of the normal production of coal was being gotten out. After making a careful canvass of the situation I believe it was much less. I am one of the men who, up to the time national support was withdrawn, believed the strike should have been continued. I have differed to a certain extent with President Mitchell, but I never did—and I do not think anyone with good judgment would—condemn him or descend to the level of making charges against him because the Colorado strike was lost. Mr. Randell did not voice the sentiments of the Colorado coal miners when he said that President Mitchell sold out the strike. I know he did not voice the sentiments of the Colorado miners, because if they were going to prefer charges against President Mitchell they would place them in the hands of men who were better acquainted with the situation in Colorado all through the strike period than Delegate Randell appears to be. I have never heard an intelligent man in Colorado or in the West charge President Mitchell with selling out the strike, and I do not believe there is such a man in the West who holds that opinion.

I have said I believe the strike should have been won. This strike, I believe, could have been won under certain circumstances. I will not enter into a debate relative to that matter now, but I do not charge President Mitchell with losing the strike in Colorado, because I know better.

I feel it is my duty as National Board member from that district to come before you and give you some information in regard to the facts leading up to the disgraceful charges made against our president. I don't think Mr. Randell will charge me with trying to cater to the president; I hope he will not, because my term of office expires next April and after that I propose to go back into the mines. When I do go back into the mines to work, I mean to select mines where the United Mine Workers of America are recognized. Sore as I have been on account of the outcome of the strike in Colorado, I intend to hold my membership in the organization, because I believe it is the only organization that has ever bettered the conditions of the miners, and I believe it is the only organization the coal miners, whether they work in the East or in the West, should belong to.

I am not going to make a personal attack on Delegate Randell. I do not believe the gentleman is well informed. He said he was forced to make a fight. I do not consider that any reason for a man to fight when he has no foundation to fight on. He as good as admitted that the reason he preferred the charges was that President Mitchell forced him to do so on account of statements he is reported to have made in his own local in Dietz, Wyoming. I do not consider that a good reason for trumping up charges and making accusations against an officer. So far as I am concerned, I do not in any sense or in any manner approve of the charges that have been made here, for I know they are entirely groundless and without any foundation whatever. I say that Mr. Randell does not represent the coal miners of Colorado. The sentiments of the intelligent coal miners of Colorado are not the sentiments of Mr. Randell. Today the name of John Mitchell is as dear as ever in that district, even though we lost the strike.

Delegate Jones—I arise to a question of personal privilege. Some statements have been made that I think I should answer.

President Mitchell—If there are no objections Delegate Jones may proceed. Hearing none, the delegate may proceed.

Delegate Jones—Delegate Randell in his answer has made statements that reflect on me personally. He has made statements that are false. I believe it is only right that I should be allowed to defend myself in this particular. I shall not attack Delegate Randell or discuss the question at all; I shall merely refer to the attack on me personally.

Mr. Randell said he would not have made the attack if he had not been attacked first. We have it on good authority that he was fully prepared to come here and make the attack. His friends boasted that he would make the attack; that he was elected for that especial purpose. Since coming to the convention he has told a delegate that he would take the shine out of John Mitchell. You did not know, Mr. Mitchell, that he had said that. I had not told you that. The statement that he did not intend to attack Mr. Mitchell, then, is falsehood No. 1. Why did he bring those letters and the literature he read from to this convention, letters and literature bearing on this subject, if he did not intend to make the attack? I would not carry about such trash if I did not want to use it—I would not carry around clothes if I did not intend to wear them.

Delegate Randell accuses me of having said it was a crime to collect funds for the Western Federation of Miners! I would convict myself by such an assertion, because I had the pleasure of collecting funds for the Western Federation of Miners when it was too cold to use a fountain pen, when the ink froze in the pen, and when my colleagues gave up in despair. Delegate Randell was not in Dietz at that time and knows nothing about it.

Delegate Randell says I am catering to John Mitchell because I am going to lose the position I now hold and will want another. I had not heard that I was going to lose it. I don't know whether I am or not. I don't even know that I shall want it. I believe, however, if the men of that district think I am right I will get it. Whenever my term as National Board member expires, whenever I sever my connection with the National Executive Board, the United Mine Workers of America has no office to give me. It is no pleasure for me to go out at night with my finger on a six-shooter, and get for my work four dollars a day. Men in this country who have been in the work longer than I know what the trials and tribulations of this business are. They know there are thugs and scalawags in this country who do not value a life worth a cent. Mr. Wardjon, Mr. Fairley and Mr. Evans can testify to that. Men in the region where I have been have been assaulted for doing the work of the organization. I want Brother Randell to relieve his mind of the fear that I want another position. Whenever I leave the position of board member he can have the office of organizer if he wants it.

Mr. Randell referred to the campaign. When Mr. Debs said that John Mitchell had sold the miners out; when the "Appeal to Reason" said he was actuated by selfish motives, and other motives not good, I determined that when men like that obtained control of a party you would not find me with them. Until the party is rid of such men I do not want to be in it. I am a Socialist at heart, but I am not going to join with a lot of Anarchists. The Socialists who spoke here yesterday are my friends and I honor them. They are true Socialists.

To go back to the campaign. The state mine inspector said to the miners at Dietz that the state legislature of Wyoming had too many sheep and cattle men in it for the miners. Wyoming is known as a stock-raising state. The miners had not been given representation. The few men from the mines who have gone into the legislature in the past have been mine superintendents or bosses. The Republican party said that a miner would be given a place on their ticket, and the Democrats said the same thing. I told Gilroy that was our chance to get a miner in the legislature, and advised him to take the Republican nomination. He wished me to take it. I said I was not a Republican and would not run on a ticket for a party I was not a member of. I said it would not be right for me to take the nomination; that all my affiliations were on the other side. Then Gilroy accepted the nomination. The Democratic convention offered me the nomination, but at first I refused it. In spite of that I was nominated by acclamation. Then they offered to pay my wages and expenses. I accepted the nomination, but said to the committee that was sent to me that they did not have money enough to buy me or influence enough to force me on the ticket. I said I would go, if at all, as a representative of labor. I said I had been honored by the miners and other union men of the city, that they had made me, to some extent, what I am; but whatever money it cost to go into the campaign would be furnished by myself. I wonder how many of Mr. Randell's stripe would have refused that offer? I accepted the nomination and spent my own money in the campaign, and to that extent I am a loser. I would have been a further loser if I had been elected. Gilroy is losing money, and he is doing it for the cause of labor. I wonder how many of Randell's stripe would have refused a bossing job at $125 a month when he was an officer of the United Mine Workers of America, and not a salaried one at that, yet that is what Gilroy did. I want you to believe I am honest, but whether or not you have faith in me, I will continue to have faith in myself.

Delegate White, District 13, in the chair.

President Mitchell—Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen: I was somewhat surprised this morning when Mr. Randell came on the platform and meekly informed the convention that if it had not been for my attack on him the other day he would have had nothing to say about my alleged infamy. If there was one thing more needed to prove the duplicity of the man it was that statement. If this man believes the statements he makes, then he would be false to himself and false to this union—to which he claims to be so loyal—if he did not bring them here. Now he comes and whines and says other members of the organization have made charges against me and I did not jump on them, so why should I jump on Randell? Let me say to Brother Randell and to this convention, it is true that other members of the United Mine Workers of America have made false statements about me, but if I ever caught them at it they had to face the music. Let them come here, and let me have their names before they come, and see how quickly I will call them on the floor! I have done this before in these conventions and the delegates who have been coming here for years know I have done it. They know I have made men get up here on this platform and face their statements.

There is an old saying that those who come from afar can lie with impunity. Mr. Randell should not have come here; he could more successfully have continued his lies in Wyoming.

Mr. Randell has again made the statement that I refused to give $300,000.00 to William Howells and the proof he gives is William Howells' own statement. But when he read Mr. Howells' statement, what did we find? Not a confirmation of what Mr. Randell had said. The record shows that Mr. Howells claims to have asked me for $300,000.00 and that I "gave him no satisfaction!" Not that I refused it, but that I "gave him no satisfaction!" If the president of the largest district in this organization —Illinois, Ohio or Pittsburg—came to me this morning and asked me for $300,000.00, I assure you that I would give him no satisfaction. I have not the giving, or loaning, or throwing away, or spending of $300,000.00, or 300,000 cents of the money of this organization.

There is one statement Mr. Randell makes that I want to clear up, because I know that others, men in better standing than Mr. Randell, are attempting to make capital out of it. He said yesterday, and has repeated it this morning, that I drove Mother Jones out of her position. Mother Jones and I worked hand in hand through some of the most stirring strikes this country has ever seen. For several years Mother Jones has been paid a salary by this organization. It is true that when Mother Jones went to Northern Colorado she disregarded the advice given her, and it is true that I said she should not do it again, and that if she expected to be employed by us she must carry out the orders of the National Board and the national convention. I will not allow any one to work for the organization, if I can help it, who does not carry out the policy of the National Executive Board and of the national convention. But Mother Jones was not discontinued; she was continued, and for nearly six months after the settlement in Northern Colorado, Mother Jones was in our employ and drawing a salary from the organization. Last April she was appointed national organizer by me, and her nomination and appointment was confirmed by the National Executive Board. It is almost a year prior to that time that Mr. Randell claims I drove her out of the organization.

Now, let us see how much Mr. Randell cared for the nineteen thousand poor persons, the people going around with gunnysacks on their feet! He says he was out soliciting. For whom? For the nineteen thousand men, women and children of Colorado who were on strike; the people for whom his heart throbs in sympathy? Was he soliciting for them? No. He says himself he was soliciting for the Western Federation of Miners. Why was he not soliciting for the United Mine Workers of America? If his heart was with the miners, would he not have been with us, not with other people? Of course, under normal conditions, it would be right to solicit aid for any one in need, but a man's first duty is to his own. How would it be if during your trouble I had gone over to the other organization and helped them, leaving you to take care of yourselves? I know how much Mr. Randell cares for the United Mine Workers of America! I know where his heart is! His heart is where the documents he has read here came from, and you do not need to tell us where you got them, Mr. Randell.

Mr. Randell has letters from organizations. Part of his information comes from organizations and from men who are unfriendly to our organization. He has letters from Mr. Sullivan of the State Federation of Colorado, an organization that refused to affiliate with the American Federation of Labor. Mr. Sullivan has been unfriendly to me because I said to the Colorado miners that they should not pay three cents a month to his organization and ask our National organization to send money to organize the men there. That is why he is unfriendly.

Mr. Randell read a letter from a man in Scofield, Utah. This man said I sent a man up there to try and buy their president to send them away. I did send a man there, as I did to other camps, to offer to pay the fares of the men and their families if they wanted to go where they could get work. He says in the letter that Mitchell promised to support them and keep them alive for five years. I never made such a promise, and I never heard of it until I heard it read from this man's letter.

Brother Randell says he scabbed in Northern Colorado, and that the union made him do it. No union ever made me scab. He tries to make it appear that this organization is not in sympathy with the western men, meaning, of course, that we are only in sympathy with the eastern men. He can ask the miners of Washington who are here, the miners of Montana, of Arkansas, Kansas, Indian Territory, or Missouri—he can ask the miners of any western state or the miners of Canada, if the United Mine Workers of America have ever evinced anything but the most loyal support and sympathy for them? Probably he means the men of Colorado and District 15. The miners of Northern Colorado never received such wages as they have received since they belonged to the United Mine Workers of America. The miners of Montana have the highest wage scale paid in the United States, and they got it through the United Mine Workers of America. Give our sympathy to Colorado? Yes, and we will give more than sympathy; we will give our money and our men. We gave sympathy during one year to the extent of $437,000. That is the kind of sympathy we are giving. We sent our best men there and they were assaulted and sent back to hospitals. What more could we do?

Now, gentlemen, I am not going to take up any more of your time, but I am going to say this: It is a pleasure and a gratification to me to hear the president of District 15, the man who feels the greatest degree of responsibility, the man who will be held accountable for what he says, tell you that he has faith in me. What he said is a stinging rebuke to you, Randell, when the president of District 15 said he did not believe a word you said. If the president of my home district said he would not believe a word I uttered, I would go home.

Now, gentlemen, if one of the charges this man makes is true, if there is a single one of those reflections upon me that can be sustained, I say that I am utterly unfit to represent you; I should be deposed and you should put in my place a man whom you believe to be trustworthy. On the other hand, if these statements are untrue, if they are not sustained, if you believe this man has made false statements concerning me, then I say I have a right to demand of you that you afford me protection. I cannot protect myself against the scandal-mongers all over America. They hide behind closed doors, they get in out-of-the way places and make charges against me; they seek to destroy my influence, my character, and my standing. I cannot reach them all. Unless I get them here or unless I can get into their locals, I cannot answer them; but I have a right to demand of you that you afford me some degree of protection. Either this man or I should not be a member of this union. One of us does not belong here, and I am willing to let you decide which one it is.

Delegate Walker, District 12—I think it is but fitting, after the discussion that has been had on this question, and the statements that have been made as to the source of these charges, that at least a representative of the political belief that has been mentioned should have the proper thing done at this time. I believe it is not only right that we should have an opportunity to do this work, in order to make it clear that we are good trade unionists, but it is also right that we do it to make clear the fact that the rank and file, the bone and sinew of that political belief are strong trade unionists; that the principles they stand for are in strict accord with everything that trade unionists are fighting for, and that they are loyal members of this organization.

I wish to introduce a resolution, and in doing so I desire to say there is no personal enmity in my heart toward either Mr. Randell or any of the opposition in the trade union ranks. His action is as much a disgrace to the Socialist movement as the actions of Delegate Dolan and some others are a disgrace and detrimental to the trade union movement.

Whereas, One Robert Randell, representing Local Union No. 2312, of Dietz, Wyoming, has publicly charged the national officers of the U. M. W. of A. with being untrue to the trades union movement, and further charged them with selling out the miners of Colorado, New Mexico and Utah during the late strike in District 15, and

Whereas, By a gross misrepresentation of the facts in connection with the above mentioned strike, together with a torrent of abuse and a tissue of false and lying statements, he has assailed the character, personality and integrity of President Mitchell and other national officers, not one word of which he has in any manner substantiated; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this convention hereby express our full confidence in the honesty and integrity of our national officials, and fully endorse their action in connection with the Colorado strike; and, be it further

Resolved, That the said delegate, Robert Randell, make a public retraction on the floor of this convention of his unwarranted attack on the officers of this organization, or stand suspended from this convention and expelled from the U. M. W. of A. until such time as he shall make such public retraction; and, be it further

Resolved, That the national secretary be instructed to notify Local Union No. 2312, located at Dietz, Wyoming, of this action.

I move the adoption of the resolution.

Delegate Wardjon—I rise to second the motion to adopt the resolution presented by Brother Walker. I have been asked by several delegates what my opinion was of the charges that have been made and the discussion we have heard here during the past two days. I was in Colorado from the commencement of the strike until I was beaten up. I was acquainted with everything that was done there. It is true that I was opposed at first to the settlement that was made in Northern Colorado when there was a condition attached to it. But when I found out that an unconditional settlement could be effected I agreed to it.

What has been said by the National Board members who were in Colorado during the strike, in regard to the district officers, is true. I myself went down and laid off nine men who had been engaged by President Howells to put up tents, and they expected to receive $2.50 a day for doing it.

I heard the address made by President Mitchell in Trinidad, and what he has said in reference to his reception there is true. Although a Socialist, I am a loyal trade unionist, and am one of the class who believe in building up, not tearing down. I believe in taking the good in everything, and in going on trying to improve our conditions. As one of the men who was connected with the Colorado strike I will say that nothing was done by the national officers that caused the strike to be lost; it was lost through the influence of the mine owners, the Citizens' Alliance and the machinery of the state. That is what lost it. It was also lost because of the tens of thousands of non-union men that were sent into the state. For these reasons I second the resolution.

The motion to adopt the resolution introduced by Delegate Walker was carried by an almost unanimous vote of the convention.

Mr. Randell was given an opportunity to retract the charges made against the national officers, but refused, and left the convention.

President Mitchell introduced Miss Lillie Fredericks, Vice-President of the National Garment Workers' Association. Miss Fredericks spoke for a short time, and thanked the miners' organization for what had been done for the members of her organization in the past.

Delegate W. D. Ryan, for the Committee on Resolutions, reported as follows:

RESOLUTION NO. 19.

Whereas, There are thousands of foreign-speaking men employed in the coal mines, who are not able to read and understand the English language, and for that reason are not familiar with the terms of our various wage agreements and the objects of the United Mine Workers of America.

Whereas, It is essential that all members of the organization should know what the wage contracts require, on the part of employer and employe, and for the better protection of both.

Whereas, The active and intelligent co-operation of the foreign-speaking mine workers is necessary for the permanent success of our organization.

Resolved, That the National Officers and National Executive Board be instructed to adopt such measures as will enable them to carry into effect the following:

1st—That a circular be sent to all local unions for the purpose of securing information as to the number of foreign-speaking men working in and around each mine and colliery in the country.

2nd—That the National organization have printed in the foreign-speaking languages a number of the inter-state agreements equal to fifty per cent. of the foreign-speaking mine workers employed in the territory covered by the terms of such inter-state wage contracts.

3rd—That in districts where district or local agreements exist, those agreements be printed in the foreign-speaking language so that a sufficient number may have a copy. The District organizations to pay half the expense of printing the district agreements.

4th—That all official circulars sent from the National office be printed in the foreign-speaking languages and copies mailed to all local unions having foreign-speaking members.

5th—That pamphlets and circulars be printed in the English and foreign-speaking languages and carefully distributed among the mine workers of every district.

6th—That in the event of strikes or lockouts in any district, that advertisements be inserted in foreign-speaking newspapers, of general circulation, explaining the cause of the trouble.

T. L. LEWIS,
L. U.'s No. 13, 858, 2592.

The committee concurred in the resolution, and recommended that it be referred to the National Executive Board to work out the details.

A motion was made and seconded that the report of the committee be concurred in.

Secretary Wilson—I move that the words "one-half" be stricken out, so that it will provide for the payment of the expenses by the district. (Seconded.)

The question was discussed by Vice-President Lewis, Secretary Wilson, Delegate W. D. Ryan, Delegate H. C. Perry and Delegate Craig.

The amendment offered by Secretary Wilson was voted on and lost.

The motion to concur in the report of the committee was carried.

RESOLUTION NO. 20.

Whereas, Contracts now existing between mine owners and the United Mine Wokers in all districts except No. 19 and No. 20 expire on March 31,

Resolved, That the Sixteenth Annual Convention instruct the members in such districts where contracts may be made during the year 1905, that such contracts shall not be made for a period extending beyond March 31, 1906.

The committee recommended that the resolution be concurred in.

Delegate Ryan—Does that mean that in case we can not get the operators to agree, we will have a strike?

Delegate Fairley—As chairman of the Committee on Resolutions and as a delegate from one of the districts that would be affected by the resolution, I object.

President Mitchell—If this resolution is made mandatory, it may involve us in a strike. For years we have been working towards concurrent contracts, and we have met with a great degree of success. I think to make this mandatory would be a mistake. I think we ought to recommend it, but not make it mandatory.

The resolution was discussed by Delegates Perry, Walker and Vice-President Lewis.

A motion was then made and carried that the report of the committee be concurred in.

RESOLUTION NO. 21.

Whereas, The Mine Workers do not affiliate with the Central Labor Unions as generally as is to be desired, and

Whereas, This action on the part of the Miners' Union does not tend to the solidarity of the labor movement, and

Whereas, Labor, in order to free itself from present injustices, must act in conjunction; therefore be it

Resolved, That all mine workers are hereby instructed to at once affiliate with the Central Labor Unions in their respective localities.

JAMES E. JONES, Local 699, Edwardsdale, Pa.

The Committee on Resolutions offered the following as a substitute for Resolution No. 21:

We would advise that all local unions in cities where there are central bodies affiliate with the same.

It was moved and seconded that the substitute offered by the committee be adopted. (Carried.)

RESOLUTION NO. 22.

Whereas, United efforts through our organization has brought increased wages, shorter hours of labor and protection to our membership; and believing that its influence and beneficial features may be further extended, its permanence more securely established, and, as a further incentive for mine workers everywhere to join our Union, be it

Resolved, By the Sixteenth Annual Convention of the United Mine Workers of America that we purchase, furnish and maintain a home for aged, infirm and injured members of our organization to which they can be admitted when circumstances and conditions require; and, be it further Resolved, That the National Executive Board be authorized and empowered to carry out the requirements of this resolution.

B. SEDLECKY, L. U. 2080.

The committee recommended that the resolution be not concurred in.

On motion, the recommendation of the committee was concurred in.

RESOLUTION NO. 23.

Whereas, In consequence of the disadvantage of having the different agreements of the United Mine Workers of America terminate as they do on different dates, particularly on April 1st, and

Whereas, We believe that it would be greatly to our advantage to have all our agreements terminate on October 1st; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the National Secretary shall send out circulars to all local unions of the United Mine Workers of America sixty days prior to the convention of 1906, asking that all locals send their delegates instructed on the question of the terminating of all future agreements on October 1st.

Respectfully submitted,

D. T. JACKSON,

L. U. 728, Mt. Olive, Ill.

Adopted by Local Union 728, District 12, U. M. W. of A., and referred to the National Convention.

The committee recommended that the resolution be not concurred in.

RESOLUTION NO. 24.

The committee reported that Resolution No. 24 was covered by a former resolution.

After some discussion a motion was made and carried that it be stricken from the minutes.

RESOLUTION NO. 25.

Whereas, The wage scale and conditions of labor in District 19, U. M. W. of A., are much below all other districts connected with our union, and

Whereas, The general policy of making agreements last year was on a basis of accepting a reduction of one-half of previous year's advance, and

Whereas, In a recent convention in District 19, held October 15, 1904, at Knoxville, Tenn., acting under instructions of the National Executive Board, a reduction of seven per cent. was accepted (which, in our opinion, ought not to have been greater than 3¾ per cent., or one-half of last year's advance), and

Whereas, Said acceptance of seven per cent. considerably increased the prior wide differential between ourselves and all other districts, and

Whereas, We are of the opinion that present agreement is a gross injustice to our people, because of our wages and conditions of labor being below all other union scales, and

Whereas, We believe that the acceptance of such a low wage scale is not only detrimental to us, but to all union miners, and especially to the miners in those districts that are near to and in close competition with ours; therefore, be it

Resolved, In the convention now assembled, that national assistance, both moral and financial, be pledged to District 19, U. M. W. of A., to reduce the differential between that district and other districts, even less than it was prior to the present agreement, by demanding in our next district annual convention an advance greater than will offset the reduction last accepted; and in no event to make an agreement that will leave a wider differential than existed prior to August 31, 1904.

Faithfully submitted, JOE VASEY.

The committee recommended that the resolution be referred to the National Executive Board.

A motion was made and seconded that the report of the committee be concurred in.

Vice-President Lewis—I move that we strike out of the preamble the words "general policy of making." (Seconded.)

Vice-President Lewis—I move to amend the resolution because I do not believe the authors intended to have it read that way. If it is referred to the National Board it practically states that the convention last year went on record as favoring making reductions of one-half the advance of previous years. I don't believe this convention or any other convention went on record as in favor of that. Simply because the central competitive coal field accepted such a reduction does not necessarily carry with it that the national organization favor such a plan.

Delegate Vasey—As the introducer of that resolution I move that we non-concur in the report of the committee.

The resolution was discussed by Delegates Vasey and Fairley.

Delegate Vasey moved that the convention adopt the resolution with the amendment offered by Vice-President Lewis.

The motion was seconded by Delegate Richardson.

President Mitchell—The motion is not in order. The question before the house is the report of the committee.

The resolution was further discussed by Delegate Fairley, Delegate Vasey and Secretary Wilson.

The amendment offered by Vice-President Lewis was then voted on and carried.

The motion to adopt the report of the committee was carried.

RESOLUTION NO. 26.

Whereas, It has come to our notice that the members of our organization are not in a position to be recognized by other members of the organization when away from home, because we have no grip or recognition sign, or other sign whereby we may make ourselves known to members of the Union, and

Whereas, in many of the States and districts our dues and assessments are checked off by the companies, and the members receive no receipts or anything to show that they are members when among strangers; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we adopt a grip, or sign of recognition, or such other signs as may be for the best interests of our organization; and, be it further

Resolved, That the president appoint a committee of five to draw up forms for such grip, sign of recognition, or other sign as will be for the best interest of our organization, and submit the same to the convention for its approval in executive session; the same to be printed in pamphlet form and a copy furnished to the president of each local union in good standing with the United Mine Workers of America.

The committee recommended that the resolution be non-concurred in.

Delegate Strawhun—I move that we non-concur in the recommendation of the committee. (Seconded.)

On motion of Delegate Walker the motion to non-concur was laid upon the table.

On motion, the recommendation of the committee was concurred in.

RESOLUTION NO. 27.

To the Officers and Delegates of the Annual Convention United Mine Workers of America:

Whereas, The Mine Workers' Journal is an educational medium to all those reading it; and to further expand the circulation as well as the education of the same, it is, therefore,

Resolved, That the present form of the Journal be continued and a five-cent per capita tax be levied on all members of our organization to maintain and publish two separate pages for each of the following languages, namely, Lithunian, Polish, Slavonian, Italian.

FIFTH DAY—AFTERNOON SESSION.

The convention was called to order at 2:00 p. m., Friday, January 20th, President Mitchell in the chair.

Delegate White, for the Committee on Resolutions, reported as follows:

RESOLUTION NO. 28.

To the Committee on Resolutions of the Sixteenth Annual Convention, Greeting:

We beg leave to submit the following resolution to the convention for consideration:

Whereas, The miners of our country have among them a large percentage of men of different nationalities who do not speak or read the English language, we feel that our organization would be benefitted if these members could be educated and enlightened; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, as a national organization, maintain a press of our own to do such printing in these various languages as our organization may require, the printing to be done under the supervision of the officers of the organization.

JAMES H. BRIGGS,
JAMES R. HADLEY,
EMERSON WOLFE.

The committee reported that the subject matter was covered by a former resolution.

On motion, the report of the committee was concurred in.

RESOLUTION NO. 29.

Whereas, The fact has been demonstrated beyond all possibility of a doubt in the past three years, that employers of labor in the United States have abandoned all hope of waging a successful warfare against the working people on a fair and equal basis, and therefore the employers of labor, backed up by almost the entire mass of capitalists, have resorted to the courts to wrest our wrights from us, and

Whereas, They have secured blanket injunctions by the score, have sued individual members of local unions, have obtained judgments for damages in cases of boycotts and strikes, and have used the militia to evict men and women from their own homes and deport them from the State in which they lived; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this convention do hereby recommend that the local unions of the United Mine Workers of America make an effort to have the individual members of the unions study the economic conditions, discuss in their local meetings the best possible way to proceed to "head off" the legal encroachments of the employing class against the inalienable rights of the working class, and to do everything possible for the enlightenment and intellectual advancement of all the members of our craft.

R. B. ELLIS, L. U. 1102, Derwent, Ohio.

The committee reported that the subject matter of the resolution was covered by a resolution already adopted by the convention.

On motion, the report of the committee was concurred in.

RESOLUTION NO. 30.

To the Officers and Delegates of the Sixteenth Annual Convention:

We, the undersigned, beg leave to submit the following preamble and resolution:

Whereas, Heretofore the wage agreements of some States have expired in the fall of the year, and

Whereas, All wage agreements now in force terminate on March 31, 1906, and

Whereas, In the interests of uniformity, Districts 13, 14, 21 and 25 should by right be a part of the interstate movement; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this Sixteenth Annual Convention go on record to the effect that Districts 13, 14, 21, 24 and 25 be and are hereby recognized as being part and parcel of what is now known as the central competitive field, comprising Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania; and be it further

Resolved, That our National President, Vice-President, Secretary-Treasurer and members of the National Executive Board use their every effort and influence with the operators of the central competitive field to secure the admission of the miners and the operators of the districts named into the joint convention and conference to be held in Indianapolis, Ind., January, 1906.

GEORGE RICHARDSON,
Representing District 14.
PETER HANRATY,
Representing District 21.
GEORGE COLVILLE,
Representing District 25.
JOHN T. WHITE,
Representing District 13.

The committee recommended that the resolution be concurred in.

On motion, the recommendation of the committee was concurred in.

RESOLUTION NO. 31.

Whereas, The United Mine Workers of Iowa and other States have been deprived of the privilege of having a seat and taking part of the Interstate Joint Conferences, and

Whereas, We believe that there has been an unjust and unfair condition imposed on us and other States that have been under the weight of this condition; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the following resolution be submitted to the locals of this organization:

Will we demand a seat and power to act for the miners and operators of Iowa and all other States that wish to take part in the Interstate Joint Conference to be held in 1906, and will this organization refuse to meet the operators of Indiana, Illinois, Pennsylvania and Ohio, unless they agree to accept said parties into a united joint conference with the four States mentioned?

SAMUEL BALLANTYNE, Delegate Local Union 869.
Boonsboro, Iowa.

The committee reported as follows: We non-concur in the measures advocated by the resolution to secure admission of Districts to the Joint Conference, and report that the rest of the resolution is covered by a resolution previously adopted.

Delegate McClosky moved that the report of the committee be not concurred in. (Seconded.)

The resolution was discussed by Delegates McClosky, Ballantyne, White, Watchorn, John Green, Richardson, Nugent, Vasey, Fairley, Blee, Hagerty, Bousfield, President Mitchell, Vice-President Lewis and Secretary Wilson.

The motion to non-concur in the report of the committee was voted on and lost.

A motion to concur in the report of the committee was carried.

Delegate Fairley—That ends the work of the Committee on Resolutions, with this exception: We are waiting to hear from the Committee on Officers' Reports and on Constitution. After they report, the Committee on Resolutions may have one more resolution to offer.

Delegate W. D. Ryan, for the Committee on Constitution, reported as follows: We have a large number of resolutions that have not yet been presented to the convention. I presume it will be satisfactory to the delegates if the committee will read the proposed amendments to the constitution, and if any delegate wishes to call up his particular resolution he may do so and it will be read.

The committee recommends no change to the Preamble or to Articles I or II.

We recommend that Section 1 of Article III be amended to read as follows:

"Any member in good standing in the organization shall be eligible to hold office in the National Union, provided he is not a salaried officer of a sub-district or district at the same time, and provided he has never been found guilty of misappropriating any funds of the organization intrusted to his care, and has been a member of the local union for one year prior to his election."

On motion, the recommendation of the committee was concurred in.

The committee recommended no further amendments to Article III.

The committee recommended that Section 1 of Article IV read as follows:

"Every local union shall pay direct to the National Secretary-Treasurer a per capita tax of twenty-five cents per month per member, and such additional assessments as may be levied by a National Convention or a referendum vote of the members of the United Mine Workers, or by the National Executive Board for two months pending a referendum vote. Payments to be based upon the amount of dues collected in each month by the local union. Boys under sixteen years of age shall be known as half members and shall pay one-half as much tax and assessment as full members."

It was moved and seconded that the amendment offered by the committee be adopted.

The amendment was discussed by Delegates McTaggart, Sweeny, Ryan, John Green, Walker, Blee, McPherson, Nugent and Secretary Wilson.

Delegate McPherson offered the following amendment:

I move to amend the section by inserting in the first line after the words "local union" the words "or sub-district." (Seconded.)

The matter was further discussed by Delegate Nugent, Secretary Wilson, Delegate Savage, Vice-President Lewis, Delegate Cutty, President Mitchell and Delegate Cantwell.

On motion of Delegate Bousfield, the amendment offered by Delegate McPherson was laid upon the table.

The matter was further discussed by Delegates Ham and Case.

On motion of Delegate Bowden debate was closed.

The amendment recommended by the committee was then voted on and adopted.

Delegate Ream—I was instructed to vote against such an amendment, and wish my vote so recorded.

The following delegates wished to be recorded as voting against the amendment: Delegate Henderson, District 14; J. W. Sweeney, L. U. 1817; Charles L. Barnett, L. U. 412, District 11; Harry Barber, Pittsburg, Kansas; John Graham, L. U. 1580; George R. McGregor, L. U. 177 and L. U. 2143; W. G. Rodgers, L. U. 845; John Gregg, L. U. 714; D. A. Duell, L. U. 139; J. K. Hagethorn, L. U. 206, Seymour, Iowa; C. Schwarting and K. Milburn, L. U. 8617; Arch. Nisbet, L. U. 1884, District 14; E. L. Crain, L. U. 1765, District 14; Adolph Pletincks, L. U. 1015, McDonald, Pa.; C. S. Smith, L. U. 432, Hargrove, Alabama; Robert Wheatley, L. U. 170, 455 and 1881; Grant Dutton, L. U. 1895; John Hill, L. U. 774; M. P. Taylor, L. U. 2165; L. Chandler; Rube Terns, Ben Anderson, Orbiston, Ohio; William H. Little, L. U. 1354; Archie Hamil, L. U. 1025; W. H. James, L. U.'s 43 and 247; Chas. G. Walton, L. U. 1414; W. E. Smith, L. U. 11; J. E. Cullen, L. U.'s 826 and 850; Louis Leonatta, L. U. 736.

To Section 2 of Article 4 the committee recommended no amendment, but recommended the following new section, to be known as Section 3:

"When a local union has failed to report to the National Office by the end of the month, for the previous month, the National Secretary shall send a notice to such local union that it has not reported for the previous month.

"Local unions placed on the delinquent list shall pay a fine of two dollars for each 100 members when reinstated."

Delegate Green moved to amend by inserting after "shall send a notice to," the words "the president and secretary of." (Seconded.)

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Ryan, Green, Dunning, and Rock.

The amendment was then voted on and carried.

The section as amended was then adopted.

To the sections formerly numbered 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7, Article IV, the committee offered no amendments.

The committee recommended that former Section 8, (new Section 9) be amended to read: "The local monthly dues to be paid by each member shall not be less than fifty cents per month, together with such assessments as may be levied by the different branches of the U. M. W. of A.

It was moved and seconded that the report of the committee be adopted.

The motion was discussed by Delegate Savage, Vice-President Lewis, Delegates Sweeney, Gates, Ryan, Pratt and Green.

Delegate Green moved as an amendment that the words "and assessments" be added after the word "due." (Seconded.)

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Nichols, Chris Evans, Green, Watchorn, Secretary Wilson, Delegate Perry (Iowa), Jenkins, Hancock, Ballantyne and President Mitchell.

On motion of Delegate Littlejohn debate was then closed.

The amendment offered by Delegate Green was voted on and lost by a vote of 336 to 276.

Delegate White, of Iowa, moved to amend the report of the committee by substituting the words "forty cents" instead of "fifty cents." (Seconded.)

On motion, duly seconded, the amendment was laid upon the table.

The motion to adopt the report of the committee was then voted on and carried.

The committee recommended no further amendments to Article IV.

The convention was then adjourned to meet at 9:00 a. m., Saturday, January 21st.

SIXTH DAY—MORNING SESSION.

The convention was called to order at 9:00 a. m., Saturday, January 21st, President Mitchell in the chair.

President Mitchell read the following telegram:

Mr. John Mitchell, Care Convention Hall, Indianapolis, Indiana:

The Retail Clerks' International Protective Association extends greetings to the delegates assembled and wishes you a successful convention.

Denver, Colorado, January 20, 1905.

(Signed.) MAX MORRIS.

Delegate W. D. Ryan, for the Committee on Constitution, reported as follows: When the convention adjourned last evening the committee was reporting on Section 4 of the Constitution. The committee recommends no further amendments to that Article.

Delegate Hester—I presented a resolution to the committee amending Section 9 of Article IV. I have not heard it read, nor has the committee recommended any such amendment to that section.

I move that the words "ten dollars" be stricken out of the first and second lines, and the words "twenty dollars" inserted in their place. (No second.)

The committee recommended that Section 1 of Article V be amended to read as follows:

"The National Convention shall be held annually on the third Tuesday in January at such place as may be determined upon by the preceding convention. Special conventions shall be called by the president, when so instructed by the Executive Board, or at the request of five districts."

On motion the report of the committee was concurred in.

To Sections 2 and 3 of Article V, the committee recommended no amendments.

The committee recommended that Section 4 of Article V be amended to read as follows:

"If it shall appear upon investigation that any local union has lapsed in order to evade the payment of tax or assessments, the National Executive Board shall insist upon the payment of all back taxes and assessments."

On motion the recommendation of the committee was concurred in.

To Sections 5 and 6 of Article V, the committee recommended no amendments.

The committee recommended that Section 7 of Article V be amended to read as follows:

"Any member of the United Mine Workers of America accepting a position other than that of a miner or mine worker, shall not be eligible to act as representative to any Sub-District, District or National Convention, or represent the United Mine Workers in a Central Body or State Federation of Labor Convention, while holding such position; but accepting a position with the United Mine Workers or any other affiliated organization shall not be construed as making a member ineligible to act as representative."

Delegate Ryan—The object of the proposed change is to protect members of our organization who may be employed by the American Federation of Labor or a State Federation of Labor.

On motion the recommendation of the committee was concurred in.

To Sections 8, 9 and 10 of Article V, the committee offered no amendments.

To Sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 of Article VI, the committee offered no amendments.

Delegate Sharp—It seems to me there is a conflict between Section 4 of Article VII and Section 9 of Article IV. I believe that one of these sections should be stricken out, and I believe Section 4 is the one.

I move to strike out Section 4 of Article VII, or at least that part of it referring to application for transfer card.

After some discussion the section was referred back to the committee.

To Sections 1, 2, 3, 5 and 6 of Article VII, the committee offered no amendments.

The committee recommended that Section 7 of Article VII read as follows:

"A transfer card must show that the member receiving it has paid all dues and assessments for the month in which it was issued and must also show at what class of labor he was employed."

It was moved and seconded that the report of the committee be concurred in.

Delegate Ryan—In many cases we have found that a member has had a transfer card in his possession dated the tenth, twelfth or fifteenth of the month; that he had paid his dues for the full month, but the local union receiving the card could only give him credit up to the day the card was dated. This section provides that the card must show that all dues and assessments are paid up to date.

The question was discussed by Delegates Boak, Green, Windsor, Powell, Preston, Britton, President Mitchell and Secretary Wilson.

In reply to a question, President Mitchell said: I don't think there will be any question about this if it is understood. I want this in the record. If a man takes a transfer card at any time during the month his dues must be paid up to the end of the month in which the transfer card is issued to him. His assessments, if not paid to the end of the month at the mine or local issuing the card to him, must then be paid at the next mine where he secures work. For instance, if a man takes a transfer card on the tenth of the month, he will pay his dues for the entire month. Where his assessment is checked off on a percentage basis, he will pay the assessment up to the tenth of the month to the local issuing the card, and if he secures work in another mine he will then pay his assessment at the mine accepting his card for the balance of that month.

The motion to concur in the report of the committee was then adopted.

The committee recommended that Section 8 read as follows:

"When a transfer card is issued to any member, it must be deposited by him with some local union or with the National Secretary-Treasurer, within three months after the last day of the month in which it was issued to him, else the card will become void and he can only become a member again by initiation as a new member."

On motion the recommendation of the committee was concurred in.

To Sections 9 and 10 of Article VII, the committee offered no amendment.

The committee recommended that the following sentence be added to Section 11 of Article VII:

"Local Unions on strike shall be exempt from the provisions of this section."

Delegate Ryan—We want it understood that this does not relieve the local unions on strike from the necessity of applying to the different officers for exoneration, as provided for in another article of the constitution, or of sending in their monthly statement the same as locals that are paying dues.

It was moved and seconded that the report of the committee be concurred in.

The motion was discussed by Delegates Britton, Ryan, Perry, Gibbs, Crain and Barton.

On motion of Delegate Green, debate was closed.

The motion to concur in the recommendation of the committee was adopted.

To Sections 12 and 13 of Article VII, the committee offered no amendments.

To Articles IX and X no amendments were offered by the committee.

To Sections 1, 2, and 3 of Article XI no amendments were offered by the committee.

The committee recommended that Section 4 of Article VI read as follows:

"Three tellers shall be elected as provided for in Article VI, no two of whom shall be from the same district; they shall meet at the national office not later than five days prior to the holding of the annual convention and count the returns as prescribed by the constitution.

"In the event of any two candidates for auditor or teller from the same district receiving a majority of the votes cast, the one receiving the lesser number of votes shall drop out, and the candidate receiving the next highest number of votes from some other district shall be declared elected."

On motion the report of the committee was concurred in.

To Section 5 of Article XI no amendment was offered by the committee.

The committee recommended that Section 6 of Article XI be amended to read as follows:

"No local union shall divide the funds of the union at any time among its members, and should any local union disband or cease to work for any cause, all moneys, supplies and other property belonging to the local union shall be turned over to the national organization. The above provision shall not be construed to prevent the use of the funds for legitimate purposes. Any local union using the funds entrusted to its care for any other than legitimate purposes shall be fined double the amount so used."

It was moved and seconded that the report of the committee be concurred in.

Delegate Bagwill moved to amend by providing that the fines be turned over to the Sub-District Secretary-Treasurer.

Delegate Moran moved to amend by adding after the words "local union" in the last sentence, the words "Sub-District, District or National organizations." (Seconded.)

Delegate Morgan—Would the amendment offered by the committee prevent locals donating to persons soliciting aid?

President Mitchell—Certainly not.

A motion was made and seconded that the amendment offered by Delegate Moran be laid upon the table. (Carried.)

Delegate Cantwell—I move that the words "Sub-District and District" be inserted in the last sentence after the words "Local Union." (Seconded.)

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Bousfield, Perry and Garvin.

A motion was made and seconded that the amendment offered by Delegate Cantwell be laid upon the table.

The motion was voted on but not carried.

On motion debate was closed.

The amendment offered by Delegate Cantwell was voted on and carried.

The amendment offered by the committee was discussed by Delegates Green, Erickson, Thomas, George, May and President Mitchell.

The section as amended by the committee and by Delegate Cantwell's motion was then adopted.

To Section 7 of Article XI the committee offered no amendment.

President Mitchell asked the convention if there was any objection to the report of the Committee on Constitution being deferred while the Committee on Transportation reported. President Mitchell stated it was important that the Committee on Transportation be allowed to report as early as possible. No objections being offered to deferring the report of the Committee on Constitution, Delegate Woods, for the Committee on Transportation reported as follows:

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 21st, 1905.

To the Officers and Members of the Sixteenth Annual Convention:

We, your Committee on Transportation, beg leave to report as follows: After examination of the accounts we recommend that the following amounts be allowed:

| No. | Name of Secretary. | No. Delegate. | Am't. |

| 18 | F. H. Sherman | 1 | 105.00 |

Vice President Lewis—Have the bills presented all been O. K.'d by the District Secretaries?

Delegate Woods—They have.

Vice President Lewis—I move that the report of the committee so far made be accepted, the bills allowed and the committee continued.

The motion was seconded and carried.

Delegate Ryan, for the Committee on Constitution, reported as follows:

To Articles XII and XIII the committee offered no amendments.

The committee recommended that Section 1 of Article XIV read as follows:

"Local unions shall be composed of miners, mine laborers and other workmen, skilled and unskilled, working in and about the mines, except those exempt by joint agreement, and persons engaged in the sale of intoxicating liquors, and shall be given such numbers as the National Secretary-Treasurer may assign them."

It was moved and seconded that the report of the committee be concurred in.

Delegate Boak—Do I understand that amendment to mean that if a man takes a position temporarily tending bar in the summer time, he cannot keep up his membership in the United Mine Workers of America?

Delegate Ryan—In that case his place is in the Bar Tenders' Union, not in the United Mine Workers.

Delegate Boak—Even if he joins the Bar Tenders' Association, does he not have a right to also keep up his dues in the miners' organization?

Delegate Ryan—I should say he has no right in the Mine Workers' organization then.

Vice President Lewis—I understand the committee to say they would exempt from the organization those men that may be exempted by the joint agreement.

Delegate Ryan—That is the report of the committee.

Vice President Lewis—Then I move to amend the report of the committee by striking out the words "those exempt by joint agreement." (Seconded.)

Vice President Lewis—We are confronted in the joint conventions by the operators with the argument that there are a certain number of men working around the mines they want jurisdiction over. I believe this particular clause should be eliminated, because we don't want to put a premium on the arguments the operators already use.

Delegate Ryan—The committee will accept any proposition coming from the floor of this convention that will cover the point raised. However, I want to call the attention of the convention to the inconsistency of keeping men in our organization and taking their money when they are exempt through joint agreements. We cannot do anything for those men in case they get into trouble with the company.

The amendment was discussed by Delegates James, Ryan and Burke.

The Committee on Constitution agreed to accept the amendment offered by Vice President Lewis.

Delegate Lackey—Do I understand, if this amendment is adopted, men who are exempted by the contract will be compelled to violate the agreement and join the organization?

President Mitchell—The chair does not so understand it. We simply do not exempt them in the constitution.

The amendment offered by Vice President Lewis was voted on and carried.

Delegate Boak—I move to amend the report of the committee by striking out the words "and persons engaged in the sale of intoxicating liquors." (Seconded.)

The motion was discussed by Delegates Savage, Burke, Hamill and Haskins.

Delegate H. C. Perry—If this amendment is adopted, will it exclude members of our organization who are members of co-operative saloon companies?

Delegate Ryan—We have, throughout the country in different places I know of, active members of our organization who are financially interested in co-operative mines. They are members of coal companies and are active members of our organization, but they spend their time either digging coal or doing some other work that is governed by our organization. I take it that a member of our organization has a right to invest his surplus earnings in business if he so desires, and still continue in his employment in the mine. The intention of this amendment is to exclude the man behind the bar, the man who is actively engaged in the sale of intoxicating liquors.

The matter was further discussed by Delegates Dolan, Perry, McClusky, Wardjohn, Sweeney and Ryan.

Delegate Sweeney asked if the amendment would exclude a saloon keeper that worked in the mines.

President Mitchell—It will exclude such a man. He will either have to quit the saloon or quit the local.

The motion to adopt the report of the committee as amended was then carried.

Delegate Gay—I would like to ask a question so we can all go back fully informed in regard to this amendment. If a man engages in the saloon business or as a bartender, does he lose his membership in the organization immediately upon taking up that business? If he leaves the business within three months will he be allowed to go back to the organization upon the payment of all back dues?

President Mitchell—The chair understands now that a man accepting a position as bartender or engaging in the saloon business, immediately severs his connection with the United Mine Workers.

To Sections 2, 3, 4 and 5 of Article XIV, the committee offered no amendments.

Delegate Powell—I would like to offer an amendment to Section 5 of Article XIV. I move to amend by adding after the words "all check-weighmen," the words "and docking bosses," as applied to the anthracite region. (Seconded.)

President Mitchell—This has reference exclusively to the anthracite field, where they have a class of check docking bosses. We do not have this class of men in the bituminous field. The companies have men to watch the coal and dock the men for impurities in it. Under the award of the Anthracite Strike Commission the miners can employ a man to work with him.

The question was discussed by Delegates Green, Nichols, Richardson and Hartlien.

Delegate Hagerty moved that the proposed amendment be referred to the anthracite distrilt conventions. (Seconded.)

The amendment was opposed by Delegate Nichols.

President Mitchell suggested that the section read: "All check-weighmen employed by the members of the United Mine Workers, and in the anthracite region all check docking bosses shall be members of the United Mine Workers of America."

The suggestion of President Mitchell was opposed by Delegate Richardson.

Delegate Dempsey announced that the anthracite delegates wished to withdraw the amendment.

Delegate Hartson moved to amend Section 4 of Article XIV to provide for but one election of local officers each year. (Seconded.)

On motion of Delegate McGrath the amendment offered by Delegate Hartson was laid upon the table.

To Article XV the committee offered no amendment.

Delegate Haskins moved the adoption of the report of the Committee on Constitution as a whole.

President Mitchell—At the time the committee began their report it was agreed that delegates having amendments not reported on by the committee might call for the reading of those resolutions. Does the convention desire to have the amendments offered by delegates read?

Vice-President Lewis—I move that we begin at Article I and go through the constitution and as each article and section is called delegates can offer amendments. The motion was seconded and carried.

Delegate Sherman—I offered an amendment to Article I Section 1. I should like to have it read by the committee.

The secretary of the committee read the following resolution:

Whereas, Our organization has extended its boundaries to such an extent that we are now of an international character, and

Whereas, We, the members of local unions located in Canada, believe that a change in or addition to the name of our organization will result in much good to our union and no injury to our American brothers; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this organization be known in future as "The International United Mine Workers."

FRANK H. SHERMAN,
On Behalf of Local Unions in the Dominion of Canada.

It was moved and seconded that the resolution be adopted.

The motion was discussed by Delegates Gibbs, Nolen, Secretary Wilson, Delegates Bousfield and Bowden.

Delegate Scrible moved that the amendment be laid upon the table. The motion was seconded and carried.

Delegate Boak asked that a resolution he had offered amending Section 1 of Article II be read. The secretary of the committee read the following:

Resolved, That the officers of this union shall be: One president, one vice-president, one secretary-treasurer and an executive board to be composed of twelve members. The president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer to be members of the board by reason of their official positions.

(Signed.) JOSEPH BOAK,
Local Union No. 347, District No. 12.

It was moved and seconded that the amendment be adopted.

On motion of Delegate McGrath, duly seconded, the resolution was laid upon the table.

Delegate Gunn asked that a proposed amendment to Section 7 of Article II be read. The secretary of the committee read the following proposed amendment:

"Resolved, That Section 7 of Article II be changed to read as follows:

"The National Executive Board shall be convened upon the order of the president or by the secretary-treasurer at the request of eleven members of the board, or a special convention may be called at the request of five districts.

(Signed.) JAMES GUNN,
Local Union No. 433, Clinton, Indiana.

President Mitchell—The law now is that a special convention may be called at the request of five districts.

The amendment was withdrawn by Delegate Gunn.

Delegate Blee asked that a proposed amendment to Section 1 of Article IV be read.

The secretary read the following:

Resolved, That Section 1 of Article IV be amended by adding the following: "And no increase in said tax shall be made unless by a referendum vote of all members in good standing."

(Signed.) HARRY BLEE.

On motion, duly seconded, the proposed amendment was laid upon the table.

Delegate Kuester asked that a proposed amendment to Section 9 of Article IV be read. The secretary of the committee read the following resolution:

Whereas, The miners of Leavenworth are, in a great many instances, troubled by men who are not practical miners coming into the mines, and

Whereas, Our by-laws only permit us to charge an initiation fee of ten dollars; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we have the initiation fee placed at $25.00.

(Signed.) CHARLES KUESTER,
Local Union No. 1858.

Delegate Perry, District 13, moved that the resolution be referred to the several districts.

It was moved and seconded that the entire matter be laid upon the table. (Carried.)

Delegate Evans asked that a proposed amendment to Section 2 of Article V be read.

The secretary of the committee read the following:

That Section 2 of Article V be amended by striking out all after the word "where," on line 11, and inserting the following words: "He is said to represent."

It was moved and seconded that the amendment be adopted.

The amendment was discussed by Delegates Richardson, Evans, Cantwell, Brackney, Quigley and Lackey.

Delegate Cantwell moved to amend the amendment by substituting the word "employed" for "resides."

Delegate Evans asked permission to explain the amendment and said: There is considerable discussion at the present time among some of our members, who say a man is entitled to represent any local in a district where he is organizing. The constitution as it now reads allows him to do so. The amendment means that a man who is a delegate to this convention will have to be a member of the local in the district he represents.

The amendment offered by Delegate Evans was voted on and adopted.

Delegate Stewart asked to have a proposed amendment to Article V read. The secretary of the committee read the following resolution:

Whereas, It appears that our District and National Treasuries are not, under the existing conditions, receiving the per capita tax and assessments from the full membership of our organization, and

Whereas, There is no uniformity in our due card system; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the due stamp, with the card, be made a national system, and that an article be placed in our national constitution covering the matter. LOCAL UNION 1526.

Delegate Ryan—There is no specific amendment to the constitution in this resolution.

On motion the proposed amendment was laid upon the table.

Delegate Ellis—I offered an amendment to Article VI regarding the initiative and referendum and imperative mandate. I would like to have it read. The secretary of the committee read the following:

Whereas, The organization of the United Mine Workers of America is made up of groups of individuals throughout the various parts of the United States, and

Whereas, The constant training through the following modes of education: speeches for the best interests of the union, learning parliamentary rules and going through our regular routine of business, has so improved the intellect of our members that the entire collective membership demands a more concise and equitable relationship which will tend to place the power of our organization more into the hands of the general body where it rightly belongs; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this convention do hereby declare for the initiative, referendum and imperative mandate, to be governed as follows:

Section 1. The supreme authority of the United Mine Workers of America shall be vested in its membership and shall be expressed through the referendum vote thereof.

Sec. 2. A majority of all members voting may, at any time, repeal or amend any or all laws adopted by the U. M. W. of A., and may enact any law placed before the membership thereof, through national, state or local unions, and may recall or dismiss any officer thereof, provided, such referendum vote has been legally submitted to the entire membership.

Sec. 3. Any law may be repealed, amended or enacted in the following manner: Twenty locals of two or more districts may introduce any measure to be repealed, amended or enacted to the referendum vote of the entire membership through the National Secretary-Treasurer thereof, who shall transmit copies thereof to all the various local unions of the U. M. W. of A., and shall publish the same in four successive issues of our official journal, together with all communications of interest from officers or members bearing thereon. Provided, said communications bear the seal of the local, state or national organization wherein their membership is held.

Sec. 4. Returns must be made and certified to by the presidents and secretaries of the various local unions, with seal affixed, and mailed to the National Secretary-Treasurer in time to reach the national office thereof not later than sixty days from date of the National Secretary-Treasurer's communication submitting the proposition to the referendum vote.

Sec. 5.—The National Secretary-Treasurer shall place these returns in the hands of the national tellers, who shall canvass the vote immediately and shall publish in the United Mine Workers' official journal, with the date on which the changes, if any, shall become effective, which shall in no case be later than ninety days after the date of the National Secretary-Treasurer's original communication submitting the proposition for referendum vote.

Sec. 6. Referendum votes shall be apportioned in proportion to per capita tax paid the national organization as required by the national constitution.

Sec. 7. All sections of the constitution conflicting with these provisions as herein provided is hereby repealed.

R. B. ELLIS, of Sub-District 6.

Dewent, Ohio, January 7th, 1905. Local Union No. 1102.

A motion was made and carried that the entire matter be laid upon the table.

Note: The name of James Hickey, Auburn, Illinois, Local Union 491, was omitted from the printed credentials list.

The convention was adjourned to meet at 2:00 p. m.

SIXTH DAY—AFTERNOON SESSION.

The convention was called to order at 2:00 p. m., Saturday, January 21st, President Mitchell in the chair.

President Mitchell—At the time of adjournment we were calling for constitutional amendments to Article VII.

Delegate Smith, Alabama—I wish to amend the latter part of Section 13 of Article VII, as follows:

I move to amend by inserting after the words "auditing committee," in the fifth line of the present section, the words "which every local union shall have."

The motion was seconded and carried.

Delegate Haggerty asked to have a proposed amendment to Section 4 of Article X read. The secretary of the committee read the following:

That Section 5 of Article X be amended by adding the following:

No one shall be eligible to hold office in the national organization who is not a citizen of the United States.

(Signed.) THOMAS BURKE,
THOMAS HAGGERTY.

Delegate Haggerty moved the adoption of the resolution.

On motion of Delegate Boak the amendment was laid upon the table.

Delegate Walton asked that a proposed amendment to Section 7 of Article XI be read.

The secretary of the committee read the following:

Resolved, That Section 7 of Article XI be revised to read: That all amendments to the constitution shall be submitted to the national secretary on or before October 15th prior to the convention, said amendments to be printed and sent to all local unions not later than December 1st of said year for consideration and vote thereon; the actual number of votes cast for and against said amendments to be submitted to the convention by delegates representing said locals. (Signed.)

JOHN HILL, President.
W. E. PRICE, Secretary.
T. G. WALTON, Delegate.
Local Union 1414, District 11.

It was moved by Delegate Walton that the amendment be adopted. (Seconded.)

A motion was made and carried that the amendment be laid upon the table.

Delegate Charleton—I move to amend Section 1 of Article XIV by inserting the words "boss drivers."

Delegate Richardson, of District 14, voted in opposition to the proposed amendment.

On motion of Delegate Bellingham the proposed amendment was laid upon the table.

Delegate Swanson asked to have a proposed amendment to Article XIV read.

The secretary of the committee read the following:

Whereas, The number of foreign-speaking workers are constantly on the increase in the mining industry, and

Whereas, Said workers cannot be made to understand the principles of trades unionism in the regular local meetings; therefore, be it

Resolved, That locals be given the right to hold special meetings for the purpose of educating the members on industrial and economic questions, the value of the trade union label and trade union principles in general; and, be it further

Resolved, That a section be inserted in Article XIV of the constitltion to this effect.

(Signed) ANDY SWANSON,
Local 384, District 13.

Delegate Hudson, Local Union 414, moved the adoption of the resolution. (Seconded.)

A motion was made and carried that the resolution be laid upon the table.

President Mitchell—Let me say to Delegate Swanson there is nothing in the present law that will prevent local unions from doing what he asks.

Delegate Shell, No. 749—I was instructed to move that instead of having the check-weighmen elected by the diggers, every member of the local should be allowed to vote for check-weighmen the same as for other things.

President Mitchell—The present law does not provide that the check-weighmen shall be elected by the diggers. It provides that he shall be elected by those who pay him. If the day men wish to pay him they can vote for him.

Delegate Powers, of District 8, offered the following:

Resolved, That the following section be added to the national constitution: That blacksmiths be allowed to form a local of their own in each district. (Signed.)

GEORGE SWABE, President.
A. R. POWER, Secretary.

On motion of Delegate Gibbs the proposed amendment was laid upon the table.

Delegate Bousfield—I wish to offer the following amendment to Section 1 of Article I: I move that after the words "United Mine Workers of America" we add the words "and Canada."

The amendment was seconded.

The question was discussed by Delegates Richardson, Bousfield, Perry, Vice President Lewis, Jones, Ryan, Watchorn, Cantwell, Dolan and President Mitchell.

As a substitute for the pending amendment, Delegate Ryan offered the following: Where the word "national" appears in the constitution that it be stricken out and the word "international' inserted in lieu thereof.

The substitute was seconded by Delegate Bousfield, and after some further discussion was carried.

Delegate Douthwaite asked if an amendment in regard to the United Mine Workers' Journal had not been offered to Article XV, and asked if discussion would be allowed on the question.

President Mitchell—The chair has no objection if the convention desires discussion on the question.

Delegate Richardson—Has the Committee on Officers' Reports anything to recommend in regard to the Journal. If they have not, I should like to discuss the matter now.

Delegate Colville—The Committee on Officers' Reports has made no recommendation concerning the United Mine Workers' Journal.

Delegate Richardson moved that a special committee to dictate the policy of the United Mine Workers' Journal be appointed. (Seconded.)

On motion of Delegate Bousfield the word "dictate" was stricken out and the word "outline" inserted in the motion.

Delegate Nichols moved that the whole matter be laid upon the table until after the Committee on Officers' Reports could be heard. (Seconded, but not carried.)

The motion to provide for a special committee to outline the policy of the Journal was carried.

President Mitchell—How shall this special committee be appointed.

The suggestion was made that the chair appoint the committee.

President Mitchell—As one of the members of the National Executive Board, I am partially responsible for the present policy of the Journal, and shall not appoint that committee.

A motion was made and seconded that the secretaries of the various districts act as the special committee.

It was moved as a substitute that the presidents of the various districts act on the special committee.

The question was discussed by Delegates Ryan, Dolan, Fahy, Richardson, Jones, True and Bousfield.

On motion of Delegate Hartlein debate was closed.

The substitute was voted on and carried.

Delegate Houston—I move that the National Executive Board meet with that special committee.

The motion was seconded and carried.

Delegate Memelo—I move that the resolutions read yesterday in regard to the Journal, and upon which action was deferred, be referred to this special committee.

A motion was made to table the motion to refer. The motion was seconded but not carried.

The motion to refer the resolutions to the special committee was carried.

Delegate Haskins in the chair.

Delegate Edwin Perry, for the Committee on Officers' Reports, read the following:

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 18, 1905.

To the Officers and Delegates of the Sixteenth Annual Convention, Greeting:

We, your Committee on Officers' Reports, after careful deliberation, beg leave to submit the following report for your consideration:

President Mitchell has prepared a very able and exhaustive report, covering in detail many vital questions affecting the future welfare and destiny of our craft, which must be perused to be fully appreciated, and, while your committee has no desire to burden this convention with any superfluous comments on this able and comprehensive document, we must in justice to our honored leader, say that he has endeavored to present in a conservative, concise and fearless manner many questions that demand our most serious and profound attention and deliberation.

We again urge upon the delegates to this convention, when they return to their respective homes, to see that the reports of our officers are read in their local unions in order that the subject matter contained theirin may be brought prominently before the rank and file of our organization.

In regard to the president's recommendations, we wish to say that his report shows our membership to be approximately the same as the previous year, after deducting the number of men now on strike in different sections of our country.

We would recommend that our constitutional committee formulate and present to this convention an amendment to our constitution that will adequately protect the national, district and subdistrict organizations against the appropriation of funds for any purpose other than that for which the same was specifically intended.

We also suggest that a more stringent law be enacted providing a penalty for any officer found guilty of withholding or misappropriating the revenues of our organization.

Your committee concurs in President Mitchell's recommendation in reference to the anthracite field, and we heartily approve of his outlined policy for the future. We also especially commend him for his intimated intention of making a personal appeal to the miners of the above named field to become allied with our organization in order to perpetuate and insure our future success.

We also heartily concur and approve of his policy in conducting the several strikes that have occurred in different sections of our country during the last year, and firmly believe that he has at all times been actuated by pure and unselfish motives, and a desire to promote and further the best interests of the organization.

And we deplore and deprecate the fact that designing and mercenarily inclined employers and corporate interests in many states have strained every point to wage a relentless war on organized labor for pecuniary gain and their own aggrandizement, thus involving the expenditure of large sums of our surplus funds, yet we are reasonably assured that our president and his subordinate officers have done all in their power to consistently reduce the expenditure of the organization's funds to the lowest possible minimum.

Your committee also concurs in the wise policy of President Mitchell in securing the services of eminent and able legal counsel to defend the organization in the courts of our land.

Your committee regrets to be compelled at this time to register its disapproval of the action of the Western Federation of Miners in refusing the overtures of the representatives of our organization, that were provided for by our previous National Convention, to endeavor to bring about a closer affiliation between these divergent interests of labor; hence we recommend that all reciprocal relations heretofore existing be withdrawn until such time as the said Western Federation of Miners are willing to accept the principles of mutual co-operation and become affiliated with the A. F. of L.

ENGINEER QUESTION.

Your committee is pleased to note that the controversy heretofore existing between Coal Hoisting Engineers and our organization has been satisfactorily adjusted on a basis that will insure peace and tranquility in the future. We concur in Brother Mitchell's recommendation that the organization use all honorable means to secure for the engineers wages and conditions of employment more compatible with the skill and services rendered.

MACHINE MINING.

Your committee also concurs in President Mitchell's recommendation on machine mining, and we urge upon our members in machine districts to remove, as far as possible, the existing inequalities between the machine and pick miner, and eventually establish a more perfect equilibrium between the machine and pick miner, so that neither will have an advantage that will work an injury to the other.

EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY ACT.

Your committee concurs in our president's report on this question. We also concur in his recommendation in reference to improved ventilation of mines and the employment of shot-firers at employers' expense in all mines where coal is blasted, thus minimizing possible danger to the lives of all underground labor.

All employes, other than the shot-firers, should be required to ascend to the surface before any shots are ignited.

And we especially recommend that district and local unions endeavor to carry into practical effect the above recommendation.

We also commend President Mitchell for his reaffirmation of his position on child labor, and the necessity of securing remedial legislation on this vital and humane question, and, wherever possible, to secure the enactment of laws raising the age limit of boys entering the mines, which will ultimately raise the standard of ideals and good citizenship, and we trust these higher ideals will descend to future and unborn generations.

UNION LABEL.

Your committee heartily concurs in all the president's recommendations with reference to this question, and urge upon our members to promote and encourage the sale of all union labeled products as far as practicable to do so.

VICE-PRESIDENT'S REPORT.

Your committee, after carefully examining this report, heartily congratulates our vice-president for his able, comprehensive and fearless exposition of the many and diversified topics contained in his report. We must also, in justice to our wise and painstaking vice-president, give him due credit for his valuable services rendered during the last year, referred to in his report, which shows him to have been actively engaged in the service of our organization. We also urge upon our local unions to read his report to the members and profit by his wise and timely advice and suggestions on matters of vital importance to our future welfare.

We concur in his recommendation in reference to our foreign speaking miners. His anticipations and forecasts of the future should receive our serious consideration, and every precaution taken to avert, if possible, any impending danger or crisis.

SECRETARY-TREASURER'S REPORT.

Your committee, after carefully considering the subject matter contained in this report, would respectfully say that your committee deems it inexpedient and unwise to indulge in reiterating what we have already said in reference to the reports of our president and vice-president, but in the way of emphasis we would say that our favorable comments on the other reports apply, with equal force to Secretary-Treasurer Wilson's report.

Your committee concurs in Secretary Wilson's recommendation on the advisability of increasing our per capita tax from the present basis of ten cents, to twenty-five cents, per month, on all members during the next fiscal year.

We make this recommendation after a carefull and serious investigation of the situation, and we believe this to be essentially necessary to adequately meet the anticipated demands and financial obligation of the future, and, in the judgment of your committee, the proposed increase will in all probability replenish our now depleted exchequer.

In conclusion, your committee recommends that this convention reaffirm its confidence in the integrity of our officers, and we extend to them our sincere thanks for their zeal and untiring efforts in behalf of our organization. (Signed.)

GEO. COLVILLE, Chairman.
EDWIN PERRY, Secretary.
JOHN FAHY.
JOHN NUGENT.
WM. TREAGER.
W. J. McPHERSON.
W. J. FORD.

SUPPLEMENTAL REPORT.

We, your committee, also concur in our officers' recommendation in regard to co-operative stores, and recommend that this convention pledge itself to lend all moral support and encouragement to establish, wherever possible, co-operative stores; and we urge upon all our members in the different sections of our country, to carry into effect the intent of President Mitchell's recommendation, as far as it is possible to do so.

Delegate Bousfield—I move you that the report of the committee be accepted, made part of the minutes and the committee discharged. (Seconded.)

Delegate Douthwaite—I agree with the report of the committee but wish to ask a question. The report affects me in that it recommends that we withdraw from relations with the Western Federations of Miners until such time as we can force them to federate with the American Federation of Labor. Heretofore the cards of the two organizations have been exchanged. Will this report, if adopted, cut that off?

President Mitchell—If our western districts have been accepting cards from the Western Federation of Miners it has been done contrary to our law. Our law now forbids such an exchange of cards. At one time our National Executive Board undertook to arrange for the exchange of cards. The result was that our cards were accepted subject to local restrictions, which meant that in many cases they were rejected.

The motion to accept the report of the committee was carried.

Delegate Dodge—I move you that we elect two delegates to the next International Mining Congress.

The motion was seconded and carried.

It was moved and seconded that the convention proceed to elect two delegates to the International Mining Congress.

Delegate Schwarting asked that the vote be by roll call. A sufficient number of delegates did not support the demand, and it was decided to elect by standing vote.

For the first delegate to be elected the following nominations were made: W. H. Haskins, John T. White, H. C. Perry, T. D. Nichols, George Richardson, John Nugent, James Cantwell, W. D. Ryan, E. S. McCullough, G. W. Lackey, John Fahy, John Mitchell, Patrick Gildea, Stephen Corven, John H. Walker, W. B. Wilson, Patrick Dolan, Peter Hanraty, C. W. Wells, T. L. Lewis, Thomas Haggerty, Paul Pulaski, J. F. Bowden, Harry Bousfield, F. S. Brackney, John Boyle, John Green, William Wardjohn, George Colville, William Morgan, W. I. Fairley, George Manuel, Lee Jackson, Clark Johnson, John Fallon, William Little, George Hartlein.

All the delegates nominated withdrew their names except Delegates Haskins, White, Perry, McCullough, Bowden, Green and Boyle.

The vote was as follows: W. H. Haskins, 499; John T. White, 23; H. C. Perry, 36; E. S. McCullough, 23; Bowden, none; Green, 1; Boyle, 31.

W. H. Haskins was declared elected.

The following nominations were made for the second delegate: H. C. Perry, E. S. McCullough, John T. White, John Boyle, Miles Daugherty, George Purcell, John Fallon, William Little, John Green, William Houston, James Watchorn, Phil Walters, Paul Flynn, Robert Fife, Chris Evans, Robert Gilmour, William Dodds, William Worker, Thomas Richards, Patrick Dolan.

All the delegates nominated withdrew except Delegates Perry, McCullough, Boyle and Green.

The voting resulted as follows: Perry, 493; McCullough, 30; Boyle, 91; Green, 7.

Delegate Perry was declared elected.

It was moved that the elections of Delegates Haskins and Perry be made unanimous.

The motion was seconded and carried.

Delegate Gibbs moved that the convention extend its sympathy to the widows and orphans of the victims of an explosion in a mine at Decatur, Illinois.

The motion was seconded and carried.

It was moved and seconded that in the event neither the president nor the secretary of a district was in the convention, the delegation from that district elect some one to represent them on the special committee to outline the policy of the Journal.

The motion was seconded and carried.

The convention was then adjourned to meet at 9:00 o'clock a. m., Monday, January 23rd.

SEVENTH DAY—MORNING SESSION.

The convention was called to order at 9 o'clock a. m., Monday, January 23d, President Mitchell in the chair.

Delegate Ryan, for the Committee on Constitution, reported as follows:

During the report of the committee last week it was found that Section 9 of Article IV and Section 4 of Article VII conflicted. The sections were referred back to the committee, with instructions to bring in a further report.

The committee recommends that the following paragraph be stricken from Section 9 of Article IV:

"Any person applying for work in any organized mine shall present a United Mine Workers' card. In case said person cannot present such a union card, he shall pay the regular initiation fee."

The committee further recommends that the following amendment be made to Section 4 of Article VII:

Insert after the word "card" in line 6: "Provided he has not already done so; and in case such person cannot produce such transfer card he shall pay the regular initiation fee."

The report of the committee was discussed by Delegates Green, Gay, Nolan, Ryan, Burke and Dutton.

In order to cover the objections made by some of the delegates to the section as amended the committee suggested the following addition to their report on Section 4 of Article VII:

"Such member shall either present his transfer card or pay initiation fee within ten days after he has secured work."

President Mitchell—That will become a part of the report of the Committee on Constitution. It will become a part of the amendment proposed by the committee.

Delegate Burke moved to amend Section 9 of Article IV to read as follows:

"The initiation fee shall be ten dollars for practical miners, and for non-practical men it shall be left to the discretion of the district where applications for membership are made. Any member leaving one locality and securing employment in another, who has not a transfer card, must agree that the initiation fee be retained until transfer card has been produced, before he is permitted to work."

I offer this in lieu of the amendment of the committee.

On motion of Delegate Richards the amendment offered by Delegate Burke was laid upon the table.

Delegate Burke—I move that the words "ten days" be stricken from the amendment offered by the committee.

On motion, the amendment offered by Delegate Burke was laid upon the table.

On motion, the report of the committee was adopted.

Delegate Ryan—That, Mr. President, concludes the report of the Committee on Constitution.

I move you that the constitution be adopted as a whole as amended.

Delegate Dolan asked permission to speak, and asked that the action by which Section 1 of Article XIV was amended be reconsidered and the amendment providing that saloonkeepers and bartenders could not retain membership in the organization be stricken out.

Reconsideration of the motion was opposed by Delegates Haskins, Fenny, Little. Delegates Carne and Sweeney spoke in favor of reconsidering.

On motion of Delegate Gibbs debate was closed.

The motion to adopt the constitution as a whole as amended was then voted on and carried.

Delegate Powell—Mr. President, I should like to get some information. Can the locals of the United Mine Workers accept transfer cards from the Western Federation of Miners?

President Mitchell—They are to refuse such cards. This convention has adopted the report of a committee which provides that the United Mine Workers of America shall discontinue any reciprocal relations with the Western Federation of Miners until they become affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Delegate White, for the Committee on Resolutions, reported as follows:

A large number of resolutions in regard to the establishment of co-operative stores have been presented to the Committee on Resolutions. The committee decided that the resolutions were not properly drawn, and agreed to submit a substitute for the many presented. I should like to know if it is the desire of the convention to have all of these resolutions read. If it is not, we desire to present the following substitute:

RESOLUTION NO. 32.

Whereas, Experience has demonstrated that co-operative mercantile stores among our workingmen are a success financially, and the number in successful operation is rapidly increasing in many of our states, and

Whereas, The co-operative store is a necessity of advanced civilization and a potent factor in the ultimate solution of the labor problem; therefore be it

Resolved, That this Sixteenth Annual Convention recommend that our members organize co-operative associations wherever possible, and, if practicable, to do so on the Roachdale plan, and independent of the United Mine Workers' organization, and, be it further

Resolved, That the delegates to this convention also endorse and pledge their moral support to all societies organized on the co-operative plan, and urge our members to patronize such societies in their respective localities; also to lend their personal influence to perpetuate the principles of co-operation and insure its success and permanency.

Respectfully submitted,

COMMITTEE ON RESOLUTIONS.

On motion of Delegate White the report of the committee was adopted.

RESOLUTION NO. 33.

Whereas, We believe the success of the labor movement depends upon the co-operation of the different labor organizations, and

Whereas, We believe there is a concerted and deep-laid plan among organized capital to defeat the efforts of laboring men and women to secure their rights and better their conditions, and

Whereas, We believe it is the duty of all mine laborers to buy union-made goods; therefore be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of this convention that all members of the United Mine Workers of America shall be compelled to buy nothing but union-made goods, and to carry out this resolution each local union shall appoint a committee of not less than three members, to be known as the Union Label Committee, whose duty it shall be to report to the local all known violations of this resolution, said violations to be punished as the locals may direct.

Foster, Iowa. F. H. ROPER.

The committee made the following recommendation:

The Committee on Resolutions non-concurs, as the question of the union label is covered by the adoption of the recommendations of the Committee on Officers' Reports.

On motion, the recommendation of the committee was concurred in.

It was moved that the report of the Committee on Resolutions be received and the committee discharged with the thanks of the convention.

The motion was seconded and carried.

Delegate Dolan, for the Committee on Appeals and Grievances, reported that no appeals or grievances had been brought before the committee.

It was moved and seconded that the committee be discharged with the thanks of the convention.

President Mitchell—The chair understands that all resolutions, whether they were acted on by the Committee on Constitution or not, will appear in the minutes of the convention.

Secretary Wilson, for the Special Committee on Legislation, reported as follows:

We, your Special Committee on Legislation, appointed in accordance with President Mitchell's report, beg leave to report as follows:

The large number of serious injuries and fatalities which have occurred in the mines of our country has demonstrated that the mining of coal is one of the most dangerous avocations in modern industrial life. In no other calling does the life, limb and health of one man so much depend upon the knowledge, intelligence and skill of his co-employe as it does in the mining of coal. Many explosions have occurred by which hundreds of men have been killed and numerous women and children left penniless and unprovided for because some man in their midst did not understand the nature of gases. Thousands of men have lost their lives and left their families dependent upon the charity of their neighbors because they did not understand the sound properties of coal and rock and could not detect the dangers surrounding them. Many men have been drowned or entombed by the rush of waters because those in charge of the work or some of their associates had no knowledge of hydraulic power. Innumerable persons have been burned and torn beyond recognition because they or some one employed with them knew nothing of the nature or power of explosives and the poisonous gases produced by them. Large bodies of men have been suffocated and their health permanently injured because some man ignorant of the methods of ventilation, has unwittingly diverted the air currents from their proper course. Men engaged in the mining of coal have no voice in the selection of their working associates. The privilege of employing men to work in the mines is held exclusively by the operator and yet our courts have invariably ruled that the contributory negligence of a co-employe is a bar to the collection of damages by the person injured or the heirs of the person killed. In view of these facts we are of the opinion that no man should be permitted to work in the mines in charge of a working place who has not passed an examination demonstrating his knowledge of these things and his ability to protect his own life and that of his coworkers.

We would, therefore recommend, First—That the National Executive Board be instructed to employ a competent attorney to draft a suitable bill for presentation to the federal and state legisuatures along these lines.

Second—That when said bill has been drafted it shall be forwarded to the various districts for such amendment as may be necessary to conform to the different state constitutions.

Third—That the National Executive Board and the various district organizations be instructed to co-operate with each other in an effort to secure the introduction to and passage by the federal and state legislatures of this measure.

Respectfully submitted,

U. BELLINGHAM,
THOS. J. RICHARDS,
RICHARD ROWLAND,
LEE L. JACKSON,
PETER McCALL,
JOHN F. REAM,
T. L. LEWIS,
W. B. WILSON,
JAMES CANTWELL,
J. INDEROCKIE
W. E. HICKS.

It was moved by Delegate Sullivan, of Ohio, that the report of the committee be concurred in.

The motion was seconded and carried by the unanimous vote of the convention.

Secretary Wilson, for the special committee, to outline a policy for the Journal, reported as follows:

We, your Special Committee on Journal, beg leave to submit the following resolution:

Resolved, That the whole subject matter pertaining to the Journal be referred to the National Executive Board with instructions to ascertain if a sufficient number of subscribers can be obtained for the Journal in any language to make it pay, and, if so, to publish the Journal in said language.

Respectfully submitted on behalf of the committee,

JOHN MITCHELL, President.
W. B. WILSON, Secretary.

It was moved and seconded that the report be adopted as read.

Delegate Pulaski—What does the report mean by "a sufficient number of subscribers?"

President Mitchell—After ascertaining how much it would cost to print a United Mine Workers' Journal in any foreign language, it would then be ascertained if a sufficient number of subscribers in that language would take the Journal. In other words, if a foreign-speaking people want a paper bad enough to pay for it, we are willing to print it for them.

Delegate Pulaski—Will the Journal be continued as a weekly paper?

President Mitchell—The Journal that is printed in the English language will.

Delegate Flynn—How will the board find out how many members will subscribe for a paper printed in any foreign language?

President Mitchell—The chair cannot speak for the National Executive Board; the members of that board will decide the matter; but I presume the secretary of the board will correspond with all the local unions and learn how many men in each are willing to subscribe for a Journal printed in any particular language. It is presumed also that the organizers will make investigation.

Delegate Flynn—I can give the convention assurance of fifteen hundred subscribers myself.

President Mitchell—If you can get that many subscribers in one district, I am sure we ought to get enough in other districts to make it pay.

Delegate Brock—In what foreign language will the Journal be printed?

President Mitchell—It will be printed in any language in which a sufficient number of subscribers can be secured to make it pay. If a sufficient number of Italian speaking people will subscribe for the Journal we will print it in their language. The same will be done for the Polish and Lithuanian people.

Delegate—If the Executive Board finds it will not pay to print in the different languages, will the Journal remain as it is?

President Mitchell—Unless the National Executive Board orders it changed.

The report was further discussed by Delegate Watchorn, Delegate Hamill and Delegate Matti.

On motion of Delegate Green, District 12, debate was closed.

The motion to adopt the report of the committee was then voted on and carried.

Delegate Richardson, District 14—On Saturday we elected two delegates to the International Mining Congress, but no provision was made for alternates.

I move that the delegates receiving next to the highest number of votes be declared the alternates.

Delegate Lester—I think the second highest on the first ballot should be the alternate for the delegate elected on that ballot, and the second highest on the second ballot should be the alternate on the delegate elected by that ballot.

Delegate Richardson—That is the intent of my motion; it could not be any other way.

President Mitchell—The chair understands that in case Delegate Haskins is not able to attend the conference, the delegate receiving the next highest number of votes on his ballot will be his alternate, and the same would be true in President Perry's case.

Delegate Richardson—That was my intention in making the motion.

The motion was then voted on and carried.

Vice-President Lewis—Is it understood that the delegates to the International Congress shall have their per diem and expenses paid?

President Mitchell—The chair understands, unless the convention orders otherwise, that the wages and expenses of the delegates will be paid.

It was moved and seconded that the convention allow the wages and expenses of the delegates to the International Mining Congress. (Carried.)

The Committee on Transportation made a final report, which was accepted by the convention.

On motion, the committee was discharged with the thanks of the convention.

Delegate Sherman—You have heard the question of a workman's compensation act mentioned in this convention by one of the speakers. It may be of interest to know that we have a workman's compensation act in force in British Columbia. Since the first day of December last we have secured for widows and orphans of men killed in the mines $12,000.00, and for men injured we have received $527.00. I intend, on my return to my district, to send to the Journal for publication information as to how this act is carried out. I hope when you see that act you will commence agitation on this side of the line, and keep it up until you have something similar to protect your members. Since that act has been in force our employers have spent more money to make the mines safe for the workers than they ever before thought of spending.

President Mitchell was asked by a delegate in the convention if the amendment to the constitution which excluded bartenders and saloonkeepers from the organization would exclude members of a club who took turns in tending bar for the members of the club.

President Mitchell—Under the present constitution it is the duty of the president of the national union to interpret what is meant by your constitution. The president intends to interpret the law in a fair manner, and he is not going to make the law ridiculous by excluding from the organization members of co-operative clubs. In case, however, one of the members of that club is appointed to act as bartender he would have to withdraw his membership from the union.

Delegate Dolan, of District No. 5, obtained permission to speak further on the amendment to Section 1 of Article XIV, which excluded bartenders and saloonkeepers from the organization. He asked that an investigation be made of conditions in District 5, and of people who would be affected by the amendment. He also asked that that part of the constitution be suspended until an investigation could be made.

President Mitchell—On the first day of April the constitution will go into effect. It will go into effect whether the chair wants it or not. The president of the organization cannot suspend the constitution, neither can the Executive Board.

Delegate Dolan moved that the action by which the constitution as a whole was adopted be reconsidered.

Vice-President Lewis spoke in opposition to the motion to reconsider.

Delegate Fahy spoke in favor of the motion.

A motion was then made and carried that the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table.

Vice-President Lewis—A question was raised by Delegate Sherman that is of great importance to this convention. I move that the members of the Executive Board be authorized to investigate the possibility of securing more rigid employers' liability laws in the mining states, and devise some plan to get legislation to put in force workers' compensation acts.

The motion was seconded and carried.

Delegate Jackson—I move that the secretary be instructed to publish in the United Mine Workers' Journal a complete sketch of the Roachdale co-operative system mentioned in the resolution brought in by the Committee on Resolutions.

The motion was seconded and carried.

On motion the rules were suspended, and at 11 o'clock a. m. the convention was adjourned to meet at 1:30 p. m.

SEVENTH DAY—AFTERNOON SESSION.

The convention was called to order at 1:30 p. m., Monday, January 23d, President Mitchell in the chair.

President Mitchell—The tellers are ready to report. You will have to decide whether or not the candidates receiving the highest number of votes shall be elected, or whether you shall proceed under the constitution with an election if it is found that any candidate has not received a majority of all the votes cast.

Delegate Bellingham—I move that the candidates receiving the highest number of votes cast shall be elected. The motion was seconded and carried.

Delegate Young, from the Committee of Tellers, made the following report:

To the Sixteenth Annual Convention.

We, your Committee of Tellers, beg leave to report as follows: Total number of return sheets canvassed, 1515. Number unmarked and unable to identify, 63. Received too late for this report, 2. Total number of uncounted return sheets and packages, 65. The committee desire to call the attention of this convention to the disfranchisement of sixty-five locals through the negligence or carelessness of local mine committees in failing to properly canvass and mark the return sheets for which they have been provided and ask that some remedy be suggested for the conduct of future elections that will insure to every member an opportunity to have his vote recorded for the candidate of his choice. Following is the vote in detail.

(Signed.) MAT. CHARLTON,
JAMES PRITCHARD,
WILLIAM E. YOUNG,
Tellers.

The detailed vote will be printed in bound volumes of proceedings with the tally sheets. The following is a list of the officers elected:

President—John Mitchell.

Vice-President Lewis—I move that the convention tender a vote of thanks to Mayor Holtzman and the Central Labor Body of Indianapolis for courtesies extended to the delegates.

The motion was seconded and carried.

W. D. Ryan—I move you that the next convention of the United Mine Workers of America be held in the city of Indianapolis.

The motion was seconded and carried.

President Mitchell read the following communication:

"Quincy, Mass., January 21, 1905.

"Mr. John Mitchell, President, United Mine Workers of America, Indianapolis, Ind.

"Dear Sir and Brother—The representatives of the United Mine Workers of America, being in session in annual convention, we, the representatives of the Granite Cutters' National Union, take this opportunity of conveying fraternal greetings to our sister organization. Appreciative of the fact that you have questions of great importance to meet at this convention, we have some conception of the value of same from the fact that our trade at the present time is merging into the machinery epoch and is causing granite cutters to think of things along that line which but a few years ago were believed impossible. We intend to meet the situation by determinedly demanding control of each machine as it is put in use in our trade, and by doing so calculate to conserve to the men of our craft control of granite dressing in all its forms.

We know the coal miners in convention or out of it will look equally to their interests along this and other lines, and therefore wish your organization godspeed in the work it has so heroically undertaken in the past and which we hope will be surpassed in the near future by the full introduction of a maximum eight-hour working day in the coal mining industry from the Atlantic to the Pacific. No one thing has benefited the trade I have the honor to represent more than the final introduction of the eight-hour day in the springtime of 1900, and there is not one virtue we claimed for its introduction that has not so far materialized even to the extent of eliminating all opposition to same on the part of our employers, for not one of them since the first season of the maximum eight-hour work-day has even suggested the advisability of returning to the nine or ten-hour system.

"Again wishing you, your organization and convention unlimited success, I am,

"Fraternally,

"JAMES DUNCAN, National Secretary."

President Mitchell—I want to ask the indulgence of the convention for a few moments to speak upon a subject that is going to receive more attention when you go home than most of the matters that have been considered here. I refer to the question of co-operative stores. I have had no experience in co-operative societies; I have never been a member of one; but from what I have seen in the old countries I desire to say it will be well to get into your local co-operative societies the men in your towns who are settled there. Get the men who have lived there and who intend to live there into the society, of course not rejecting the others. Whoever you select as your treasurer should furnish a sufficient bond. This is simply what is done by every other business institution. It is no reflection upon a man that he be required to give a bond for the faithful performance of his duty.

I have known of a great many co-operative societies in America that failed. They often fail because of our transient population. They sometimes and frequently fail because we take a man out of a mine and make a business manager of him. Some coal diggers may make good business managers, but my experience has led me to believe that the best business manager you can get is a storekeeper. Coal diggers know all about mines, and can run mines, but they know very little about running stores.

Wherever these co-operative stores are started I wish you would keep our office advised of what success they are meeting with, when they are started and how they are getting on, because a year from now I want to make a complete report of the movement. In England and on the continent some of these societies are going to fail because of the clamor for dividends. Some of the societies are subordinating every other interest to that of getting dividends. They are not satisfied with ten and twelve per cent., but are trying, by the introduction of inferior goods, to raise the dividends to twenty per cent. It is better to be satisfied with seven and eight per cent. than to have your stores fail at the end of the year.

I want to remind you of the importance that will attach to our convention one year hence. I have no doubt that one year from now we will have the largest convention we have ever held. I want you to see that your local unions are kept in good standing all the time. Remember that the membership of this union is known outside, and that if one year hence we are able to report a paid-up membership of 400,000 our chances of making a satisfactory agreement will be ten times greater than if we report a membership of 250,000. If there are any local unions represented here that are not paying on absolutely their full membership, I want them to remember that every cent that is held back detracts from the possibility of procuring advanced wages one year from now. I don't say that any of you are doing this, but if there is anything of the kind, do what you can to stop it.

Now, gentlemen, I want to extend to all of you my personal thanks for the good order you have kept and for the assistance you have given the chair. Aside from a few disagreeable features this has been one of the best conventions we have ever held. I am proud to know the coal miners can conduct themselves so well in a convention and observe so well parliamentary procedure.

Delegate Ford asked permission to speak and called attention to the fact that the strike was still in progress in the Meyersdale region of Pennsylvania. He asked the delegates to inform all union miners in their district not to go to the Meyersdale region while the strike was in progress. After singing "America," the convention was declared by the President adjourned sine die.

RESOLUTIONS NOT REPORTED ON BY THE COMMITTEE.

The following are the resolutions referred to the Committee on Constitution, but not reported on by the committee:

Resolved, That the delegate to the annual convention of the United Mine Workers of America from Roslyn Local No. 2510 be instructed to introduce and work for the enactment of the following resolutions:

First—That the districts of Montana, Washington and British Columbia be united in one district.

Second—That no national district, sub-district or local union officer shall hold office longer than two years, or two terms.

Resolved, That Section 2 of Article II be amended by striking out the following words, "and in like manner may suspend or remove any national officer for insubordination or just and sufficient cause," and in same section strike out the words, "decide all questions of dispute concerning the meaning of the constitution."

Also Section 2 of Article III by striking out the entire section and inserting the following:

The salaries of President, Vice-President, Secretary-Treasurer, members of the Executive Board, editor of the official organ, and all national organizers shall be five dollars per day when actually employed by the United Mine Workers of America."

Also that Section 9 of Article IV be amended by striking out the word "ten" and inserting the word "five."

Also that the following be inserted in the national constitution to govern the organization: "The initiative and referendum shall govern all legislation. All motions and amendments to the constitution considered at the annual convention shall be submitted to a general vote of the membership of the U. M. W. of A., who shall vote within sixty days after adjournment of convention. The Secretary-Treasurer shall, after the vote has been counted, prepare a tabulated report of the result of the vote and submit printed copies of the same to all locals.

"Any contract or agreement drawn up between a local, sub-district or district union and their employers shall not be considered valid or binding until same has been consented to by secret ballot of the members of local, sub-district or district affected, and has been approved by the National Executive Board."

After that, Section 1 of Article X be amended by striking out all after the twelfth line and inserting the following:

"They may recommend the inauguration of a strike, but no strike shall be legalized unless ordered by three-fourths of the resident members in good standing have voted for it. This shall be decided by secret ballot at a special meeting called for the purpose after it has been approved by the National Executive Board of the U. M. W. of A., as hereinafter provided."

Also that Section 4 of Article X be amended by striking out the word "order" in line 4 and inserting the word "recommend."

Also that a verbatim report of the proceedings of the convention be taken and subsequently printed and copies of same be sent to all locals.

Also that order of business be amended by striking out "labor discussions" and inserting "discussions of economics."

DAVID M. HALLIDAY,
EDWIN A. HUGHES,
Roslyn Local 2510.

Be it Resolved, That the United Mine Workers' Journal be continued as a weekly paper.

LOCAL UNION 376.

Be it Resolved, That Section 1, Article IV, be amended to read as follows:

"Every local union shall pay direct to the national secretary-treasurer a per capita tax of twenty-five cents per month and such additional assessments as may be levied by the National Board."

JAMES GUNN,
Local 423, Clinton, Ind.

Be it Resolved, That each and every member of a local union have the same right and privilege in voting for the officers of his local.

F. A. SHELL,
Local Union 749.

Be it Resolved, That Section 4 of Article II be amended as follows:

After the words "statement showing," insert the following:

"A separate account of the salary and expenses of each officer and employe; also a statement showing what kind of service said employe has rendered."

JOSEPH BOAK,
L. U. 347, District 12.

Be it Resolved, That Section 2 of Article XII be amended by adding after the word "constitution" in line 4, "and any member shall be eligible to hold office, either national or district, after being a resident member of a local union in said district for one year." CHRIS EVANS.

Whereas, The expenses of our unions are very great, and we believe it is necessary to curtail them, and

Whereas, We do not think it necessary to have so large an Executive Board as we have at present; therefore, be it

Resolved, That Article II, Section 1, of the constitution be amended to read, "And an Executive Board to be composed of twelve members to be elected by the local union, the twelve receiving the highest number of votes cast shall be declared elected.

W. H. JOHNS, Local 1098.
EDWARD CUTTY, Local 1743.

Be it Resolved, That Section 4 of Article II to provide that male assistants who are members of the United Mine Workers of America shall be employed in the national office, such appointments to be from districts in routine. Such employes must be eligible to fill such appointments, subject to the approval of the president and a majority of the members of the district, and shall perform such duties as may be assigned them.

CHARLES W. BRILL,
LOUIS TIMBERMAN,
JESSE POORE, Committee.
HENRY HEACOX, President,
ROY HEACOX, Secretary.
Local Union 776.

Resolved, That Section 9 of Article IV be amended by striking from the third paragraph, seventh line, the words "sons of members," and inserting the word "boys," which would make that part of Section 9 read as follows: "Boys between fourteen and sixteen years of age shall pay an initiation fee of $2.50."

ALEX. K. STEEN, L. U. 509.
WILLIAM E. WELLS, L. U. 2052.

Resolved, That the form of transfer card be changed so that each card will have two stubs, one to be retained by the secretary issuing card, the other stub to accompany the card, and to be filled out by the secretary of the local where the card is deposited, then returned to the secretary of the local who issued the card, said stub to be kept on file by said local for future reference.

IRA JONES,
GEORGE TAYLOR,
AMOS HARPER,
Local Union 155, Bicknell, Ind.

Resolved, That Section 8 of Article VII of the national constitution be made to read as follows:

"When a transfer card is issued to any member it must be deposited by him with some local union, or with the National Secretary-Treasurer within three months from the end of the month in which it was issued, unless otherwise specified; otherwise it will become void and the holder of the card can only become a member again by being initiated as a new member."

J. W. DUNNING,
Delegate Local Union 913, District 11.

Be it Resolved, That Section 6 of Article VII be amended by striking out the words "six months in arrears" and inserting the words "three months in arrears."

L. U. 1920, District 8.

Whereas, Section 1 of Article XIV of the national constitution does not in its prohibitive character cover all employes we think should be debarred from membership in our union, specifying mine manager and top boss only, and

Whereas, Employes known as boss drivers are just as necessary, in the estimation of the company, from a profit-earning standpoint, and

Whereas, Our experience has been that boss drivers, as a rule, work for the interests of the company, regardless of the interests of the men; therefore, be it

Resolved, That Section 1 of Article XIV be so amended as to place boss drivers under the same ban as mine manager and top boss.

ARTHUR CHARLETON, Local 58.
GEORGE FISHER, Local 1870.
THOMAS HENDERSON, Local 2371.
JOHN FLEMING, Local 135.
WILLIAM H. McILWRATH, Local 1094.

Resolved, That Section 8 of Article VI of the national constitution be amended by striking out the words "during the second week" and substituting "on the second Tuesday."

FRED WIMMER, L. U. 24, District 11.

Whereas, There is a difference of opinion as to the application of Section 2 of Article IV of the constitution, many locals paying simply upon the number of members who have paid into the local instead of upon the amount of dues and assessments paid by such members; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the following proviso be attached to Section 2 of Article IV: "Provided, that the basis for payment of dues and assessments shall be the amount of the same collected by the local union each month."

T. B. NICHOLS, Local 905.

Whereas, The expense of our union is so large that we believe it has become necessary to cut it down by limiting the number of organizers; therefore, be it

Resolved, That Section 2 of Article II be amended by adding after the words "and from time to time appoint such organizers and workers in the national office or in the field as may be required, provided, there shall not be more than twenty-five employed at the same time." EDWARD CUTTY,
Local Union 1743.

Resolved, That we favor the proposed change of our Journal from a weekly to a monthly magazine, but only on condition that it be financed as the present weekly journal is, from subscriptions and advertising. Also that the due cards now in use be changed and the stamp system adopted. Also that the sixth clause in the preamble to our constitution be amended by inserting the words "from bank to bank," after the word "hours" in the second line of said clause.

Whereas, The future success of the labor movement rests upon the basic point of education and knowledge of industrial conditions, and realizing that indifference to its mission is one of the gravest perils to its perpetuity and future advancement; therefore, be it

Resolved, By this convention that the following clause be appended to our national constitution: "Each local union shall set aside one meeting in each month at which the agreement, constitution and economic subjects shall be discussed."
FRANK J. HAYES,
Delegate Local Union 743.

Resolved, That all national dues and assessments be paid direct from local unions to national office in stead of through the district. S. W. BROCK, Delegate L. U. 2327, District 21.

Believing it to be for the best interests of organized labor,, we of L. U. 2327, District 21, present the following resolution and ask that it be made part of the national constitution:

Resolved, That no member shall be eligible to hold the same district office more than two terms in succession.
S. W. BROCK, L. U. 2327.

Resolved, That each and every recording secretary in the jurisdiction of the Mine Workers of America be compelled to keep a record of all lost or advertised cards and black listed or expelled members of the U. M. W. of A. IRA JONES,
GEORGE TAYLOR,
AMOS HARPER,
L. U. 155, Bicknell, Ind.

Be it resolved, That the constitution be so amended as to provide that there shall be a slip attached to the transfer card, to be known as a return slip, said slip to be returned to local issuing the transfer card. JOHN HANCOCK, Local 298.
J. H. CREWS, Local 2614.

Resolved, That the increase in taxation for national defense fund be levied on a percentage basis, the amount to be levied on the amount earned by each member.

CHARLES BARNETT, Delegate,
L. U. 412, Hymera, Ind.

Resolved, That the United Mine Workers' Journal be continued as a weekly publication, the subschiption rate to be fifty cents per year. CHARLES BARNETT, L. U. 412, Hymera, Ind.

Resolved, The the present system of transfer card be abolished by the convention. CHARLES WINSCHEL,
WILLIAM SMITH,
Local 756, District No. 12.

Resolved, That the committee be instructed to draft a clause providing for withdrawal cards for members of the United Mine Workers of America leaving the mines to follow other vocations; such withdrawal cards to be accepted by the locals issuing the same in lieu of initiation fees, whenever such members desire to return to the mines, providing there is no charge of misconduct against the holders of such withdrawal cards.

JAMES C. COOPER, L. U. 94, Mowequa, Ill.

Whereas, The National Executive Board has done all in its power to organize the miners of District 17, certain sections of Pennsylvania and Maryland, as well as other parts of this country, and according to the statement of the National Secretary-Treasurer there has been a decrease in the revenues of the organization, and realizing that it will take an expenditure of more money than is now being paid into the National Treasury to organize the miners in the above named unorganized field, and, realizing how essential it is to the welfare of the miners of this country that these fields be organized before the expiration of the present interstate agreement, therefore be it

Rsolved, That we, the delegates of District 17, in convention assembled, favor an increase of the national per capita tax to fifty cents per month per member, for the purpose of organizing the mines in the above named field.

THOMAS TORRY,
W. P. FRIDAY,
J. P. IRELAND,
R. N. WEST,
H. S. BURGESS,
Committee.

Resolved, That Local 1822 is strongly opposed to an increase in our per capita tax, and we believe it would be injurious to the interests of the miners in this district except in the support of a strike called by the National oganization.

Resolved, That this local is strongly opposed to the proposition to increase our per capita tax five cents a month in order to compel the members to subscribe for The Journal.

Resolved, That our national constitution be so changed as to limit the terms of office of all national officers to two consecutive terms.

Resolved, That the absolute appointive power of our National President be curtailed, and that in all cases all appointments be made subject to the will of the mine workers in the vicinity where a member resides and to the endorsement of his own district.

C. L. TANNER,
WILLIAM DOBELBOWER.
JOSEPH ATHERTON.

Be it resolved, That we favor the publishing of The Journal as a weekly paper, the subscription price to be one dollar a year, and that no one be compelled to take it; and, be it further

Resolved, That a poll book be furnished by the National organization to be held by the financial secretary of each local for the purpose of recording the names of all the comers and goers; and, be it further

Resolved, That we have stamps for the convenience of the members in paying dues, the stamp to be our receipt.

T. L. FREELAND,
R. C. BATY,
S. R. WIGGINS,
Local Union No. 1895.

Owing to a tendency on the part of a great many of our locals to make our organization a beneficiary order, and also to the ever increasing demands upon us for aid and assistance for brothers who have had the misfortune to lose some members of their families, or for some brother who has to be laid away at our expense, which is a great hardship to some of our weaker locals, therefore be it

Resolved, That our delegate to the National convention be instructed to ask for an amendment to the National constitution creating a beneficiary department, same to be supplied by a National assessment of not more than twenty-five cents per member per month, said money to be placed in our national treasury, and to be drawn on by the local trustees for the purpose of defraying the funeral expenses of our brothers or members of their families; the expenses of a funeral for an adult not to exceed thirty dollars, and for a child not to exceed fifteen dollars. All bills to be approved by trustees and signed by the President and Secretary before same can be paid.
